It is evident that General Pape is fighting with terrible tenacity. History records few instances of such tremendous struggles as the battles before Richmond, and these again before Washington.—Usually, one or two days is sufficient in Europe to determ ne a victory or a retreat. In this country, owing to topographical peculiarities, battles can be conducted for several days in succession without any definite result. There is so much wood and water, and the ground is so broken that rules which appertain to a place of safety:

"The city is full of rumors about the Piketon, battle going on to-day in the vicinity of Bull Run. The excitement runs high on Bull Run. The excitement runs high on the Avenue in consequence of the circulation of these reports. I am happy to say that I have just seen an officer of high rank this afternoon, who has given me some most important news.

He accordingly wisely determined to withdraw his rade troop form the input. He accordingly wisely determined to withdraw his jailed troops from the immediate field of action, which the enemy at once took possession of. It was mortifying for General Pope to do this, but neing for General Pope to do Gias, but ne-cessity knows no law, and Summer and Porter had not arrized to save the day. An attempt was made to turn our right, but the brove Siegel, with his firsty Germans and the batteries he knows how so well to manosure, was at once ordered to the right, and the enemy was diven back with heavy loss. Siegel headed a bayonet charge in person, it is said, and in this new position distinguished himself. Then a bold stroke was made at our centre, which was handsonely repulsed by McDowell. After this a desperation was fearfully evident among the rebels, and there soon emerged from the dust a long solid mass of men earling down upon our poor worn-out coming down upon our poor worn-out coming nown upon our poor worn-our army at a bayenet charge on the double-quick. By the description of those who saw this line of bayonets, I am satisfied that in the distance it must have presented a spectacle at once awful, sublime, terrific and overwhelming.
