

ROUGH NOTES OF A VOYAGE FROM NEW YORK TO SAN FRANCISCO.

SUNDAY, May 6th.—Roused as usual about 4 o'clock; just the time I wanted to sleep—deck being washed off; breakfast is now ready—coffee and biscuit, potatoes and salt junk—great difficulty in elbowing one's way even to the third table; a general turn out on deck of all the steerage passengers—some have got on their Sunday dress, but many others, among the rest, have not been able to get to their trunks for any change. So many men with long beards I have scarcely ever seen; in fact there is not room in any part of the steerage to shave. The sun is almost vertical and the heat would be very great were it not for a very pleasant refreshing breeze. Dinner is now ready; third table is being served; I must try and crowd forward if I would secure some of the rice and water soup that all seem so anxious to get. It seems unpleasant to have to force one's way to table after having paid so well for it, and yet it must be done if a person would get anything at all. We were entertained this forenoon with a choice selection of secular airs, consisting of waltzes, polkas, &c., by a harper and violinist, who are likely on their way to the western shores of this continent with a view to make their "piles" by music—a very pleasant way of making money. The passengers seemed to appreciate the amusement by contributing freely when the hat was passed around; I did not think it altogether appropriate on the Sabbath and therefore did not patronize the hat. There was no dancing going on probably more to a want of room, than to a want of inclination on the part of many—we have no clergy on board—have no religious service to-day—my thoughts carry me back to the snug little chapel (Bethesda) where the congregation is assembling about this time, although I am rapidly being borne away south on the Atlantic—supper is going on just now—I have managed to get to the second table, and there yet remain to be served—the passengers are outrageous at the fare and treatment—this morning a number went to the captain to remonstrate, but without success—it is quite impossible for four cooks and half a dozen waiters to serve some six hundred people, with anything like comfort and quickness—in fact, many of the passengers do not deserve any better usage, nor even as good as they are getting. There is quite a number of Californian miners aboard who think as they have travelled a little more than some others, that they have a right to bully and swear and do just as they please. For my own part I can get along very well with the board; I brought a small stock of my own—soda biscuits and other things which require no cooking—so when I don't like what is going, I can take my own, and this I would advise every intending steerage passenger to do. I have not been able to find my trunk as yet among the multitudinous pile of boxes and trunks that are stowed away under canvas on the hurricane deck, but I expect they will shortly begin to weigh them, and then, no doubt, I will find it. I felt rather lonesome that I could not get my music books to-day—nor even a clean collar—all was in the trunk. The shades of evening are setting down, so I must prepare for another night's rest on the soft side of a plank.

MONDAY, May 5th.—Up at the usual hour; spent the night as comfortably as might be expected under the circumstances; was awakened about midnight by a noisy altercation between a Dutch passenger and a sailor, who, on going his rounds as watch, chanced to step on the Dutchman, who had taken up his night's lodgings by the galley door—the Dutchman averring most positively that he (the sailor) had no business there; the sailor retorting in no very complimentary terms to the poor son of Hesse Darmstadt. The usual routine of washing, mopping and swabbing having been gone through, breakfast is placed on the table—Indian meal, mush and molasses—tastes rather musty; the usual desert of coffee, hard biscuit and salt pork accompanying; passengers becoming extremely voracious. The grace is usually a shower of oaths from one end of the table to the other—Young America can carry off the palm at swearing, card playing, novel reading; sacred and secular music fill up the intervals from meal to meal. Dinner is commenced—a general rush to the tables—pushing, shoving, and elbowing a-la-mode. Germans clamorous; some calling for soup, others for swill, thinking it undervaluing of the appellation of soup. I would rather wait than crowd after this manner, even supposing the soup has to be diluted for the last tables. One Dutchman remarks very jocularly, that granting every individual has to eat a peck of dirt before he dies, the passengers on this boat will have finished their quantum by the time they reach San Francisco. Whether they will feel ready to die by that time is a question I cannot solve. Through some difficulty I have been able to get to the fourth table—soup, biscuit, and salt junk—day pretty hot—waiters mostly of the American type in a great flurry and perspiring very freely. Now then I have got through, and wish to get away to a more airy place as soon as possible. Nothing now but smoking—some three or four hundred pipes and cigars in full blow. Hark! I think I hear music; so it is—the harp and violin in operation, and two Irishmen tripping the light fantastic toe to the tune of Patrick's Day. The merry laugh rings as one after another enters the list, something in the style of the 'cutting out jig.' Vocal music now takes the place of the instrumental, and song after song rings far out over the deep blue sea. I have lain down to sleep, well knowing that I must start at an early hour; but I might as well sit up—no chance of sleeping while that knot of Irishmen continue their songs and choruses; the women also blarneying and coaxing Pat for another song, which, warm-hearted creature that he is, he cannot, and will not refuse. One by one retires, and at length all is locked in the arms of Morpheus. Glad am I indeed, for I have not had more than half sleep since I came on board.

(To be continued in our next.)

Poetry.

SOME ONE MIGHT HEAR, I breathed my vows one evening, Unto my love so fair; Her tresses brushed my forehead As I leant above her hair; I saw her burning blushes As I whispered in her ear; But, oh, she would not answer— Said she, "some one might hear." I grasped her hand and pressed it All faintly in mine own, And told her that her image Was set on memory's throne; I vowed I loved her truly, That she to me was dear, But, oh, no answer got I, Save she "feared some one might hear." I scouted at her caution, My breath did fan her cheek, I implored in fervent language That she to me would speak; I saw her, with emotion, Wipe from her eye a tear, Yet still she softly murmured: "Suppose some one should hear." My hopes began to vanish, My tears commenced to flow, And to hide from her my weakness, I turned away to go; When I heard a trembling whisper Fall softly on my ear: "Oh, yes, I fondly love you, And I care not who may hear."

Miscellaneous.

THE AMERICAN DIFFICULTY.—Speaking the truth. Providence has work for every living man, or he would not exist. It is beauty's privilege to kill time, and time's privilege to kill beauty. Young women often keep their lovers by tears. Love, like beef, is preserve by brine. THE FUTURE.—It has been beautifully said that 'the veil which covers the face of futurity is woven by the hand of mercy.' Never forget what a man has said to you in anger. If he has charged you with anything, you had better look it up. Anger is a bow that will shoot sometimes where another feeling will not. 'Mike, and is it yourself that can be after telling me how they manufacture ice cream?' 'That I can. Doubt they bake them in cowld ovens to be sure.' 'By George! I must shoot you; I made a vow that I would kill any man uglier than myself.' 'Fire away, stranger; if I am uglier than you I don't want to live.' Wherever there is excessive wealth, there is in its train excessive poverty; as where the sun is brightest the shade is deepest. THE THIRD PARTY.—In chemistry the best way to separate two bodies is to introduce a third. The same holds true in other departments. To increase the distance between a pair of lovers, all that's required is to let Willie walk into the back parlor with a lighted candle in his hand. LORD ELDON AT PRAYERS.—The late Earl Grey used to tell of seeing Lord Eldon, then Lord Chancellor, correct a private Act of Parliament in which, doubtless, his Lordship was interested, whilst on his knees at prayer in the House of Lords. On Earl Grey intimating surprise at the incident, 'D—n it,' exclaimed Lord Eldon, 'you would do so, too, if you were worked to death as I am.'

IMPORTANT IF TRUE! And every word is true. For upwards of three years past, I have been engaged in a business, which has yielded me at the rate of $3,000 per annum, but being desirous of going to Europe in the course of a few months for the purpose of there introducing the business, I am willing to teach to any one who will send me $1. The business is no humbug, but of a highly useful and general character, and adapted to this and every other part of the world. Any person of ordinary capacity, young or old, male or female, can acquire with a few hours' practice, and by which they can secure a very handsome income. Several young ladies who have received instruction from me, both in New York State and Pennsylvania, are earning upwards of $20 per week by it, and there is no reason why any one else cannot do the same. Invalids, even, can do well by it, as it is no peddling affair, but a business that is perfectly respectable. Gentlemen and ladies of leisure who would like to learn the business for their own amusement or pleasure, will find the practice of it a pleasant pastime, and one that will be highly profitable. The purchaser of the printed instructions will also be authorized to teach it to others; and I have sometimes received as high as $200, for teaching it personally to a single individual. I would state further that they will take great interest in it. On receipt of $1, I will send printed instructions, and these instructions will also contain every particular relative to the carrying it on so that it will be highly profitable.
