

ROUGH NOTES CONTINUED.

The dinner bell rings, and the Spanish ox that was yesterday slaughtered, forms an agreeable repast. The soup also is large. California potatoes look very inviting, and seem rapidly to disappear from the board. An ox of the California breed is being led to the slaughter; a large crowd follows, seemingly much elated at the prospect of being spectators of the scene. Judging from their anxiety to witness the death throes of the poor animal, one would naturally conclude that the organ of destructiveness is very fairly developed in many. The male interposes his authority, and drives them to the larboard side, as there is a probability of being capsized by such a weight on the starboard. Supper is in preparation—a fresh application of the 'old plaster'—tea, biscuit, and salt junk. Scarcely has the meal been dispatched when there is a simultaneous movement in the direction of the water-tank. One of the sailors is stationed there to draw and prevent the water from being carried away. About 350 gallons have been used for drink alone today, besides all that has been used in cooking, washing vessel, &c. and as that required at the bar with ice. A glass of ice-water or of any other kind of drink, costs only 25 cents on this boat, and many are foolish enough to spend $3 to $10 a day in this way. Their pockets, on landing, will be light, whether their hearts will be so or not. One fellow from N. Carolina spent, since leaving N. York in this traffic, $700; he also lost a gold watch in Aspinwall on the night we stopped there. The colored ladies were too many for the Yankee; this same lad was he who acted the part of Abe Lincoln on board the North Star. His friends and money have absconded in concert. We have a barber on board, who is on board to accommodate customers with a clean 'barefaced shave.' Price only 25 cents. We have a goodly number of American gentry on board, among which are Col. Madore Foote, and the governor of the district of Columbia. Cabin passengers and steerage passengers seem determined to-night to emerge from the lower regions, and take possession of the more devoted. Of course this is a great annoyance to many of us, and we look upon it as an infringement of our rights to be thus cramped and crowded by those who have berths, and like the dog in the manger, will neither use them themselves nor allow others to do so. Every foot of the hurricane deck is occupied to-night. Those on the watch have a difficult task in threatening their way from one end to the other. The officers and crew are very patient and forbearing with the passengers. Now for a sleep. I could almost wish that fellow, who has attracted a large crowd on the opposite side to listen to his infernal bawling and singing, had been born tongue-tied, and allowed to remain so.

THURSDAY, May 15.—All hands in motion bright and early. Took an ablution and a turn at the pump used in washing the decks. The exercise and morning air create a good appetite. I am quite ready to repair to the first table at 6.30 a.m., where we are plentifully supplied with Indian meal, mush and molasses (which is very good this morning), coffee, biscuit, and the usual relish of 'salt horse.' The morning opens with a bright and smiling sun, with every prospect of another fine day. The hurricane deck is fairly crammed with living freight, more crowded and densely packed than even was the Zimane man on an excursion to Niagara. Hundreds of groups of three and four intent on a game of eucuro; some reading papers and novels; ladies knitting and sewing; others washing babies underclothing, while some few like myself are noting the passing events.—A woman standing close by me this morning called the attention of her husband to some sea birds that were flying around. 'Arrah, Micky, shure av' we must be near land; don't you see the crows flying.'—Some flying fish are observable to-day. No land in sight; our course is W. N. W., lat. at noon, 13 deg, 52 N., long. 93, 10 W. Distance sailed since noon, Saturday, 192 miles; the breeze being scarcely perceptible, no sails are set. Dinner bell rings; a general movement in the direction of the tables—dust and molasses, biscuit and 'salt horse.'—Englishmen in little groups here and there, comment freely on the quality of the food. This seems to be their general theme. No sooner has dinner been despatched than complaining commences; indeed I saw some lose the meal altogether, so intent were they on following up their favorite game. Some try to pass the time away by reading. This is not easily done; so much chatting on all sides, usually on a high key, especially among the Dutchmen, that it is hard to fix the attention on any subject. Heat also acts as a soporific. At all times of the day individuals may be seen basking in delightful repose with a book lying beside them. Supper generally the same on this boat—coffee, biscuit, and salt pork. Find it almost impossible to get to bed to-night. Females, whose berths are below in the steerage, have no desire to go there, on account of the heat, and so insist on sitting with us whether we will or no. This may sound strange, but it is nevertheless true. The most obscene jests, licentious language pass freely among the men in their having to endeavor to drive them to their berths, but all without effect. They sit and listen apparently unconcerned. Well, poor creatures I suppose they wish to breathe the cool night air, and have it fan their cheeks as much as we do.

FRIDAY, May 16.—Morning calm and bright, also very hot. We have, in some degree, become inured to heat, and do not feel it to be so oppressive as at first. Land is visible in the distance; a general movement in the direction of the larboard side, as there is a probability of being capsized by such a weight on the starboard. Supper is in preparation—a fresh application of the 'old plaster'—tea, biscuit, and salt junk. Scarcely has the meal been dispatched when there is a simultaneous movement in the direction of the water-tank. One of the sailors is stationed there to draw and prevent the water from being carried away. I could almost wish that fellow, who has attracted a large crowd on the opposite side to listen to his infernal bawling and singing, had been born tongue-tied, and allowed to remain so.

What is the difference between a Methodist preacher at a camp meeting and a glutton? One dines at sinners; the sin at dinners.

A Scotch minister was examining a school on the subject of Peter's coming to the house of Cornelius. He asked the scholars, 'What was the first thing Peter did when he came to Cornelius's house?' One bright-eyed little boy replied, 'He sneaked the door, sir.'

HENPECKED.—Are you not alarmed at the approach of the king of terrors? said a clergyman to an invalid. 'Oh, no!' was the reply; 'I have been living six and thirty years with the queen of terrors; the king cannot be much worse!'

ALE AILMENT.—An acquaintance of ours, who occasionally drinks more than is absolutely good for him, was cautioned as follows by a well meaning friend:—'R-r-r-r-r,' said he, 'if you k-k-keep on a-ale-ing as m-m-much as you do, y-y-you'll soon want a p-p-porter to carry your b-b-bier (beer).'

A SENSIBLE BOY.—A little boy once said to his aunt: 'Aunt, I should think that Satan must be an awful trouble to God! He must be trouble enough, indeed I should think; she answered, 'I don't see how he came to turn out so, when there was no devil to put him up to it.' That boy should be sent to bed early—he is altogether too inquisitive.

SCOTCH WIT.—A SMART REPLY.—It is said that a nervous Hibernian, evidently unaccustomed to travelling, had occasion to journey on the Great North of Scotland Railway. Soon after starting, he became apparently 'onary' about the safety of his luggage, which, of course, was safe in the van. On the first opportunity, thrusting his head from the carriage window he loudly accosted the smart official in charge of the train, with—'Guard, guard! is not thurank all right?' 'All right sir,' was the quick reply, and the train proceeded. At the next station the restless Milesian again shouted, 'Are ye shure it's all safe?' and again was he reassured of the safety of his travelling gear. The important 'thurank' was the subject of inquiry in similar fashion at every station, until the patient guard, grown weary of this silly importunity exclaimed—'I wish sir, you had been born an elephant instead of ap ass; and carried your 'thurank' before you.'

My son suffered for nearly four months from inflammation in one of his eyes; during which time I procured the best medical aid within my reach, to no purpose. Two inflammation continued; the boy suffered, and I began to entertain serious apprehensions that he would lose the use of his eye. I accidentally heard of effectual cures having been made by Mr. H. W. Peck's Eye Water, and procured two vials of it from him—the application of which has effected a CURE. My son's eyes are now well. I have much pleasure in certifying to the above facts, and recommending the use of Mr. Peck's Eye Water to all persons afflicted with Inflamed Eyes.
JOHN HILLTOP.

Richmond Hill, July 15, 1862.
In the month of February last, I had a severe attack of inflammation in my right eye, and suffered very much. I tried several remedies, and obtained medical advice, but my eye continued to get worse. I was recommended to call on Mr. H. W. Peck, who gave me a vial of his Eye Water; in three days I felt relief, and in about five days was able to use my eyes. It is now well, and I have much pleasure in stating that I believe it is Mr. Peck's remedy that cured my eye. I have also recommended the use of it to others, and know that the result has been attended with complete success.

The present critical state of European affairs will render these publications universally interesting during the forthcoming year. It is to these Periodicals that readers must look for the only really intelligent and reliable history of current events, and as such, in addition to their well-established literary, scientific, and theological character, we urge them upon the consideration of the reading public.
