

Poetry.

HIGHLAND SOLDIER'S SONG.

The health this night must be my bed,
The brackles curio for my head,
My halberd the warlord's tread.

Far, far from love and thee, Mary,
To-morrow eve, more sully laid,
My couch may be my bloody plaid,
My vesper song thy wail, sweet maid:

I may not, dare not, fancy now!
The grief that clouds thy lovely brow,
I dare not think upon thy vow,
And all I promised me, Mary,

No fond regrets must Norman know;
When bursts Clan-Alpine on the foe,
If he beat must be like bowled bow,
His foot like a rowed free, Mary.

A time will come with feeling fraught;
For, if I fall in battle fought,
Thy hapless lover's dying thought
Shall be a thought on thee, Mary:

And if returned from conquered foes,
How bliskly will the evening close,
How sweet the linnets' zephyr repose,
To my young bride and me, Mary.

THE VOW,
BY REV. C. T. BOOKER.

Our life's last drop we vow to thee,
We'll burst that chain around us!
Dear Motherland, we'll set thee free
From treason, shame, and plunder!

From all thy soil—hill, vale and shore—
Oppression's horrors forevermore
We'll drive with fire and thunder.

The die is cast—we will not quail,
Whatever fate hangs o'er us;
For Truth is great and shall prevail,
And Freedom goes before us.

Where brothers lie, we too may lie,
Yet shall our souls ascending cry,
We've saved the land that bore us!

Miscellaneous.

The King of Siam has given Louis Napoleon a royal tiger of colossal size.

Two burglars who entered a Broadway store found the goods so high they declined them.

Mr. Partridge has presented that he shall go to the wars, on condition that he joins the sapheads and masons.

A head equal to the greatest events, and a heart superior to the strongest temptations, are qualities which may be possessed so secretly that a man's next-door neighbor shall not discover them, until some unforeseen action calls them forth.

A tutor, lecturing a young man for his irregular conduct, added with great pathos, 'The report of your views will bring your father's grey hairs with sorrow to the grave.'

'I beg your pardon, sir,' replied the incorrigible, 'my father wears a wig.'

Coleridge, an awkward horseman, was one day riding on the road, when a wag noticing his peculiarity, thus accosted the poet:—'I say, did you meet a tailor on the road?'—'Yes,' replied Coleridge, 'I did; and he told me if I went a little further I should meet his goose!'

An old schoolmaster, who usually heard his pupils once a week through Watt's Scripture History, and afterwards asked them promiscuously such questions as suggested themselves to his mind, one day desired a young archer to tell him who Jesse was, when the boy hastily replied, 'The Flower of Dunblane, sir.'

In a Scotch town a man from the country applied to a respectable lawyer for advice. After detailing the circumstances of the case, he was asked if he had stated the facts just as they had occurred. 'Oh, ay, sir,' rejoined the applicant; 'I thought it best to tell you the plain truth; you can put the lies to it yourself!'

WHOLESALE RULES.—Mr. Simpson is referring to evil reports writes:—'The longer I live the more I feel the importance of adhering to the following rules:—

1st. To hear as little as possible what is to the prejudice of others.

2nd. To believe nothing of the kind until I am absolutely forced to it.

3rd. Never to drink in the spirit of one who circulates an evil report.

4th. Always to moderate as far as I can.

5th. Always to believe that if the other side would be heard, a very different account would be given of the matter.

HOW AN AMERICAN MOTHER TALKS.—An American mother thus writes respecting the slaughter at Fredericksburg: 'If I could feel that the death of my young friend had been in the service of the country instead of being one of a hecatomb of murders, I could give less. It seems to me if I had lost a son at that blundering battle, I should have needed—have needed heavenly grace to keep from the spirit of Charlotte Corday. Can Lincoln sleep? Does Halleck hear the groans of the wounded, night and day? Does Stanton feel the agonizing screams of mothers, wives and children which are caused by him? The curses of a nation will fall heavily on the heads of those who cause our present misery, whether cabinet officers or Abolitionists.'

TOBACCO.—BY ISAAC WALTON. This Indian weed now withered quite. Though green at noon it down at night. Shows they decay; All flesh is bay— Thus think, and smoke tobacco.

The pipe so hily-white and neat, Does this thy mortal state bespeak; Thou art e'en such, Gone with a touch; Thus think, and smoke tobacco.

And when the smoke ascends on high, Then thou beholdest the vanity, Of worldly staff, Gone with a puff; Thus think, and smoke tobacco.

COMPARATIVE ESTIMATE OF THE VALUE OF HORSES AND OXEN.

It is generally agreed that horses travel faster than oxen, and that on a farm consisting of plain sand desolate rocks, a pair of horses will do more on the plough and harrow than a pair of oxen; that is, farm horses will last to work till twenty years old, but oxen should not be kept half so long, though some work till they are fourteen. But after admitting so much, we may be allowed to say a word or two in favor of the practice of keeping oxen.

And first as to the cost of the animals—Oxen of equal weight with horses are bought for one half price. Oxen are worth something after they are worn out in work—horses are not.

Oxen are not half so liable to disease as horses are. An insurer will ask fourfold more for insuring the health of horses than of oxen.

The gearing of oxen costs less by one half than that of horses. A wooden yoke lasts longer than leather harness, and it is put on and off in half the time.

One chain answers for two oxen, but two horses must have four.—Oxen are more patient than horses, and will carry a more even yoke. They start a load better than horses, particularly in a snow path, where the runners stick to the snow.

Oxen can be entrusted with hired men at less risk than horses. They are soon taught to draw the plough, and are driven by the ploughmen without any reins.

We have not a large proportion of farms without rocks and stumps, and where the land is rocky there is no comparison between oxen and horses.

In regard to cost of keeping, there would be but little difference if both were kept on the same food. But many of our farmers keep oxen through the winter on coarse hay, straw, and husks which would not keep horses alive.

Our own oxen (half blood Devons) never have any but cheap hay, husks, etc., through the winter, though they labor much of the time. When April comes they are kept on good hay, and thus they learn the difference between cheap and costly living.

Oxen of the right breed are very readily fattened, and their beef is better than that of cows or young cattle, and brings more in the market.

When farmers quit raising and keeping oxen, people must quit eating beef and tanning ox-hides.—Mass. Ploughman.

A STRING OF RECEIPTS.

BUTTERMILK PIE.—Three pints of buttermilk, two eggs, four table-spoonfuls of sugar, a tea-spoonful of flour stirred in the milk, and half a nutmeg, stir well together, and bake like a custard pie.

PEEP PENDING.—Take three eggs, nine table-spoonfuls of flour, a pint of milk, and salt to taste. Pour the milk on the flour scalding hot, and add the eggs. Bake from twenty minutes to half an hour. Serve with sauce to suit the taste.

PICKLED CABBAGE.—Slice red cabbage very thin, put on it a little coarse salt, and let it rest for twenty-four hours to drain; add sliced onions if you like them. Boil four spoonfuls of pepper, and four of allspice, in a quart of vinegar, and pour it over.

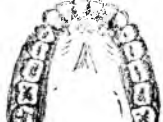

COIN MEAL PENDING.—To save heating table-spoonfuls of Indian meal, add one cup of molasses a little salt and butter. Stir all well together, and just as it goes into the oven, put in a cupful of cold water or milk. Bake three quarters of an hour.

HULLED CORN.—Boil a quart of sound ripe corn in very strong lye, until the outer kernel of the grain is removed, which will be in about eight minutes. Now wash it in two waters, and cook until tender, and you have four quarts of excellent and nutritious food.

DELICIOUS TOASTED CHEESE.—Cut two ounces of cheese in thin slices, put it into a saucpan, set on the fire, and add one gill of fresh milk; simmer it till the cheese is dissolved—then take it from the fire, and pour into a shallow dish; when cooled a little, add the yolk of an egg well beaten. Then place it before the fire, and brown it nicely.

TO CLEAN TEA TRAYS.—Do not pour boiling water over them, particularly if painted ones, as it will make the varnish crack and peel off, but have a sponge wetted with warm water and a little soap, if the tray be very dirty; then rub it with a cloth, if it look sneaky, dust on a little flour, then rub it with a dry cloth, if the paper tray gets marked, take a piece of wooden cloth, with a little sweet oil, and rub it over the marks; if anything will take them out, this will. Let the tray be emptied and the top wiped dry, particularly the outside. For if any wet be suffered to dry on it, it will leave a mark.
