- "You're clever at drawing, I own."
 Said my beautiful cousin, Lizette,
 As we sat by the window alone,
 "But say, can you paint a coquett
-  She's painted aheady." quoth 1—

  Nay, nay," said the laughing Lizett

  Now none of your joking—but try

 And paint me a thorough coquotie."
- Well, cousin," at once I began
 In the ear of the eager Lizette,
 I'll paint you as well as I can,
 That wonderful thing a coquette.
- *She wears a most beautiful face, (Of course! said the pretty Lizette) And isn't deficient in grace, Or else she were not a coquette.
- "And then she is daintily made,
 (A smile from the dainty Lizette,)
 By people expert in the trade
 Of forming a proper coquette.
- "She's the winningest ways with a bea (Go on ! said the winning Lizette) But there isn't a man of them knows The mind of the fickle coquette,
- She knows how to weep and to sigh, (A sigh f om the tender Lizette)
 But her weeping is all in my eye—
 Not that of the cunning coquette.
- ei In short, she's a creature of art, (Oh hush! said the frowning Lizette) With merely the glust of a heart ith merely the ghost of a heart-Enough for a thorough coquette,
- * And yet I could eas ly prove, (Now don't! said the angry Lizette he lady is always in love—
 In love with herself—the coquette!
- "There! do not be augry! you know My dear little cousin Lazetts. Yo told me a moment ago,

 To point you -a thorough coquette !"

SPARKLING WATER. BY NORMAN A, SMITH

Spa kling and bright the waters pure, From crystal founts in flow.
Trey glide along in the murmuring rills, Their blessings to basion;
Nature to us a boon hath given,
Of rare and priceless worth;
The sweets of draught that e'er was found,
The purest here on earth

You little drops of crystal dew,
That spark e in the sun,
Have glittered there like diamonds bright,
Since first the world begon—
When twil ght shades steal o'er the earth,
And light with darkness bends,
To nourish each green bud and leaf,
It gently still descends.

The flowers that grow on mossy banks, And in the shady bowers, Would quickly due and fissle away. If not refreshed by showers—
This blooming earth, now fresh and failn verdant beauty dressed, Would soon become a barren waste, By showers of heaven unblossed.

The breasts that roam the broad fields o'er, And in the forests wide,
Oft seek the banks of streamlets clear,
To q ndf its sparking tide—
The tinny tribe in take and brook,
There eport from danger free,
The ribone is breath the sparkling wave,
E'sn in the bright blue sea.

Stackling and bright is water pure, In foundir, lake, and river, Dancing along in the st cambets clear, Its missic ceasing never— The grutte showers and crystal dews To us are freely given.

Distilled from out the fleecy clouds,
A pierceless gift of beaven.
