RICHMOND HILL OCT. 6, 1865

Truth is Mighty and will Prevail.

From the continued silence of our Newmarket contemporary, anent the County business, we are led to believe that he is at last convinced of the error of his ways, and is determined to offer no further opposition to our reasonable demands for separation. Whatever may to offer in justification but an idea-nobe the anxiety felt by our clever friend | thing to offer in return but anarchy. to effect such an arrangement as would be a local benefit, we are satisfied he will never become the mere mouth piece of a local party, opposing the best interests of the County as a whole, to forward those of a particular village.

has never been shewn, nor ever can be; but that the Southern half would suffer severely by the former scheme, is self evident, since it would be left liable as ever to the same expense and inconvenience, and have still less chance that at present, of having its grievances redressed. •

County separation then will be no benefit to the North, and a certain injury to the South. Separation of the whole from the city, will be an indispu- spire. table benefit to both.

When it has been shown by fair trial that a separation of the whole County cannot be obtained, it will be time enough for a part to urge secession. Until then its advocacy is obstructive, and damaging to the general interests.

We commend to our Northern friends a more reasonable view and a more generous policy. Local interests and jealousies should be kept out of sight. They divide and weaken us, and if not subordinated, will work out certain defeat to both parties. To avoid this, let us work together for 'he one project—the greater and better one of separation from the city. If that fails, then each section can choose its own course of action, without injury to the other. Aut Casar aut nullus, will serve as a mosto for neither. The public good, social and financial, should be the first consideration and that may be cared for without the County buildings being located either in. the Era or in the Herald office.

How long are we to be without the luxury of a street crossing? We need such conveniences badly. Can not the 'powers that be' do something in this way to add to the respectability of the village, and save the boot blacking of the inhabitants. The present means of travel and transit from one wealthy and populous township to another are really a reproach to us, and a very dirty one at Mechanics Institute.

At the meeting held in Van Nostrands Hall, on Monday Evening last, a temporary committee was formed to take measures for the reorganization of the Institute, with a view of holding a series of Reunions, and procuring a course of Lectures during the coming winter.

Said Committee will meet in the Temperance Hall on this (Friday) evening

The presence and assistance of all those who feel interested in the matter is respectfully solicited. This praiseworthy movement is, or should be, deeply interesting to the inhabitants of the village, and vicinity, and should be premptly supported.

Good Lord! what madness rules in brainsick men, When for so slight and frivolous a cause, Such factious emulations shall arise.

We are getting considerably exercised about the doings of the Fenians in Ireland, and the threats of their American brethren. The British Government have come to the very wise conclusion, that in this intance at least, the old saying still holds good, 'Prevention is better than cure,' and are dealing with this latest and most miserable edition of the wrongs of Ireland' in a vigorus manner.
