It is partially owing to this fact, and partially to the novelty of the issues raised, that the struggle in North Wentworth, has for the last few weeks attracted such generaliattention. RODGERS VS. MUNNS. Counsel for the plaintiff, Mr. D. McMichael nd Mr. Lount ; for the defendant, Mr. R. A. Harrison.

This action, the trial of which commenced on Tuesday afternoon, was brought by the plaintiff to recover damages for slanderous language, maliciously spoken by the defend-ant regarding the plaintiff skill as a medical practitioner which, he alleges, had a prejudcial effect on his practice.

The declaration contained five counts, in which the slanderous language said to have been made use of was set forth in as many ting bogus money, detailed Armstrong to different forms, charging the defendant with circulating a report that the plaintiff had acted so unskillfully in his treatment to Mrs.

> A large number of witnesses were examined-eleven for the plaintiff and sixteen on the part of the defendant. The eleven for the plaintiff all spoke of the defendant having, on different times, and in different places, made use of the language charged in the declaration, and some of them added that owing to the report so set afloat regarding the plaintiff they declined employing Dr. Rogers when the services of a medical gentle man were required in their families.

The evidence for the defence went to show that the defendant only need words frequently made use of by the deceased during her illness, and that she had directed her friends and those around her not to employ Dr. Verdict for the plaintiff 1s damages.

Important diplomatic correspondence be-tween Mr. Adams, the American minister, has been gored by a bull. and Earl Russel, is published in the London Gazette of the 11th inst.

The correspondence begins with a letter from Minister Adams, dated the 7th April last, in which he calls the attention of Earl Russel to the official reports respecting the ravages of the Shenandoah, and announces that for the damages caused by such cruisers his government cannot avoid entalling the responsibility upon Great Britan.

The reply of Earl Russel is dated May 4. He says that the duties of Great Britan to wards the United States are not measured by the losses which the commerce of the latter may have sustained. The question is simply whether the Queen's government have faithfully and honorably preformed the duties which international law, and their own municipal laws imposed upon them.

The reply of Mr. Adams to this is dated May 4th. He says that the insurgents became belligerents on the ocean solely by reason of the facilities furnished in Her Majesty's ports for them to do so. He complains of the secret sympathy of Her Majes ty's officers in the port of Liverpo ol, and con tends that after the information which he supplied respecting the Alabama, it was by actress. the flagrant negligence of Her Majesty's Board of Costoms that the vesse', admitted to be intended for war purposes, was suffered to depart from Liverpool. An interval of three months elapsed be tween the above letter and Earl Russell's reply to it. In response Earl Russel pro-ceeds to justify the course of Her Majesty's government in recognizing the belligerents and reasons are given why there was extreme difficulty in giving orders to exclude from British ports vessols of war partly fitted up in the United Kingdom. A very impor tant point is referred to in the letter. Earl Russel notices a statement in a letter from Mr. Adams, in 1865, as to the governmentof Washington being ready to refer their dispates to arbitration. Earl Russell declines the offer and says it is a question in the first place whether the Queen's government have Hodgins, during her accouchment, that she acted in good faith in maintaining their neutrality, and in the second place whether the law officers of the crown have correctly interpreted a British statue. Earl Russell continues :-- ' The Queen's government can refer neither of these questions to arbitration.' The words used by him are as follows :- 'Her Majesty's government are the sole guardians of their own honor. They cannot admit they have acted with bad faith in maintaining the neutrality they professed. The law officers of the crown must be held to be better interpreters of a British statute than any foreign government can be presumed to be. Her Majesty's government must therefore decline to make reparation and com-pensation for captures made by the Alabama, or to refer the question to any foreign state. Her Majesty's government couceive that if they were to act otherwise, they would endanger the position of neutrals in all future wars. Her Majesty's government are, however, ready to consent to the appointment of a commission, to which shall be referred
