RICHMOND HILL, MAY 11, 1866. The Late Assizes.

"This may be perhaps the last Court of Assizes that will be held for the United Counties of York and Peel, as in all probability before the time arrives for holding another court, the county of Peel will have separated from York, as the county buildings in Peel are at present far advanced towards completion."

The above, taken from the presentment of the grand jury at the late assizes, gives us a pretty broad hint, that we will soon be compelled to pay the whole criminal expenditure hitherto borne by the united counties. We say the whole expenditure, for we cannot perceive that the withdrawal of Peel, will materially lessen either the duration or expense of the various courts. In comparison with the large number of cases entered from the city and from other counties, the business belonging to these counties is really very trifling, and if the attention of judge and jury were exclusively confined to them, we should have little to complain of, and our courts instead of lasting for nearly a month, terminate as in other counties inside of a week. From the injustice with which our neighbours in common with ourselves, have long suffered from this civic connection, they are about to relieve themselves. But this, however advantageous to them, will but add to the sum total of our burdens since our courts will be as open, and as attractive to them, as to the rest of the province for whom we have the honor to do business. Hence we may expect very little diminution in the amount of business for the settlement of which, we have the privilege of supplying juries just when it does it suit us, and the expense of which, will go to swell the very handsome expenditure we have the enviable destination of being responsible for. During the recent agitation for the separation of this county from the city, and the selection of some more central county seat, we have frequently shown that we gain nothing by being connected with Toronto, save increased taxation and inconvenience. To go over again the facts and figures in proof of this, is quite unnecessary. Every well informed man in the county is fully aware of them, and fully aware also, that this act of separation involves no outlay that we have not abundant means to meet. If then there was a clear case in our favor, it is now vastly strengthened and therefore the greater necessity that some active measures should be taken to secure redress of our grievances, which as long as our connection with the city lasts, will be continually augmenting. Had there been such unanimity of purpose and action, as we advised nearly a year since, the dissolution so desirable might have been now effected, but just at the crisis when energy was most needed, and would in all probability have been effectual to secure the end desired, the apathy of those entrusted with the direction of the movement, suffered it to fall through, without having accomplished anything save directing attention question. The question urgently presents itself is the effort for separation to be abandoned? If we, knowing our grievances and protesting against them; knowing also, that in this effort lies our only reasonable chance of redress, allow it to be abandoned, we deserve to suffer, and should at least hold our peace and pocket the wrongs we have not the energy to remedy. What is to hinder us effecting a separation if the matter is taken up with proper spirit, and persevered in? Must this fine county continue for time indefinite to be fleeced and victimized for want of public spirit to protect it, or public men to lead it? We trust not, yet that is just our present position. We are sorry to see that our contemporary, the Era, who seems to be fully buildings, and still make it pay, how much more the whole county unitedly, when it has in its city property, the means for such buildings, already at its disposal. That the Era's scheme might be advantageous compared with the present state of things, is quite probable; but that it would, in comparison with the advantages accruing from a united separation, be a clear loss, is in our opinion beyond question. There is, moreover, no necessity that this county should be broken up into two smaller ones, thus burdening the people thereof with the expense of double sets of officials and buildings.— Yet such must be the ultimate result, if our contemporary's scheme be adopted; for the Southern half would then be worse off than ever, and be compelled to seek relief in the same manner, and double effort, confusion and expense, be required, to do badly what might be well done now, by a united effort of both sections—namely: effect the separation of the whole county from the city.

Why this course should be taken in preference to that of seeking to have the law altered, so as to prevent the transfer to our courts of business that does not naturally belong to them, is evident. The former course would secure to us the possession of a county town in our midst, while the latter would still leave us dependent on Toronto, compelled to travel across the whole county to do our business, and to pay our officials not only for the regular duties of their office, but also for the increased expenditure of a city life. Not in county disintegration, therefore, but in county independence, lies our true interest and that independence and its consequent internal prosperity may be secured by united and earnest effort. Will it be forthcoming? or rather, will it not?

PERSONAL.

We are glad to hear of the fortunate escape of a respected resident of our village, Mr. James Nolan, from the recent Detroit Catastrophe. He was employed on board the "Windsor" and involved in the same peril as the rest of his shipmates. A jump from a fire-doomed vessel and a swim for life are adventures in a man's history of which he is seldom desirous of experiencing a repetition. We congratulate him on his escape.

Correspondence.

Pedants.

To the Editor of the York Herald, My DEAR EDITOR.—How are you; how is Mrs. Editor, and all the little Editors. Pardon my rough speech, but I must speak in good old English tongue; that tongue in which my mother sung her lullaby, and my father drove his oxen. The reason I ask an excuse, is because in this day of learning, it has become so uncommon to speak plain, I thought perchance you would have some nice compliment from the "classics," which would be more in the fashion of the day in which we live; but if you do not like it, hundreds of your readers will, because they will have an opportunity of knowing what I mean, and not be like myself who just now took up a paper for the purpose of reading a bit of news, and the first thing I set my eye upon, was from a "Paris special correspondent," which I undertook to read. It commenced in a very nice manner as if the writer knew everything, and a little besides. He had something to say about German affairs—and said "the unsettled affairs of Germany still keep us all on the qui vive. I stopped and looked, and thought, but do my best I could not learn what kind of a thing they were kept on—so I passed on; but alas soon found another difficulty which led me into a still worse maze,—he says of Napoleon, "he has got over the little centre temps at the Oden, some weeks back, and those who come in daily contact with him inform us that tout n'est pas couleur rose. Here was a regular jargon of which I could not tell a word. I passed on, but was soon stuck again, by finding him saying "there was no fear the Emperor's wishes not being carried out la lettre.—By this time I began to be amazed, and thought I would go on though I could not get one clear sentence. The Emperor and Empress have been anything but gracious to those deputies who have gone over to the tiers parti, I should like to know where that is, I never heard of such a place before—speaking of clubs, he says many where eating and drinking are allowed, are also sources of temptation to young men. Then he has something to say about gambling, of which he says, there has been going on in the Peninsula, where the agents of the police have lately found the roulette, rouge et noir, and trente et quarante are played, and where those are foolish enough to frequent the houses of ces dames are sure to be fleeced in a merciless manner. I had scarcely read half a column, but here I threw it away, disgusted with such stuff; and asked myself the question—is this the kind of stuff to send out for readers like myself who have not had the opportunity of swallowing classical dictionaries. No doubt you, the doctor, minister, and a few others may understand it, but is that any reason why unfortunates like myself, should remain in the dark? No, I say it is an imposition on those who pay for plain reading, and humiliating those who have felt proud of their mother tongue, and have believed it to contain within itself every facility to make the most obtuse idea as clear as the pebbled brook. Has the English language proved a failure, that language in which her poets sung, and philosophers made laws for the world? No such a thing—it is the same in which Shakespeare and Milton wrote, and needs not to be checked to the unintelligible jargon of foreign trash, to add to its beauty or increase its power, and those who cannot write a short letter without such, are either contemptible pedants, who wish to show the world that they are classical scholars, or else they are of that class who would be better employed at some calling, for which by nature they have been better adapted.

THE LOSERS AND THEIR LOSSES.

In the case of Groesbeck & Co., Ross, it would seem, had deposited with the firm twenty Michigan Central Railroad bonds, purporting to be the original documents he had purchased from the same gentleman a short time previous, but in reality, cleverly executed forgeries. Upon their deposit Messrs. Groesbeck & Co. loaned the man $1,000, with which he decamped, the forger being discovered some days later. The entire amount of money fraudulently obtained amounts to $365,787, and the losses by the operations are as follows:—

Table with 2 columns: Name, Amount. Includes David Groesbeck & Co. $19,000, Cronise & Co. $5,062, Black & Spaulding $3,125, The Union Bank $120,000, The Continental Bank $90,000. Total $355,187.

CRONISE AND CO. VS. THE CONTINENTAL BANK.

The reader will remember that it was stated that Ross, having called upon the firm of Cronise & Co. to receive fifty thousand dollars in gold, had tendered in payment a cheque for the sum of $63,602, drawn on the Continental Bank, and bearing what purported to be the certification mark of the first teller. Messrs. Cronise & Co. affirm that they at once sent this cheque to the bank, whence it was never duly returned, as alleged, with the assurance that the certification mark was genuine. In support of this assertion a highly interesting conflict has been inaugurated. Mrs. Cronise & Co. reassert that the cheque was received from the bank and declared "good" while Mr. C. F. Timpon, cashier of the financial institution, quite as tenaciously maintains that the cheque was never sent until it reached him through the sex agent, with the clearing house. The changes with both parties were at first confined to mere verbal affirmations made by the disputants and given to the echoes of the street. Inasmuch, however, as the bank and the firm are alike interested in the affair, and to no inconsiderable extent, recourse was had to the press, through the medium of which either of the contending took occasion to reassert to the truth of his version.

The much vexed question is not likely to be at rest for some time to come. Meantime, it is to be hoped that the community will avoid the becoming patience, develop the most prophetic cannot foresee shadow, so positive is each of the parties of the falsity of the statement made by the other.

FIRES IN BRANTFORD.—BRANTFORD, May 8.—On Friday night, the 4th inst., about 12 o'clock, a building in the North ward, occupied by Mr. Smith as a grocery, was totally consumed by fire. The origin of the fire is unknown, but is supposed to be accidental. Insured. On Monday morning the 7th inst., at four o'clock, a frame building, used as a sawing mill, the property of R. L. Brown, Esq., was destroyed by fire. Supposed to be the work of an incendiary. Insured. On Monday morning, the 7th inst., a fire broke out in the hotel of S. Day and was put out by water. The building was insured before much damage was done. Property insured. Again, in the evening of the same day, the small hotel of Mr. South, King's Ward, was discovered to be on fire. The engines were quickly on the spot, and the fire soon put out, but not before the building was pretty much destroyed. This last building was insured for $400 on the building.

Attempted Murder.

A MAN SHOOTS HIS WIFE WITH A SHOOTING GUN.

A man named Robert Gibson, a farmer, residing in the township of Scarborough, was arrested and conveyed to the city hall police station, in this city, yesterday, on charge of having attempted to kill his wife, by shooting her with a shot gun. It seems that the prisoner and his wife had not led a very pleasant life for some time past, and on Thursday, the prisoner seized a gun and fired at Mrs. Gibson, the discharge taking effect in her leg, and lacerating it in a frightful manner. He then decamped, and did not return home until yesterday, when he was taken into custody. In the meantime, his wounded wife had been removed into the city and placed under the care of Dr. Newcombe. Her wounds are yet so very serious that she is unable to leave her bed, but there is hope of her final recovery. The prisoner will be examined before a bench of magistrates to-day.—Leader.

Markham, May 10, 1866.

In the House of Commons on the 19th the debate upon the Reform Bill resumed. Mr. G. H. Curzon, Mr. Bouverie, and Mr. G. H. Curzon, were the chief speakers against, and Mr. Milner Gibson and Mr. Hughes in favour of the measure. The debate was again continued on the 20th—Sir S. Northcote, Mr. Horsman, and others, speaking in opposition, and the Solicitor-General for Scotland, and Mr. Coleridge in support of the bill. The debate was further adjourned to the 23d of April.

A special Vienna telegram of the 19th, to the London Times, says—"It is now highly probable that peace will be maintained between Austria and Prussia. The not purporting to be the reply of Austria to a despatch from Earl Russell is a pure invention. The Austrian Government has received no such despatch as that ascribed to the English Prime Minister. Popular meetings, at which war was strongly denounced, continued to be held in various parts of Prussia.

A Vienna telegram of the 20th, says—"The reply of Austria to the Prussian despatch of the 15th inst., was forwarded to Berlin yesterday. It is said to be one of a purely formal but peaceful character, containing proposals for the simultaneous reduction of the Austrian and Prussian military establishments to a peace footing at an early and fixed date. The day's journal states that rumors are current of an arrangement alleged to have been come to between Austria and Prussia, whereby the former power engages to demobilize her troops by the 25th and the latter by the 26th of April. The accuracy of this report is not vouched for.

FOUND AT LAST.—Yesterday evening, the body of a man, very much decomposed, was found floating in the Don, at the Dou bridge, with a chain and bag attached to the left foot. It was identified as the body of John Nicholson, who left his home near Lesslieville on the 11th of last month, and of whom no trace could be obtained, though diligent search was made, until yesterday. An inquest will be held on the body at ten o'clock this morning, at Kingsbury's tavern King street east.
