

VAUGHAN AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY. AUTUMN EXHIBITION.

The Autumn Exhibition of the Vaughan Agricultural Society opened on Tuesday and Wednesday last, in the village of Burwick, but with scarcely as much eclat as it would have done had the weather been more favourable than it was. All the articles to be exhibited, with the exception of the live stock, should, according to the rules, have been on the ground by ten o'clock, but owing to the severe snow storm which prevailed all Wednesday morning, exhibitors were somewhat tardy, and consequently, when we arrived on the grounds, about eleven, we only found a few wagons and agricultural implements scattered about, while inside the tent a quantity of vegetables, grains and lads' work was in place.

Articles were continually arriving, however, and by two o'clock the aspect of the exhibition was greatly changed. By ten o'clock to-morrow morning, the society having relaxed the stringency of their rules in consequence of the inclement state of the weather, it is expected that a great many more articles will be added, and the exhibition will be something like one might expect from the number of entries that the Treasurer has received. Nearly 1000 entries have been made against about 200 more will be made. The number of visitors present on the first day was of course small, but as Wednesday is the day of the show a large crowd is expected, for in addition to the attractions of the exhibition itself, a ladies equestrian contest will come off. The site of the fair is an ample piece of ground to the south of the village, around which are a number of neat new pens for sheep and swine, and in the centre is a very large tent in which the articles are exhibited. The carriages and implements are exhibited outside, and the cattle will be permitted to ramble about the field.

In Implements the display is very large and varied, and shows that the manufacture of farming machinery and implements receives a great deal of attention in this section of the country. The most extensive exhibitor is the well-known manufacturer of the village, Mr. John Abell, who shows three grain crushers with rollers of different lengths, and an agitator for regulating the feed; a Ball's Ohio combined reaper and mower; a Wood's self-raker; a Dodge's combined reaper and mower, self-raker; a Dodge's Canada Chief, junior, mowing machine; a straw harrow, for hand power; one for either horse or hand power, and one for horse power only; five very fine cast beam and steel landside ploughs, one with a stubble attachment that can be operated without moving the hand from the handle of the plough; a ten horse power threshing machine in which the straw carrier can be made to deposit the straw either to the right or left of the machine as well as in the rear; a clover thresher, and a clod crusher. Mr. John Brown, of Burwick, exhibits two straw cutters, Gunning's patent, with an improvement by himself in the shape of cutting bar, and also a mangle. He also exhibits a cast beam plough with steel landside, and an attachment for removing stubble from the cutter. Another article exhibited by him is Rous' patent plough, in which the mould board can be swung to either side of the beam with the greatest facility, and then held in place by means of a hook. He also shows a grain crusher. Mr. Jno. Burkholder, of Burwick, exhibits a couple of steel-toothed horse-rakes, one of which the driver may ride while it is in operation. Mr. John Elliott, of Burwick exhibits an iron cultivator, Clark's patent. By means of a crooked axle, an arch over the top of the implement, and a lever which is held firmly in notches in the arch, the teeth can be raised and lowered at will. Mr. Elliott also exhibits a common wooden harrow. Mr. Peter Mallaby, of Weston, exhibits what he calls a twelve-bull iron seed harrow, which can be drawn from either end. Eight "bulls" can be attached together, or two can be used alone. Mr. Jas. Coulter, of Weston, exhibits three cast beam and steel mould board ploughs; one of which has a stubble attachment. Mr. Henry Frank, of Vaughan, exhibits a very pretty wooden beam plough. Mr. Joseph Hall, of Oshawa, exhibits a Wood's reaper, self-raker; also, the Farmers Favorite Grain Drill, with nine drills. Messrs. Adams, Wiesner & Co., of Brantford, exhibit the Empire grain drill with ten drills. Messrs. Patterson & Bro., of Patterson, exhibit a straw cutter, and two fanning mills. Messrs. A. & W. Wilson, of Richmond Hill, exhibit a double action fanning mill. The display of light buggies is really very fine. Without any exception they are of elegant design, and in some cases the finish is exquisite, while strength has not been sacrificed to anything of less importance. One of the finest amongst them in all particulars, was that exhibited by Mr. Richard H. Lewis, of Brampton and Streetsville. It is finished and fitted up in a manner to reflect credit on Mr. Lewis' taste. Along with his buggy, he exhibits a turbine wheel churn, the only churn on exhibition, which is somewhat surprising as these articles generally occupy a very large portion of the space devoted to manufactures at such exhibitions as this. Dixon Bros., of Toronto, exhibit a single and a double seated buggy, and a single seated top buggy. Mr. James Shuttleworth, of Weston, and Mr. Elliott, of Burwick, also exhibit a single seated buggy each. Four stonily made, and at the same time handsome looking lumber waggon were exhibited by persons whose names we could not ascertain. Mr. James Shuttleworth, of Weston, and Mr. James Cullum, of Richview, each exhibit a market waggon, but neither of the vehicles calls for special commendation. In the harness department the display is more than half as large as it was at the Provincial Exhibition. The workmanship and material are on the whole very good, but to a great extent finish is lacking. Mr. G. L. Hughes, of Schomberg, exhibits a set of double and two sets of single harness, also a saddle. Mr. Anderson Tegturt, of the same place, exhibits a set of single harness and a set of double harness. The latter is handsome, and has more strength than elegance. He also exhibits a pair of Scotch collars. Mr. W. H. Myers, of Richmond Hill, exhibits a set of single harness, which for appearance should we think, be awarded the palm.

The display of onions is very small, but the samples of that vegetable that are shown are very good.

The few bunches of celery shows are of rather a poor quality. Only four calliflowers were on exhibition, and those were rather stunted in growth. The display of potatoes was large, and embraced some fine samples of a great many different varieties. Among them were a few baskets of excellent Garnet Chillis, peach blous and flukes, and one basket of the new seedling—the Gleason variety. It is said that nineteen bushels of this sort of potato have been raised from one peck of seed, and thus far they have been entirely free from rot. The display of cabbage was very good. We notice several very large solid heads of winter cabbage, besides a few excellent heads of pickling cabbage. In squashes the display was very poor. Only two table squashes, and one moderately large field squash, were on exhibition. A dozen and half very fine citrons were exhibited. There was a pretty large display of field radishes, but only a couple of bunches of garden radishes. The display of carrots was very small and poor, and the same may be said of the beets. There was a large display of turnips. The Swedes were particularly large sized; some of them weighing over thirty pounds; and the white Globe turnips were as fine roots as we could desire to see. There were only three pumpkins on exhibition, and the display of tomatoes was also exceedingly small and far from excellent. In both field carrots, and mangle wuzel, there was a very extensive and excellent display.

In the ladies department there is a very large and varied display. We first noticed some very pretty specimens of hair wreaths. There was also a large display of worsted and Berlin wool work, but on the whole it is rather below the mark. There were a couple of pair of slipper patterns worked rather prettily; and the article in the shape of the Prince of Wales' feather, surrounded by a wreath, composed of the rose, shamrock and thistle is a very creditable specimen of work and far superior to the other articles of that classification that surrounded it. Two rag mats were rather pretty specimens of that kind of work. In counterpane cases there were exhibited two rather brilliant woven ones, and some pretty white ones. Beside the latter there is a great variety of knitted articles. There are also several tolerably pretty specimens of braiding, and a child's dress is exhibited, the front of which is very elaborately and beautifully embroidered. A large assortment of gentlemen's shirts, the work of fair fingers, next attracts attention. In most of them the work is far superior to the material in which it is executed. There is one of the shirts, however, the front of which is embroidered in an extremely beautiful manner, and the texture of the material is quite in keeping. Messrs. Gooderham & Worts exhibits a case of millinery, &c., in which there were some charming bonnets, and brilliant trimmings for the same. Different parties exhibited home-made blankets, which looked exceedingly comfortable; and the proprietors of the Woodbridge Woollen Mills, Mr. Wallace, of Burwick, and Roe Bros., of that place, exhibited several rolls each of colored and white flannel. Mr. H. Armstrong, of Burwick, exhibited an assortment of plain and colored photographs, of cabinet size, some of which were pretty fair, and others but indifferent. In all, except the work of one young lady, Miss Blauch Arnold. Her pencil drawings of "a head" and "the Young Cavaliers," are really finely executed, and in the latter, the shading is done evidently with great care and attention. Another of her pictures, representing a shepherdess standing watching her sheep that are grazing on the side of the hill, is worthy of special notice as exhibiting her correctness in drawing the forms of animals and her skill in treating foliage. Her "Italian Girl" in water colors, is a rather good specimen of this description of drawing; but the nose is defective, and the curve by which the neck joins the shoulder is rather hard and unnatural. Her "Chassanar" possesses the requisite life, but many of the outlines are rather hard, and in some points as much care has evidently not been bestowed on the shading as in some of her other pictures. Abstracts from Globe.

The prize list will appear in our next issue.

AN AWFUL STORY.

There was once an awful little girl, who had an awful way of saying "I will do it" to everything. She lived in an awful house, in an awful street, in an awful village, which was an awful distance from every other awful place. She went to an awful school, where she had an awful teacher, who gave her awful lessons out of awful books. Every day she was so awful hungry that she ate an awful amount of food, so that she looked awful healthy. Her hat was awful small, and her feet were awful large. She went to an awful Church, and her minister was an awful preacher. When she took an awful walk she climbed awful hills, and when she got awful tired she sat down under an awful tree to rest herself. In summer she found the weather awful hot, and in winter awful cold. When it didn't rain there was an awful drought, and when the awful drought was over, there was an awful rain. So that this awful girl was all the time in an awful state, and if she don't get over saying "I will do it" about everything, I am afraid she will, by and by, come to an awful end.

[We know many who might profit by perusing the foregoing "awful paragraph." —EN. YORK HERALD.]

Dr. Briggs is centrally located in New York on the corner of Broadway and Fulton Street, where he has a nice suite of rooms for the accommodation of those who call to undergo operations upon the feet, which are not at all painful, but a sure cure. Many and many a man who limps into the Doctor's office goes away again soon rejoicing as though he had been restored from an afflicting lameness to sound health. Dr. Briggs has established a permanent branch office at No. 6, King Street, West, Toronto, Canada. His Modern Curative for corns, bunions, ingrowing nails, &c., is sold by druggists and country merchants generally.

RICHMOND HILL, Oct. 29, 1869.

THE COMING CONTEST IN RENFREW

The candidates for Parliamentary honors in North Renfrew are having a lively time. Meetings are being held, and the gentlemen who are desirous of sacrificing themselves on the altar of their country, are laying their claims to martyrdom before the sovereign people, with a view to making their election sure. We believe that Sir Francis Hincks is meeting with a cordial welcome in his old Riding, and has every assurance of a triumphant victory—a consummation devoutly wished for by all moderate politicians. Those who are familiar with the Globe's tactics, for the past twenty years, are not surprised to find it violently opposed to Sir Francis Hincks, it being well understood that he is a tower of strength to the present administration. As a financier, we know that he has not his equal in the Dominion; and as a party leader, he has in past times proved himself more than a match for the great chiefs of the opposition.

SABBATH SCHOOL CONCERT AT THORNE HILL.

There's naught so stockish, hard and full of rage, But music for a time doth change its nature." Such was the experience of one of the world's great men, as he remembered with gratitude the solace he found in the writings of the "poet skilled in harmony"; and such were the feelings of all who were privileged to attend the Wesleyan Sabbath School Concert, given at Thorne Hill, on Wednesday evening, October 20. Everything seemed to conspire to make the entertainment what it proved to be—one of the best ever given in Thorne Hill, and one of the best it has been our lot to attend. The evening was all that could be desired; the bright full moon hung lustrous in the sky, while far in the background one might see the mellow shade, Glitter like a swarm of fire-flies tangled in a silver braid." Thus nature, in harmony with the occasion, put on its grandest dress, and the bright world's "warbled in their ceaseless march" (at least so we thought) as we wended our joyous way over some four or five miles of beautiful road to be present at the anniversary. But although we are somewhat given to dreaming and fancying about things real and otherwise, especially under such a sky, and on such an evening, yet nature in all her twilight beauty and rhythmic harmony scarcely prepared us for what awaited us in the church, which, pro tem, was converted into a concert hall for the children. Especially as we believe the loftiest stamp of beauty is in the "human face divine," and the sweetest harmony of all is in the human voice.

The building itself was tastefully (not extravagantly) decorated with evergreens—wreaths interwoven with Hawthorn berries encircled the chandelier and sialerians, beautifully illustrating how the same sun that gives elasticity to youth, also ripens old age. Rich vines of the same material were, like some precocious children of ambition, climbing the pillars of the gallery, as ill-content until they reached its summit. All combined to add to the interest of the audience, which was large, and composed of all ages—most indeed were young, but here and there you could discover some who bore the "Searing finger-marks of time."

That link the present to the past." But the platform was the chief attraction; for the front of it was occupied by Miss Reid, who presided at the instrument, supported on the right by the superintendent of the school, Mr. Purkiss. Behind them on graduated seats extending over the communion rails and pulpit were seated the children, numbering about 120. The sight was highly entertaining; their white dresses, sparkling eyes and happy faces, led one to think of other robes, nobler seats and sweeter songs than are allotted to us on earth.

After the usual "welcome" was sung in full chorus by the school, prayer was offered by Mr. Carson. We do not wish to particularise or draw comparisons; the pieces were not only appropriate, but were all executed with a skill and pathos that could only result from careful training. They were all met by a hearty appreciation on the part of the large audience, and many were "enchored." When the programme was completed, the "Bridge" was loudly called for by the audience, and given by Miss Reid, with such sweetness and power as seemed for the moment to link your spirit with that of the author while he is yet inspired to pen the "immortal poem." Short addresses were delivered by the Revs. Jno. Bredin, and W. W. Carson. Mr. Bredin pronounced the benediction, and the audience retired, satisfied that singing sacred songs was not an unimportant part of Sabbath School tuition. And that for no other reason than because music stands above all the utilities of sound, because it appeals to the sentiments of man, because it is soul claiming kindred with soul, that man has loved it first among the spiritual possessions of the world, and has sought in its voice a response to his longings for the good and fair.

Although the tickets were but fifteen cents each, the results of the Concert amount in all to about forty-five dollars, which will be appropriated to Sabbath School purposes.—Com.

"THE PEOPLE'S JOURNAL."

We are in receipt of the "Prospectus Number" of the People's Journal, to be published every Saturday, at Hamilton, by John Maclean & Co. It will advocate the encouragement of home industry, and the "filling up of the country with a manufacturing population, whose requirements would secure for our farmers, 'on the spot, a home market of which 'they could not be deprived.'" Judging by the ability displayed in the number before us, and the neat mechanical arrangement of the sheet, we have reason to believe that the People's Journal will be a success. The subject which it purports to advocate is one in which every Canadian is deeply interested; and, as the manufacturing interest of this country has never had fair play in the hands of the Canadian press, we are rejoiced to see that the time has arrived when the public will hear the claims of native industry, as opposed to Free Trade and the encouragement of foreign labor. We confess we sympathise with the Journal's view of this great commercial question, and will be glad to peruse his arguments from time to time. We shall occasionally give extracts from it, in order that our readers may hear what can be said in favor of the policy to be advocated by those who favor encouragement of the manufacturing interest; and commence with the first instalment, copied from the number now before us:

"It is with the material and economical side of affairs rather than the political, that the People's Journal proposes chiefly to deal. Considerations of the former class must largely determine the settlement of our relations towards both Great Britain and the United States; hence the importance of thorough discussion and understanding of the same; and, hence, too, we venture to add—the need of a journal specially devoted to just such a discussion. We claim to be entering upon a comparatively unoccupied and too much neglected field; it will be for the public to say whether we acquit ourselves worthily in its cultivation. After all that the general newspaper press of the country does, or can be expected to do—the manufacturing interests of the Dominion are still of importance sufficient to require a special medium of their own for reaching the public ear—a journal to perform were it no more than the humble task of collecting and for some time preserving in readily attainable and convenient form, the best of what is said from week to week on questions of industrial economy. What policy shall be tented to make Canada a completely-equipped and self-sustaining nation, and give full and varied employment to the people?—this is the question to which The People's Journal will chiefly address itself."

MAGISTRATES.

We copy the following from the Aurora Banner; these are views that are pretty generally entertained throughout the country, and apply to every county in the Province:—

"We would distinctly state that the remarks we are about to make are not caused by and have no special reference to the case of Appleton vs. Lepper, which lately occupied the law courts in Toronto. We have always thought, in common with, we believe, a majority of the intelligent portion of the public, that the system of appointing magistrates in the country is fraught with evil. Indeed, the same system which is in vogue in England, where better educated men are to be procured than in Canada, has long been found to work badly and make 'Justice's justice' a by-word. How can men, without any legal education, taken from their counters or their farms, be expected to administer law? Would it not be far better to have in each county a couple of three stipendiary Magistrates—men who are acquainted with the law and have the nerve to administer it? We have far too many magistrates who have been appointed for political reasons and have no claims either socially or intellectually for the position. We understand Mr. Sandfield MacDonald sees the injustice of the present system, and we hope he will endeavor to amend it."

OLD CANADIAN RECORDS.—We invite the attention of our antiquarian readers to the old Canadian records we have commenced in this number. We purpose to continue them to the end, as stated in last week's issue.

A MODEL CONSTABLE.—RETURN.—A constable pursued a thief, who took refuge on a stump in a swamp, and pulled up after him the rail on which he went out. The constable made the following return: "Sight. 'able—convertible—non est come-at-able"—in swampum—on stumpum—rails-up."

A VALUABLE HORSE.—Our neighbor, Mr. Robert Ferris, sold his horse, "Little John" for $700 last week. This horse took the first prize at the New York State Fair, held at Elmira, in August last. Mr. Ferris, it will be recollected, imported a valuable horse this year from Scotland—"Scottish Chief"—which took the first prize for 3 year olds, at the Provincial Exhibition, at London, this autumn. Mr. Ferris would not own an inferior horse.

NEW FIRM.—Our readers will observe by an advertisement in another column that Mr. G. Barnard, of our town, has entered into partnership with Mr. Daniel Spry, of Toronto, as wholesale and retail dealers in groceries, wines, liquors, &c., at No. 135 Yonge St., Toronto, in the premises lately occupied by Messrs Shaw & Campbell, adjoining Best's hotel. Mr. Barnard's business tact requires no commendation from us, as he is well known as one of the best and most active business men in this neighborhood. Mr. Spry is very well known in Toronto, and has many sincere friends in that city, which will, no doubt, give this firm a high position. With Mr. Barnard's numerous country acquaintances and Mr. Spry's city connection, they will not fail to do a large and profitable trade. Our farmers, we mean those who buy large supplies of groceries in the city, cannot do better than give this new firm a visit. Mr. Barnard's business in this village is still carried on under the able management of Mr. Suddaby.

POTATOES.

To the Editor of the York Herald. Sir: I have heard considerable boasting and blowing about fine potatoes; so I will just tell you what I have raised: I will go back as far as the year 1843, when I planted 2 whole potatoes in one hill, the product of which was 133 potatoes, and measuring just half a bushel. They were Early Junes and were fit for use one week before the Kidney potatoe, which were planted the same day.

This year the product of 1 potato—cut with two eyes in a piece, and planted with two pieces in a hill—was 53 potatoes, and weighed 28 lbs.; these were the Garnet Chillis, six of them weighing 6½ lbs, and all perfectly sound. Another variety called the White Rock, cut and planted the same way, produced 125 potatoes, which weighed 21½ lbs. In this variety there were several rotten. If anybody has done better than this I would like to hear of it. Yours, &c., ELIJAH MILLER. Richmond Hill, October 16, 1869.

GREAT SUFFERINGS.—How many thousand ladies, both old and young, have passed through great suffering from that terrible demon Neuralgia, some passing sleepless nights, twisting about in great agony, but succeed in getting relief after a few hours of misery only to be renewed again in a short time by the unrelenting excruciating pain. Others have had to endure this torture for weeks at a time, both day and night, until nearly exhausted, and almost wishing for the angel of death to relieve them. But hope dawns; a cure has been discovered; a rapid and reliable cure. The remedy is called Dr. J. Briggs' Allevarator. It can be tested free all hours of the day at 6 King St. West, and is sold by all druggists.
