CHILD AND MAN

The children wandered forth in May, To cull the lilies blowing; But Willie pouted—he would stay,

So many girls were going. And then he cried, with laugh of jdy, Like voice of falling waters, "
'Mamma, I'm glad you bought a boy,
Why will some folks buy daughters?

I'm glad I've not to wear a cloud, And such a dress as Anna's; She scolds me when I'm rude and loud, And says I've horrid manners!"

But time brings change as on it whirls, And Willie, silly pated, Could wish there were a hundred girls, Where only one's created! 'Tis said a bridal's very near-

I hear 'tis pretty Anna's; She's not afraid of Will, 'tis clear, For all his horrid manners! This very day the wedding gay Will happen, say the knowing; And Willie goes to church to day Because a girl is going!
