Odds and Ends

A FRENCH barber's signboard reads, thus, "To-morrow the public will be shaved gratuitously." Of course it is always tomorrow. The healthy heart of a man makes about 73 beats a minute. A little wine will increase the pulsation to 90 beats a minute. The surest way of governing, both in a family and in a kingdom, is for a husband and a prince to yield at certain times something of their prerogative. The avaricious man is like the barren, sandy ground of the desert, which sucks in all the rain and dew with greediness, but yields no fruitful herbs nor plants for the benefit of others. Persons who are always innocently cheerful and good humored are very useful in the world; they maintain peace and happiness, and spread a thankful temper among all who live around them. Would the philosophers who in council solemnly defined a human being to be "a two-legged animal without feathers" maintain their definition if they saw the young ladies in full feather now-a-days? The most remote planet is of the least specific gravity, and each in succession inwards is of greater specific gravity, the nearest to the sun being the most dense or of the greatest specific gravity. When a penny bank was established at Putney, and the deposits were added up at the end of the year, a brewer who was on the committee remarked, "Well, that represents 30,000 pints of beer not drunk." At a meeting of the Hull Town Council an alderman complained of the absence of a certain councillor. "Sir," exclaimed a councillor, indignantly, "you ought to have made that complaint when he was present." "PA, has the world got a tail?" asked an urchin of his father. "No, child," replied the father; "how could it have one when it is round?" Well, why do the papers say, 'so wags the world' if it hasn't got a tail to wag? The interpretation in English of the names of German commanders is sufficiently curious. For instance, Steinmetz means a stone cutter; Falkenstein, the falcon rock; Mantuffel, man devil; and Eulenberg, the castle of owls. A FARMER in Hampshire recently forwarded a letter to a neighboring town, requesting the postmaster to deliver it "to any respectable attorney." After ten days it was returned with the significant indorsement: "None here."

"Show me the man who struck O'Dohery," shouted a pugnacious little Irishman at an election; "Show me the man who struck O'Dohery and I'll—" "I am the man who struck O'Dohery," said a big, brawny fellow, stepping to the front; and what have you got to say about it?" "Och sure," answered the small one, suddenly collapsing, "and didn't you do it well?" WILL you do me a favor?" said young Brooks to his wealthy friend, Simon Hanson. "What is it, George?" said Hanson. "I wish you to lend me twenty pounds, sir."—"Call at my counting-house," rejoined Hanson. George was not long in paying his respects. What security can you give, young gentleman?—"My personal security, sir."—"Very well, get in here," said Hanson, lifting up the lid of a large iron chest. "Get in here!" exclaimed George, in astonishment, "what for?"—"Why, this is where I always keep my personal securities."

TO YOUNG WOMEN.—Do not trust to uncertain riches, but prepare yourself for every emergency in life. Learn to work, and be not dependent on servants to make your bread, sweep your floor, or mend your clothes. Above all, do not esteem too lightly those young men who sustain themselves by the work of their own hands, while you favor and receive into your company those lazy, idle fellows, who never lift a finger to help themselves as long as they can keep body and soul together, and get funds sufficient to live in fashion. JOSH BILLINGS says: contentment, in this age of the world, either means death, or decay, in the days of Abraham, contentment was simply ignorance. Show me a thoroughly contented person, and I will show you an useless one. What we want is folks who won't be contented, who can't be contented, who get up in the morning, not simply to have their bed made, but for the sake of getting tired; not for the sake of nourishing contentment, but for the sake of putting turpentine in some dead place, and stirring up the animals. Contentment is not designed, as a stiddy bizzness, for the sons of men, while on this earth. A yellow dog, with a tin little tew his tale, champing a bill, at a three munit gate, is a more reasonable spectacle for me, than a stilly snail, contented and happy.

NOISELESS MOVEMENT, GREAT SPEED. WHEELER & WILSON

SEWING MACHINE!

Gold Medal, Paris Exposition, 1870; 82 Competitors. FULL INSTRUCTIONS GRATIS. EVERY MACHINE WARRANTED. TESTIMONIALS. Mr. C. CHAPMAN, Dear Sir,—I had been informed by interested parties that the Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine was not to be depended upon, which for a time induced me to defer purchasing one. After your description of said machines, I purchased one, and Mrs. Fawcett, who is well acquainted with other machines, states that after a year's trial in various kinds of work she can confidently recommend it as a useful family sewing machine, and as all that you stated it to be. M. FAWCETT, Wesleyan Minister, Markham March 18th, 1870.

Mr. C. CHAPMAN, Dear Sir,—We have used the Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine about nine years, and during that time it has cost nothing for repairs. We saw heavy filled cloth with coarse linen thread, stronger than can be done by hand; while all fine stitching on light fabrics gives the best satisfaction. We can with confidence recommend the Wheeler and Wilson Sewing Machine as the best for family use. SAMUEL REESOR, Cedar Grove, March 18, 1870.

Kindly permitted to: Mrs. James Newton, jun., Mrs. Atkinson, Mrs. Clarke, Miss White, Mrs. William Harding, Mrs. Alex. Marsh, Miss Sanderson, Mrs. Jos. Keller, Mrs. D. Heise, Mrs. Henry Lever.

IMPORTANT TO PARTIES USING MACHINERY.

STOCK'S EXTRA MACHINE OIL. This oil excels all others for Lubricating purposes, both animal and vegetable. We are prepared to have the merits of this oil tested against all oils now being used on machinery—both light or heavy; from a clock or sewing machine, to the heaviest of Steam-boat shafts.

The following are the points in which it excels all other oils: It will not gum, hence machinery can be kept clean with but little trouble, and it will clean machinery that has been gummed by other oils. It will not congeal or thicken in the coldest of winter—this is a quality of the highest importance, from the fact that an oil not having this quality will not lubricate a cold shaft, such an oil may be applied in a heated state; but the moment it touches a cold shaft it is congealed, and it will not lubricate until the journal, by friction, acquires that temperature necessary to reduce it to a liquid state. In acquiring a higher temperature by friction, the journal expands, and the box is injured. It is impossible to use oil that will chill on a cold shaft without this result, as it is free from all objections urged against all other oils as it neither gums or freezes.

Now, as the public are aware that many worthless things are passed into notice, in order to prove that this is no humbug, and at the same time to secure ourselves against the operations of unscrupulous oil agents; many of whom will not hesitate to palm off the mere oil of oil refiners, as being identical with Stock's extra machine oil; we propose to those who are largely interested in the truth of those statements, to send to them on application, by express, or otherwise free of charge, a sample of the oil that it may speak for itself, we will with the sample furnish applicants free of charge, with a few simple tests as effective, as those tests by which Gold is known from the base metals, and which will enable parties ordering to secure themselves against imposition, by enabling them to determine at once, whether the oil forwarded is as good as sample. All parties interested in the lubricating oil trade, before purchasing elsewhere will do well to communicate with
