-The famine in Persia which now seems to be drawing near it close has been produc-tive of an amount of misery almost unparalleled in modern times. Captain Pierson, an Englishman who has recently traveled in that unhappy country, describes the last stage of the famine as worse than the first. On his journey from Shinaz to Teheran he found the road strewn with half-eaten corpses; cannibalism was very prevalent, and starvation had aroused the usually peaceable inhabitants to despair, and brigandage and other crimes of violence were rife all along the roads. In the capital alone, out of a population of eighty thousand, at least twenty thousand has fallen victims to the EIGHT PER CENT!! famine and its attendant diseases.

No gold quartz has been struck; but as the color does not appear far beyond the fort it is thought that coarse gold and quartz will eventually be found in the neighborhood. The country is generally a level prairie, and presents but few obstacles to mining operaions, the river is sufficiently rapid for sluicing and washing purposes. The soil is rich, and samples of wheat and of corn of a superior quality were exhibited. It is expected there will be a rush of miners to the Sas-katchewan and Shebandowan next summer. "No line to Make Money."

A lecture committee once urged Professor A lecture committee once urged Professor Agassiz to deliver a course of lectures, on the ground that it would yield him a large sum of money. "I have no time to make money," was the cool and startling reply. They were noble words for our day, when scholars seem as eager as merchants to win wealth. They proved his devotion to win wealth.

to win weatth. They proved his devotion to study and science.

Michael Faraday, who recently died in England, had a familiar spirit. He could have made a splendid fortune by giving advice to practical chemists who were making articles for popular use. But his en-thusiasm in scientific study was so slacere that he would not turn aside to gain wealth giving himself wholly to scient fic pursuits rather than to make a large fortune by sacrificing his valuable time.

cing his valuable time. This should be the spirit of every true scholar. Learning and service to one's race are far better than wealth.

DEATH FROM HYDROPHORIA-Nine weeks ago to-day, says the Detroit Post of the 1st inst., a boy about 8 years of age named Charles Schmidt, living on Orleans street, near Maple, was delivering papers on Silver street in this city, when a dog belonging to a man named Charles Zimmer jumped out from the vard of his master and attacked the boy. The dog bit him severely on the hip, and medical aid was immediately sought.

Drs. Flintermann, Kaiser and Mulheron were called in, and it was decided to cauterize the wound, which, however did not have the desired effect. all right.
