HEAVEN. -" When I was a boy, I thought of heaven as a great, shining city, with vast walls, and domes, and spires, and with nobody in it except white, tenuous angels who were strangers to me. By and by my little brother died; and I thought of a great city, with walls, a d domes and spires, and a flock of cold unknown angels, and one little follow that I was acquainted with. He was the only one I knew at that time. Then another brother died, and there were two that I knew. Then my acquaintances began to die and the flock centinually grew. But it was not till I had sent one of my little children to his Grandparent—God—that I began to think that I had got a little in myself. A second wont, a third went, a fourth went; and by that time I had so many acquaint-ances in heaven, that I did not see any more walls, and domes, and spires. I began to think of the residents of the colestial city.

And now there have so many of my acquair tanc's gone there, that it sometimes seems to me that I know more in heaven than I do
