of the official investigation, that the loss of lage Council not far from Uxbridge, by a the White Star steamship "Atlantic," and the appalling sacrifice of life which attend ed it, must take rank in the list of prevent owner of the house on fire should sound the able disasters. In regard to the due ap portionment of blame, it is perhaps too soon seize their pails and proceed to the scene of to form an opinion. Without reference to clear enough, first, that the captain is guilty of fatal neglect of duty. Making all du-allowance for the mistake about his reckon ing, which the most competent of navigators might conceivably have made, there remains the crushing fact against him that he left the bridge when he knew that he was approach ing a dangerous coast with which he and all but one of his officers were totally unfamiliar. He cast no lead and he caused no extra vigilance to be used, and while he quietly slept below, the great ship with its living freight was driving on to certain de-struction. Captain Williams has a heavy struction. Captain Williams has a heavy most inhuman to pile reproaches upon him but nobody can think of those 546 corpse that lie in and around Prospect Bay and calmly judge the man whose carlessness an incompetence were the immediate causes of their death.

When the captain went below shortly after midnight, he left the ship in charge o its proper officers during the middle watch After he has been judged for leaving a pos which no prudent captain would have left under the circumstances, to a subordinate what shall be said about the fidelity of thos who were left in charge of the vessel? Th night is now ascertained, contrary to the first reports, to have been clear. In such weather Sambro Light can be seen at a distance of 18 miles. But the point where the "Atlantic" struck is but nine miles distant from Sambro, and yet neither the lookou nor the officer on the bridge appears to have observed it. It seems incredible that on starlight night it should have been possibl for a large ocean steamer to run upon the rocks of a coast which any "watch" de serving the name could have perceived in time to reverse the engines and save vessel. The incompetency of the captain was clear ly shared by his second officer, and the carelessness which he showed in preferring his own ease to the safety of the 900 human beings entrusted to his charge, had evidently communicated itself to the men who composed the starboard watch on that fatal

But after all this has been said the question will arise, why did the "Atlantic" go to Halifax at all? She was but ten days out and there were but 127 tons left of her coal supply and only two days of additional provisions for cabin and steerage passengers.

The Liverpool agents of the White Star Line profess themselves astounded at the rapidity with which an "unusually large" supply of coal had been consumed. Either their notions of a large supply are miserably inadequate, or the quality of the coal was execuable. From either of these conclusions there is no escape, and in either case their responsibility is a very grave one. The facts are, however, only part of a vicious system which this line has for some time pursued in regulating the passages of its steamships. If we mi take not the steamers which this company can draw upon do not exceed five in number. The outside "sched ule time," i. e the time between leaving Liverpool and the hour of leaving New York again-allowed to each boat was sixteen days, and in the case before us the "Atlantic" could not have kept the adver tised date of her return trip with a longer passage than 12 days. With a fleet six times as large as the White Star Company the Aachor Line has never instituted any "schedule time" at all, and the other com-panies allow from 18 to 23 days, with fair margin for any unforseen casualities. White Star Commander was more a slave to his "schedule time" than a street car conductor, and frequent departures from it would inexitably have cost him his place. Captain Williams occupied a position which required sleepless vigilance and consummate required sleepless vigitance and consummate skill. He fell very far short of exhibiting evidences of either. The company that employed him were committed to a task in the execution of which the highest type of officers and the best disciplined crews in the trade might have failed. They seem to have exercised but little care in selecting either, ind then sent them luck which is absolutely criminal. The terrible catastrophe which has been the result of combined recklessness and neglect has at least this obvious advantage, that its warning will not readily be forgotten either by the steamship companies or the travelling public.—S. A. Journal.

Negro Rebellion.

STIRRING NEWS FROM NEW ORLEANS .-- ONE HUNDRED NEGROES KILLED.

NEW ORLEANS, April 15 .- The steamboat Southwestern, which arrived this afternoon brings stirring and important news from Grant Parish. The whites have retaken Colfax, and there is not a negro to be found for miles around. From passengers we glean the following: - The negroes had strongly entrenched themselves in the court house, and built breastworks three to four feet high. There were, it is said, about 400 men armed and equipped thoroughly. On men armed and equipped thoroughly. On Saturday, at about twelve 2 clock about 150 having the old Field Notes, of the late D, men had gathered from the surrounding Gisson and other surveyors, which should be parishes made an attack on the breastworks, and a brisk fight was kept up until somewhere near three o'clock. The breastworks were then stormed and captured, the negroes | Township of York. taking refuge in the Court house, the doors of which were berricaded. After some fur ther fighting the negroes threw out a flag of truce, and several detachments of men advanced on it, when they were fired on by the besieged party, wounding several, one of whom was Capt. Hadwot, who was shot in the bowels and, it is feared, fatally wounded. They retreated outside of the breastworks, and as the only way of dis lodging negroes, the Court House was set on fire, and they were shot as they came from the burning building. It is reported that between 80 and 100 negroes were killed, and that there were none afterward to be found for miles around. The captain of the Southwestern makes the following statement :- We arrived at Colfax on Sun day evening about eight o'clock, and the white people, with the sheriffs at their head I supposed had captured the town, after white people, with the sheriffs at their head I supposed had captured the town, after having a conflict with the negroes It was reported to me that about one hundred negroes had been killed and many wounded. We saw from our boat ten or fifteen lying around on the banks dead. A white man around on the banks dead. A white man was reported killed whose name I did not earn, and two very seriously wounded, Messrs. Hadwot and Harris. Hadwot was shot through the bowels, and supposed to be mortally wounded; we brought Harris and Hadwot'down from Colfax to Alexan dria. Three or four other whites were slightly wounded. About one hundred negroes escaped, but it was reported that the whites were still pursuing them. All the leaders of the riot escaped. The negroes ambuscaded themselves in the Court House, and the whites finding there was no other mode of attack left them, set nre to the building. The whites numbered in the neighborhood of 150. The fight lasted from twelve o'clock until nearly five p. m. The whites are now in possession of Colfax, and when I left late last Sunday night, mode of attack left them, set fire to the everything was very quiet.

The Uxbridge Journal says: "A rather There can be no doubt, even at this stage was suggested at the last sitting of a Vilresident, It was as follows: that a by law be passed that each family be provided with We are anxiously waiting to se whether the Council will adopt this method or not,
