

Correspondence.

To the Editor of the York Herald. Mr Editor: If you would allow space in your valuable columns for this short communication, it might be interesting to many of your readers to know that the temperance demonstration for June 3rd in Mr J Stoutenburgh's grove, Victoria Square, was held according to announcement. At eleven o'clock the Firemen's Band, from Aurora, with the Rising Star banner in front, headed a large procession composed of Prospect Temple, Whitechurch, as a lodge in full regalia, carrying a very pretty banner, after which came Rising Star Temple and Eden temple, followed by many members from other lodges, who had not come in a body but were well represented. A large concourse of people followed the procession to the grove, where a plentiful repast was served at 12 o'clock. In the absence of G. Flint, Esq., who had been invited for chairman, Mr A. McLean was called on to preside over the meeting, when the following ministers delivered addresses: Rev. G. Abbs, Springhill; Rev. E. Middleton, Elora; Rev. Mr Pickering, Aurora; Rev. J. Smith, and Rev. E. H. Sawers, Victoria Square. The speaking was short, pointed, and lively; the music good, and the interest well sustained. At 5 o'clock a tea was served and at 7 o'clock the Victoria Square lodge assisted by Richmond Hill and Unionville, gave a reunion in the Rising Star lodge room, to a large and appreciative audience. The day was that all could be expected, the provisions good and plentiful, the entertainment of all kinds interesting, the feeling happy, and the receipts over $127 which is to increase the already existing fund for the erection of a new lodge room.

ONE WHO WAS THERE. Markham, June 10, 1873.

RICHMOND HILL, June 12, 1873.

To the Editor of the York Herald.

Sir: Who is to blame? This question was asked a good many times last evening in reference to the uproarious and disgraceful noise outside the Hall during Mr Kay's readings. Now Mr Editor it seems to me that when a gentleman of Mr Kay's position and talent generously gives his services for the good of the church, and moreover provides an intellectual feast, such as we seldom have the opportunity of hearing; that he should not be annoyed and an entire audience distressed, and their enjoyment marred by a few unruly boys. Is there no Constable in the village? if not why not swear in a "special" for such an occasion, but on the other hand who are these candidates for the treadmill and the penitentiary, for from the number of deprecations lately committed in the village by boys, some of them will most certainly go there. Why do not their parents or friends see that they do not spend their evenings among bad companions, forming idle habits and using vulgar and profane words. As a resident of the village I spoke to Mr Roome Kay about the interruptions and hoped that he would not be so disgusted as to say he would never pay us another visit, his reply was, that it was excessively annoying but that he did not blame the boys so much as their parents, and that if they would not do their duty by keeping the young offenders out of the street at night the authorities should take the matter in hand and make an example of some of them. I feel sure that among the numerous assembly of the literati of Yonge Street who listened last evening to Mr Roome Kay's masterly elocution there was not one but felt highly indignant that their enjoyment should have been lessened by the outrageous conduct of a few blackguard boys. Let us hope that some steps may be taken to prevent a recurrence of last night's proceedings; with the Raven let us say.

THE MODOCOS.

The following account of the atrocious murder of Indian prisoners by volunteers is given in the Associated Press Telegram, dated June 8:

James Fairchild, and about a dozen other men, left Fairchild's rancho, Cottonwood Creek, with seventeen Modoc captives, including women and children and Shaek Nasty Jim, Bogus Charley, Tehee Jack, Pony, and Little John. The Indians were in a wagon drawn by four mules. At the crossing of the last river the party encountered a body of Oregon volunteers under command of Captain Hizer. The soldiers gathered about the wagon and questioned Fairchild. The latter told them the Indians were all Hot Creek, except Little John, and that there were no charges against them. Fairchild undertook to rush on to Boyle's camp, and the volunteers retired to their camp near Crawley's. On the road, Fairchild noticed two men ahead, riding to Rocky Point, as if to intercept him. When the team approached the two men, one of them presented a needle gun at Fairchild saying, "Get down, you old whitehead individual." "By what authority?" "By mine; I am going to kill the Indians and you," was their reply. The leader caught hold of the mules and unhitched them, cutting the harness. Fairchild, clinging to the lines, leaped to the ground. The poor wretches implored for mercy and begged Fairchild to save them. The warriors were unarmed and knew that resistance was useless. They were the coolest in the party although facing inevitable death, but the women and children shrieked, groaned and wept, piteously. Fairchild had nothing but a small pistol, and six inches from his ear was the muzzle of a needle gun. He says that the tears came into his eyes, and he mingled his entreaties with those of the Modocs, in hopes that the massacre might be averted. He adds: "It was a terrible scene—one I never shall forget. I shudder when I think of what I saw and heard. The fearful voices of those women and children still ringing in my ears, but the cowardly hounds were not to be balked. A shot and Little John lay dead in the wagon with a bullet in his head." The mules dashed away with Fairchild, who became entangled in the lines. Five more shots, by which Tehee Jack, Pony, and Mouch, were killed, and Little John's squaw frightfully wounded in the shoulder. Away ahead on the road, in the direction of Boyle's camp, a cloud of dust was perceived, indicating the approach of a team. The murderers espied the dust, and shortly afterwards were riding rapidly away. Sergeant Murphy, of battery G 4th artillery, with ten men and a teamster, came upon the scene of massacre. Teams with an escort were at once sent to bring the prisoners, dead and alive. No steps were taken for the apprehension of the felons who performed the bloody work. It is generally supposed that the guilty parties were Oregon volunteers. Fairchild is of that opinion himself. The warriors killed were not charged with murder. Every one here condemns the affair as atrocious and without excuse.
