FORLORN HOPES.

Around the lofty throne of the Grits' Idol there were assembled some days since donald? We are afraid not; they would a few of the faithful, to deliberate on the advisibility of petitioning the Governor to postpone the prorogation of Parliament, until the House might have an opportunity to debate on the greatest slander of the day. This step, like all other fruitless ones, was taken at the injuntion of "The Globe," and must consequently be carried out, since it comes directly from the "Little God" himself, O ve Grits! What idiocy! To think that our Governor, who obtained so much popularity immediately after his arrival in Canada, and who has obtained so much abuse at the hands of the Globe, would be swayed favor of publishing some statements in or influenced in any way by a few howling rebels, and led to act so inconsistently and contrary to all precedent, is simply you to believe that I write under a sense absurd. The reasons for the doleful predictions of this disinterested Grit are admirably brought to light by Barnum's agent publishing the following letter, received from P. E. W. Moyer, editor and proprietor of the Times :

MCMULLEN, BY ONE WHO KNOWS. To the Editor of The Leader.

SIR,-As a Canadian I feel greatly aggrieved to see in the public prints the unsullied names of Sir Francis Hincks name to save his life, and who has principally distinguished himself in being connected with several notorious swindles in getting up bogus Insurance Companies the chief of which was the "State Insurance Company of Chicago," and through his agency thousands of farmers throughout the North-west were swindled out of thousands of dollars, and many were reduced to beggary by him.

This McMullen is a Canadian by birth vears, but has, in that brief period, rendered himself a social scourge by borrowignoring the obligation.

He is destitute of honor, principle, or gratitude, and is beyond all cavil the most treacherous, two-faced, insinuating, cheeky, persevering and persistent knave, that has ever rendered the curb-stone famous in Chicago.

How such an adventurer, unknown, penniless, uncouth in his manners, without influence or social standing, and with on 2 cents in the dollar. nothing to recommend him but his unblushing impudence, ill-manner and brassy cheek could think to impose on honorable men is beyond comprehension.

But McMullen regards himself as amply compensated by having his name appear in connection with the list above referred to, even if his role reaches a degree of baseness, meanness and treachery, from which Judas Iscariot would have recoiled with horror.
