EXPULSION OF RIEL.

Mr. Bowell has done his duty nobly. He has put a sudden stop to the policy of delay, evasion and excuse which the Grits hoped to bring to bear upon the Riel case, so as to mould it into political capital. The lie was not ready. They had no time to hatch a sham amnesty. The conspirators were in council but public opinion was too vehement to be manipulated. A political blunder they could not tolerate, but as for the honor of Canada it was never for a moment thought of. Bah! honor is a shadow; air is not so intangible. It is a mere phantom of the fiscal Tory brain. Perish the idea that so practical an individual as a Grit should be enticed into the pursuit of such a mere mirage of the brain as honor. So reasons the subtle Grit intellect. But in the meantime here is this presidential motion of Mackenzie Bowell. A man who is in a hurry and not to be put off, a murmur on his restlessness. Not even time to steal a letter—to patch up a plot—or to manufacture an amnesty out of old despatches. In short, nothing in our line at all my dears, and Fagan's School may as well close if we are to be treated in this way. Now, Bowell is no gentleman to be in such a hurry; a gentleman takes time—and if we had only gentlemen to deal with, it would just be all our fancy painted it. But when sagacity enters the field, it is cunning—then it is time to keep the weather eye open. "In short," says the Ottawa Corporal Trim, or Trimmer would be better; "we have no time to plot, and it must be every man for himself and anyone take the hindmost." And thus it comes to pass that this wonderful Cabinet finds themselves face to face hopelessly divided on an important question that strikes at the very root of the most important laws of civilized life—that is, full protection at all hazards to the life of a true and loyal citizen. Is it the duty of a country to avenge the life of a citizen who has fallen while defending her flag and preserving her name from dishonor? "If not, perish the country for I owe her no duty," says the citizen. We have all heard of that brave private of the Buffs in China, who was brought before a mandarin as a prisoner. "I will bow to no Chinaman that ever yet was born," roundly swore the bold soldier, when commanded to make his obeisance to the official. The poor fellow was cut down where he stood; and hacked to pieces, but for that private soldier England exacted a terrible vengeance that shook that proud Empire to its centre, and which they have not forgotten to this day. In that case we admire the Empire and the citizen both; but where is Canada in this miserable work? Why!—dilly-dally with the question whether the red-handed murderer of one of her bravest and most patriotic sons shall be elevated to a post of honor or tried for his offences. The only man who was not polluted enough to abjure his country by denying her rights, and who died a martyr to his opinions—being slaughtered by rebel hands like a dog, without even experiencing the mercy of a speedy death—is calmly dismissed as if it were a matter of small moment. The Minister of Justice voted against the expulsion of Riel; there may be justice in it but we cannot see it, though we were to consider it till the Day of Judgment. But there is one thing in it; it will secure the support, to some extent, of the French Lower Canadian members to the Government; at least we should suppose so. At any rate, any one can see with half an eye what the great aim and end of all these manoeuvres are. A Ministry that has either a policy or no policy to suit every wind of public opinion just as the occasion may require, cannot be expected to do anything worth speaking of for the great mass of the people do not care for any of this kind of fessing. They want a strong manly Government, fully able to declare its policy and capable of following it out to its legitimate and logical results. In this respect the Grits have miserably failed.

THE DEFICIT.

The Grits are consistant! They have stolen letters—they have reduced libellous scurrillity to an art—they have aided, abetted and consorted treason—and now they are engaged in cooking the Public Accounts. They are consistant! They do not recognise any path to distinction except in villifying their opponents. In the art of detraction and misrepresentation they are masters. Verily the cobler sticks to his last in this case at any rate. They would not be happy unless they found some hole to patch, and for want of a real one they have produced an imaginary one. It is useless to try to make a silk purse out of a sow's ear; and to expect that a Grit Government would behave with dignity and decency on the Treasury benches is as hopeless a political miracle as could find room in the most sanguine imagination. A deficit is announced—figures are produced—but it is to be noticed that this calculation does not extend at all to the end of the present fiscal year, when some large items that would altogether change the equilibrium of the account would come in. "How is it that this fact is not taken into account?" exclaims Dr. Tupper. "Well—hum—haw—hem—it would mislead the public," explains the Leader of the Government. Ah! Yes! exactly gentlemen! at your old tricks. It is no matter how much the public are misled in one direction, but it makes a vast amount of difference if they are misled in a manner that is not soothing to your feelings! "Delenda est Carthago!"

"Our opponents must be destroyed" we should bury our country's credit, our country's honor, and everything that is sacred in the ruins! That is the war-cry of the Grits. They never count the cost if it ends in the destruction of a political opponent, and if he is driven from public life they are jubilant. Now, in reference to the deficit, the Government were repeatedly challenged to give the full figures for the year, instead of a mutilated statement as they have done. Figures generally do not "mislead," they have claimed the character of being "stubborn facts" for too long a time. They're not afraid to see the light except when in possession of those who seek to conceal the truth. But the Government have declined; and yet, notwithstanding all that, they have had the impudence to charge the late Minister with a miscalculation and a deficit. "L'audace, toujours l'audace," shouts Danton, the French agitator. "Impudence always, impudence forever, hip-hip-hurrah for impudence," echoes the Grits. But Time brings his ravages for all that.

Correspondence.

TORONTO CORRESPONDENCE.

OPENING OF THE NEW POST-OFFICE.
This is the most beautiful and elegant building in the city, and is in every way worthy of the capital of Ontario. A marvel of symmetrical order and convenience, and affording every facility for rapid delivery it will, if handled as it deserves, ally a great deal of discontent on the part of the business public, whose impatience was kept from bursting out into a perfect storm only by the prospect of its immediate advent. Boxes were not to be had in the old Post Office and sometimes the Clerks were not over-courteous, whatever was the reason. I dare say they have their own troubles and vexations having an impatient and perhaps at times an unreasoning public, and some times their post-up indignation found vent in "missing the crowd, hit the pigeon." And so a person who was perfectly innocent of a design to give any trouble or annoyance would depart muttering maledictions upon "the impotence of Government employees in general and Post office men in particular." But it is to be hoped that a new era has dawned and that these officials and the public will constitute themselves into a Mutual Admiration Society, and that the courtesy of the one party will be rewarded only by the pleasantness of the other. We do not, by any means, intend to hint by these remarks that Post-office Clerks are inclined to be discourteous—far from it—some of them are, on all occasions, models of courtesy—and serve the public with the grace and patience of a Beau Brummel.

COMMERCIAL.

The commercial sky has been steadily clearing away its weight of gloom, and we have obtained glimpses of sunshine, in the revival of trade and the circulation of the cheering medium—that healer of all ills cases—the mighty dollar. But the horizon is still overhung with a few vapors that still decline to relieve us of their depressing weight. The commercial disasters of '67 are still in vivid remembrance and some uneasy mortals affect to predict a terrible re-actment of the terrors of that occasion—in the approaching year of '77. Traders are cautioned to "beware of the scythe" and to be on their guard against the very impetuosity of caution, would express it. And speculators who are buying up real estate with an idea that it will double in price are warned that they will be laid up by the heels as they were in '67, unless they stretch their operations. Such are the rumors. But so long as a beautiful Providence enriches us with such plentiful harvests we have had, such commercial hurricanes will have but little effect upon our material prosperity, for we are, above all an agricultural nation.

POLITICS.

The Celt, be he either French, Irish, or English, (for all Englishmen are by no means Saxons) is easily excited by an appeal to imaginary wrongs, and is by no means temperate and reasonable under such a peals. On Saturday we saw a tall, stalwart, long-jointed gentleman of our acquaintance, making his way along the street, painfully and carefully picking his way by means of a stick, for one foot was nearly disabled. This gentleman, Mr. Reynolds, is the person who was savagely thrown off the platform at one of O'Donohue's meetings for expressing his disapproval of the Reform Candidate. Mr. Reynolds has been a consistent Reform or for nearly a quarter of a century and he is fairly ought to have a voice in a cause that he has faithfully advocated through blood and had report for such a long time. But when he presumed to give an independent opinion upon the merits of the Candidate, he was instantly assailed by the "roughs," who seem to have made this cause their own, and to the imminent danger of his life, being taken unawares, he was thrown off the platform on to the ground—and his foot so severely injured that he is thereby lamed for life. And has not O'Donohue beautifully fulfilled this gentleman's prediction of his career by voting on the side of treason—and the murderer of Scott? Is not East Toronto bravely represented? Let Dewar and the rest of our religious Grits rejoice!

THE GREAT LONE LAND.

Mr. Laoban Taylor, who is not at all appreciated at his proper value, has given us one of his own grand inimitable discourses on the above subject. By the "Great Lone Land" is meant the great North West Rupert's Land, the Hudson Bay Territory, &c. The loveliness of the vast prairies that spread away in one grand stretch towards the Rocky Mountains, and seem to be bounded only by the setting sun, is wonderfully pathetic and mournful to the traveller. In summer the tall prairie grass undulates like the waves of an ocean as it is swept by the passing breeze—while in winter the stretch of the vast dreary waste is absolutely appalling. Naught to relieve the tear-chilled eye but the frozen earth and the froving sky, and the black horizon round and round, spread void of living sight or sound. These plains are extraordinarily fertile, but the mosquito hangs over an immense cloud like a funeral pall, for his myriad bites are distraction; to quote the words of the eloquent lecturer:—"They cloud the air, they darken heaven's And curse this Western World."

RAMBLE No. 4.

Mr. Editor: I hope you give the "Rambler" a corner in your valuable paper this week, as I want to make a few suggestions to our City Fathers. In the first place let us have an Inspector of Weights and Measures. I think there is a screw loose somewhere. Now how is this to be done? Let our worthy Reeve detail one of our City Fathers for the purpose of purchasing a standard set of Weights and Measures, of course they will become bona fide property of the Corporation; and I hope, at the same time, the officer detailed for this purpose won't charge mileage on his way home last year when two of our worthies were sent to Toronto on a different errand.

Now, Mr. Editor, let it be understood that the "Rambler" is not insinuating anything against any of our storekeepers, butchers or bakers, but in his "Rambles" he has been bold enough to convince him that there is screw loose somewhere. The Inspector-ship won't cost the Corporation a cent as he will take it for chances, for it won't be as old when the Inspector would send word north a week before he would come. Very obliging indeed! I hope our Council will make a move in the right direction for they are all business men and sure to be in next year. Our Village is getting up—three weddings last week. Mr. Snales' span of colts ran away last week—no bread lost. Atkinson beats all—no charge to go in. Mr. Moodie has re-opened a first class store—give him a call. The Inspector is out—look out for him—he must do his duty. Three cases more of new goods came to Crosby's, besides garden tools. "Saw Smith to Brown the other day, 'As into Town they drove,' 'Just put use down at Sheppard's Store, 'I want to buy some Goods.'"
