THE MOST POPULAR PREMIER.

The Globe is angry! In making this assertion we are conscious that we are giving information neither new, entertaining nor instructive. However, the cause of its anger in this case is so peculiar, that we think it well to refer to it that our readers may judge of the thing and govern themselves accordingly. It will be seen that it aims at being the arbiter of public opinion and private affairs in this Canada of ours; and gentle reader, if hereafter you deem it necessary to have an independent opinion of your own on any subject—sacred or profane—which does not chime in with the modern Mrs Grundy, delecto the Globe, you will be admonished in no gentle terms from the polite columns of the organ that such conduct is intolerable. The present cause of its anger originates in the very imprudent action of some ladies in Ottawa, who, in trying to raise some funds for defraying the expenses of church building and other ecclesiastical affairs connected with a Presbyterian church there, held a bazaar, in which, for the amusement, profit and edification of the public, the question of "Who is the most popular Premier?" was, as is usual on such occasions, to be decided by vote. There was a lively sale of votes as our readers may imagine. But Sir John Far- out-distanced his opponent in the race for the bags and was triumphantly crowned with the laurel while Mr Mackenzie was nowhere. The ladies were happy of course, for, besides other causes of congratulation, they reaped a harvest of $600 from their happy inspiration. Besides, did not the little affair prove that Sir John was enthroned in the hearts of the people who know him best. But this is all to the controlling spirit of the Globe. Did ever anyone hear of such impertinence as the ladies of Ottawa have been guilty of in presuming to be the occasion of the undervaluing of the favorite of the organ. Straws show how the wind blows—and the letter-stealers are getting nervous about the coming reckoning; besides parvenus are always jealous of public opinion. They are never at ease. Everything galls them, and they are continually in a nervous fever for fear that everybody remarks that they are in a false position. They know it themselves; they are conscious how fearfully out of place they are, and the situation is a bed of torture from which it would in reality be a mercy to themselves and others to deliver them.

THE NEW FINANCE MINISTER.

The Grits after doing their best to ruin the country by decrying its credit, trading its Government, and running smack into all sorts of political incendiarism, are now compelled to accommodate themselves to the misery of a state of things for which they have no one to thank but themselves. After they had rendered the Pacific Railway scheme impossible, and thus deprived the country of an opportunity that will not soon occur again, of introducing a large amount of English capital; they have only to propose in its stead a miserable system of patchwork, each unit of which will be as difficult of accomplishment as the whole scheme as it was proposed by the late Government, and at the same time more debilitating to the resources of the country. At the same time their ill-judged and unpatriotic clamour prevented the great statesmen who were at the helm of affairs from regulating the revenue according to the increasing demands of a State which was continually in transition; acquiring new territory and consequently accumulating new burdens which would have to be provided for by an increased taxation. This is unavoidable in a state of transition, though on the settlement of the new territories and the adjustment of the body politic as a whole would immediately produce the effect of a decrease in taxation! Now when Mr Tilley made his estimate it will be remembered that he had a host of new difficulties to contend with and that his estimates which at first showed only a deficit of $80,000 was marvellously near the mark. This was afterwards swelled by Railway demands and the expenses connected with the acquisition of new Provinces to $245,000. This would be quite enough to supply the immediate needs of the case, yet Mr Cartwright requires $3,723,000. He could not resist the temptation, which seems to be the besetting sin of the Grits of making the misfortunes of his opponents as large as possible. But let the people clearly understand that we have a matter of $1,200,000 of unnecessary taxation, imposed merely for the purpose of damaging the character of a political opponent. A political proselyte is not the best sort of an individual to trust with an important position. He is generally an eager to prove his devotion to his new friends as to run into all sorts of extremes in order to show how entirely he descends from his former friends. In the present case Mr Cartwright proves his devotion to the newly-espoused cause at the expense of the country. The renegade is as anxious as possible generally to widen the breach between himself and his former associates, so that his intentions cannot be mistaken. Let the public judge whether an individual of this kind is the fittest person to give calm and weighty consideration to the financial affairs of a nation whose case presents peculiar difficulties worthy of the efforts of a master mind. Not a man who devotes himself to the dictation of a petty paragraph is to be asked for anything.

Correspondence.

TORONTO CORRESPONDENCE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Every town, great or small, should have a market house. What is the only apology for the existence of a town at all? Traffic! It is the ready answer, for in these days we don't crowd around the feudal stronghold of some feigning Chief, for mutual protection. That is not the reason that we create towns in these days. It is for purposes of trade. Well—it should be remembered that a market house is the rallying point for the local trade. We want the farmer to think as well as possible of us, and so we give him every facility for displaying and selling his produce. No man of sense will devalue the farmer, who is, in fact, the foundation stone of the community; his importance as a social unit is foremost of all. The market house, then, is the invitation that we hold out to the farmer to come and do business with us. The smaller towns are, unfortunately, not in a condition to indulge in the great convenience of a place like this where all sorts of buyers are brought face to face with all sorts of sellers—and where the villagers would be enabled to supply theirarder from the bountiful supplies of our country friends. We think that however small the place that some effort should be made to form. It is for the sake of the local trade, and it is for the sake of the local trade that it is of life of trade.

In Toronto the market, to all classes of the citizens, is one of the grand features of the City. Everybody takes an interest in it. They watch its fluctuations, and have the utmost faith in its capacities. It is frequented by all classes of people; especially the sturdy, independent middle class. The cause which is in reality the revolving wheel of the local trade, and who keep the vast bulk of the money in circulation. You will find here a motley crew about ten or eleven o'clock. The paterfamilias, the epicure, the boarding house keeper, the hotel provider, the butcher, and the small speculator; and here comes Mrs Brown with an antediluvian bonnet, a weather stained umbrella, a basket of portentious capacity, and the smiling countenance of a good humored old lady with whom we are all so familiar.

With ponderous steps she pushes along a broad pile of vegetables, carrots, onions, brasses, &c., and stacks of cabbages, and makes straight for a butcher's stall. "Morning—what can I do for you mum?" "Woe my dear weather, Mr Savory—what's the lamb? I see as how you have been a sign of the times—though there's nothing in it, 'twas a wot's eggs?—I hopes as you had some stopped laid golden ones, and that price is down." "Eggs mum is 15 cents, a dandy deliciously nice and tender for 43 cents a lb—how much shall I cut you mum?" "Lord a mass! Do you take me for the Big Mogul or the Shah of Persia, or Archy McKellar as folks say is a rollin' in ill gotten wealth—and damaged cheap couches—buyin' them, I suppose, dirt cheap and then a sellin' 'em to the Government at fabulous prices—which is like him as he takes advantage of the poor." "Ladly Duferin at the ball here as proud as a peacock—the beautifullest lady ever seed, and Archy he hopped around as dandy as any of Van Amburgh's grizzlies, as I don't know as how you might have seen them, howsomever that's neither here nor there, but as for indulgin' in the luxury of lamb at such a price—it would be a flyin' in the face of Providence, a sacrificial to the mammon of unrighteousness, or unduly gratifyin' the desires of the flesh—as the parson beautifully says." "Right you are mum as you allers are—all the fancy articles and the fancy prices are for the nobby f'fiks. Lor! bless you mum they can afford to pay 'em, for they never intends to pay for half the things they buys anyway."

"Is that an excellent?" inquires a highly finished dandy in individual, as he regards the grotesque proposition of a doubtful looking vegetable through his eyeglass. The vendor thereof eyes him for a moment with stern scrutiny—"Thunder and turf andorra—a better or worse is it that a blue nose party after all?" "When I goes a marketin'," says an old lady "I allers ask for what I wants, and if they have it, and it's suitable, and I feel inclined to buy it, and it's cheap, and can't be got for less, I must allers take it without chappin' all day about it, as some people do."

"How much of that tender did you brew last year," asked a Yankee as he tasted it and spat it out immediately. "Fifteen barrels," said the owner in a cross tone. "Well I guess," returned the other "if you could have seared up another apple, you'd have had sixteen."

It is enjoyable for anyone who has a realish for the study of human nature and the different dispositions of men to take a turn in the market. In the higgling and haggling people throw off their disguises, and are apt to exhibit whatever of native humor or idiosyncrasy they may possess, and come out in their characters regardless of the starch or padding of society.

FIRE! FIRE!! FIRE!!!

Picton had a fire last Sunday morning whereby two families, named Carey and Barnard were burned out. The building destroyed was owned by Mr Robert Clapp, and the town fire engine when brought upon the scene was found utterly worthless.—Globe 25th April.

To the Editor of the York Herald.

DEAR SIR,—On reading the foregoing paragraph, I could not help thinking that our village fire company requires stirring up. What is Captain Trench about? The company look up to him as their leader, and can do nothing without the authority of the Captain. Above all things let us have a well-organized and efficient fire brigade. When a fire occurs, and their service needed, is not the time to prepare to fight the fire and. Organize! Organize!! Organize!!!

Bo—PEEP.

Editor's Notes.

LACROSSE.—The "Star" Lacrosse Club of this village will play their first game of the season next Saturday evening, the 2nd inst., immediately afterwards there will be a business meeting held—a full attendance of the officers and members is requested. Remember, to make the star shine, business must be attended to!

LACROUX (The Morning Light).—This is the name of a French Protestant weekly newspaper founded in 1866, and published in Montreal, Canada, at $1.50 (United States, $2) per annum. It contains articles on the important questions of the day, a special correspondence from France, on European political and religious matters, as well as general family reading and news, etc.

Our Village Council meets in the Council Chamber on Monday evening, the 4th inst., at 8 o'clock.

Remember the grand Serio Comic entertainment in the Temperance Hall in this village, on this (Friday) evening, in aid of the Junior Lacrosse Club. Tickets 10 cts. only.

MECHANICS' INSTITUTE.—The annual meeting of this association will be held in the Hall on Tuesday evening, the 5th inst., at 8 o'clock. The report of the Secretary, the statement of the accounts of the Treasurer, and the President's report, will be submitted to the meeting. A large attendance is requested.

An ex member of Congress, residing at Richmond, Staten Island, on Monday evening committed suicide in a very d d liberate fashion. He invited a reporter to his house promising him a sensation for his paper. After spending two hours in giving the interviewer a full account of his career, he announced that he would be a corpse in a few moments, and to the horror of the reporter instantly swallowed a large-doz of laudanum with fatal effect.—Globe.

A deputation of the Councils of Vaughan and Richmond Hill, meets on Tuesday next. They will consult as to the division of the Surplus of Funds, coming to Richmond Hill, now in their hands. We trust the deputation will come to an amicable settlement, and matters will go smoothly along. We expect the share of the Municipal Loan Fund arranged by our municipality, will also be coming. Markham township, a tited the pending claims last year without any trouble.

BEERLE'S SWISS BALL.—R. NOERER gave one of their popular entertainments in the Masonic Hall (Richmond Hill) on Wednesday evening last. This is something new to which has hitherto been given in this place, and it was well patronized and proved a decided success. Mr J. Pringle, the Irish and Dutch comedian brought down the house in thunders of applause. The singing of Miss Emma Leidee was immense. The balling, which was well executed, is beyond all praise. The Orchestra and Cornet Band was very superior. The entertainment as a whole was good, caused a great deal of innocent amusement, and the whole concluded with a laughable farce, entitled "The Haunted House."

SERIAL SERVICES.—The special relief services which have been in progress for several weeks, both in the Wesleyan and Presbyterian churches, came to a close on Sabbath last. The wide spread and deep awakening has probably never before been equalled in this community. We understand the Rev. Mr Hunt has received upwards of sixty as probationers for membership in the Wesleyan Church. To eight of these the ordinance of baptism was administered on last Sabbath morning. As to what number may unite with the Presbyterian Church we cannot tell until the next communion service. At Patterson also a large number have united, some with the Wesleyan and some with the Presbyterian Methodist bodies. The May 1st meeting will be held next Sabbath in the Wesleyan Church in this Village.

MARSH SPRING FAIR.—On Tuesday last the spring show of stallions and bulls of the East York and Markham Agricultural Society, came off on their grounds at Markham village. There was a very large attendance of farmers, &c., and a great deal of interest was manifested in the proceedings. The show of horses was particularly good, especially in the class of imported heavy draught stallions, which the judges estimated the best of which one of the finest ever seen anywhere. A gentleman from England, now here on a visit, Mr George B. Holmes, of Holmes & Son, Beverley, York shire, England, the largest breeders and prize-takers there in heavy draught and carriage horses, and for many years engaged in supplying stallions to the Government of most European nations for the purpose of improving the breeds of horses for army purposes, told me that he had never seen so fine a ring of that class of his sort together at any fair in Great Britain as was shown here. He speaks in high terms of our Canadian horses, but thinks we might with advantage put in a little more of the blood of the thoroughbred in our driving horses. The judges spent over an hour in looking through this class and where all were so good, found it difficult to decide which was the best. Finally the prize was won by Mr Thompson's Pickering, for York and Lorne; 2nd, B. Graham, Markham; 3rd, Victor; 3rd, John Bell, Scarborough; 4th, David Blaine. There was a fine show of roadsters and carriage stallions, but as I had to leave before the judges were through, I can't give the prizes awarded. In short, in bulls, a cup of the value of $40 was offered for the best, and the four best bulls now in Ontario were entered for it. After a very close and exciting contest the cup was awarded to John Miller's Thistle, and H. A. Bromberg for Lord Strathallan. There was also a show of did turn out of matched teams for the prize offered for the best groomed pair of horses.—Mail.

NEW LITERATURE.

ALDINE FOR MAY.—Published by Jos. Sutton & Co., 59 Maiden Lane, N. Y. City. This popular monthly for May is as fresh and beautiful as the month it represents; filled to the brim with choice flowers of art and literature. The engravings which in this superb monthly seem to have reached the highest point of perfection are beautiful beyond anything heretofore seen in an illustrated magazine. John S. Davis is the author of a full page picture, "The Driving Band," which is one of his best efforts, a strong work showing that it is a study from real life. J. D. Woodward contributes three large and splendidly drawn pictures of scenes in Florida, one of the most beautiful and picturesque States in the Union. The first picture of the scene is a deliciously cool view of the famous Silver Spring, which boils up from the earth; the second picture is a handsome full-page illustration of the mouth of the St. Johns River, showing the ruins of the old light house, a grove of palm trees, etc.; the third picture is a wild and dreamy view of a Florida hummock, one of those strange emerald islands in the midst of a desert of sands. Two other handsome and interesting pictures are "A Retriever," by J. M. Burfield, and "Up Spirits the Lark," by J. M. Burfield. The title of a charming little view, exceedingly appropriate for spring time, "John How has a full page picture, striking for its boldness, called the "Hundredth of OI sego," showing a group of those great trees upon the shores of that famous lake. "The New Capitol at Hartford, Conn.," is a finely executed drawing of the large and ornate building now in process of erection at Hartford, at the cost of several million dollars. The last illustration is an excellent portrait of Max Steubach, the representative of the Jews in connection with Italian crime in this country. The literary contents of the May "Aldine" are of greater variety and excellence than usual.

The Temperance crusade at Portsmouth, two miles from Kingston, has proved a total failure.

The Vaughan Spring Fair will be held on Friday at the farm of Mr Malcolm Malloy Lot No 25, 5th Concession of the Township of Vaughan.

A PROLIFIC Sow.—Mr David Benson of Oak Ridge, has a sow pig, which is hard to beat, having had 50 pigs at three successive litters, last litter 14, 2nd, 15, 3rd, 21. Beat that if you can!

FIRE AT THORNHILL.—On Tuesday evening last, about half past eleven o'clock, a fire broke out in a dwelling owned by Mr John Langstaff, opposite Mrs Crooks' Hotel, Young St. The building was entirely consumed in a very short time. We understand that a colored woman on tramp, who had been seen in this neighborhood for two days previous, had been arrested and will be tried and will be tried on suspicion of setting the place on fire.

FIRE AT OTTAWA.—On Tuesday morning last, about 4:15 a. m., a fire broke out in the back premises of Cardinal's Kingston Hotel. The following buildings are completely destroyed: York St. Market Hotel; Mrs Barrett's Kingston Hotel; Mr Cardinal; Mr Forb's Agricultural Warehouse; Mr McDonald's Dominion Auction Rooms; Mr Gou's 25th shop; Mr Kidult's blacksmith shop; Mr Murphy's boot and shoe shop; Mr Lament's watchmaker's shop, Clarence st.; City Hotel; Mr Graham's; the fish market stalls and other buildings. The steam fire engine was soon on the ground, and proved to be a decided failure. Fifty minutes had nearly elapsed before any attempt at throwing water was made, and then very poorly. The fire continued till 8 o'clock. About $150,000 worth of property has been destroyed. The greater portion of it is insured.—Leader.

BIRTHS.
BENSON.—At Oak Ridge, on the 25th inst., the wife of Mr Robert Benson, of a daughter.

Special Notices.

BREAKFAST.—EPH'S COCOA.—By a thorough knowledge of the natural law, which governs the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr Ephs has perfected our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which contains many heavy carbonic acids.—Carl Service Gazette, Made simple with Baking Powder or Milk, Each packet is labelled "JAMES EPHS & Co., Wholesale and Retail, London." We will give an account of the process adopted by Messrs James Ephs & Co., manufacturer of domestic articles, at their works in the London Road, London.—See article in Cassell's Healthful Guide, October 11, 1874. 739-1v
