REFORM OR PROTECTION.

It has become painfully obvious that whatever improvement may take place in business during the present year, will be owing to the recuperative energy of our people unassisted by Government.

When in Halifax four months ago he declared himself favorable to a policy, which declared the necessity of fighting a high tariff on the other side of the border.

All the protection required by our Canadian manufacturers is that the same duties should be imposed on American goods coming into this country which are imposed on goods going from here into the United States.

The return of Mr. Rykert, although by a small majority, (11), is a credit to the constituency. Mr. Mowat, with a servile majority at his back, may place on the statute book, any act he may think necessary to retain that majority.

After the usual devotional exercises, Mr. Daniel McLean, of Toronto, introduced "The Faithful Teacher," he said: A teacher should be faithful, not for any reward he may expect, but because it is his duty and because he loves his work.

EAST AND WEST YORK SABBATH SCHOOL ASSOCIATION. (Continued from last week.)

Such selections as Philip Phillips and Ira D. Baker's may properly be considered Sabbath School music. Such music leaves its impression on the minds of the children, "they may forget the singer but they will not forget the song."

representatives and advocates of Sabbath Schools met in Council in the City of Toronto for now ten years there must be more than mere novelty and transient entertainment in them when from every quarter of the land they have been invited.

By these Conventions we have obtained a knowledge of the Sabbath Schools in our land and we could never have known without them. It is true that the statistics obtained are but partial, yet we have, by the reports that have been obtained, discovered many a blank that needs filling up, and first by the Sabbath School Association of Canada and since by the Ontario Sabbath Missionary Union, between two and three hundred schools have been planned, besides the influence that has been awakened and moved others to go to work in this direction.

4th. We have learned to do our work better by these Conventions. In too many instances formerly our Sabbath Schools were conducted by the majority of cases how could there be, when there was no prescribed lesson for the school to compare notes upon. For the same reason there could be no reviewing of the lesson of the day or the past Lord's day; of course the blackboard was not found in the Sabbath School, there were no visible illustrations in the school. What a change in these respects do we see.

5th. We have learned it is not only possible to teach the same lesson to the entire school, but that it is the best method. Of course grading the teaching according to the character of the class, whether infant, or intermediate, or senior, as may be, is best because if there be a teachers' meeting for the lesson, there will be the opportunity for the benefit of all the teachers what each has gathered in his study of the lesson, and thus all may come to the better understanding of the lesson, and the teaching will be in the main the same in all the classes. It is best because there will be one lesson to be reviewed for the entire school.

6th. We have learned it is not only possible to have one uniform lesson for the entire school, but a uniform series of lessons for all the Sabbath Schools of the land, and that it is best to take the School through the whole Bible in all its principal parts, from Genesis to Revelations; so giving the School a larger and more comprehensive knowledge of it, and teaching our scholars its unity, all centre in Jesus and God's Salvation.

7th. And certainly we have been confirmed (if we have not learned of our first time) in this, that nothing short of the conversion to God of the scholars, nothing short of their present salvation by faith in Jesus, and that they may be planted in the Church for a consecrated life, should be our aim in teaching.

8th. We have learned that children, yet little children, - that our School scholars may do much towards the spread of the Gospel, by their example, by their bringing in others to the School, and by their being encouraged to contribute of their pocket money to missionaries and kindred objects.

9th. We have learned that children, yet little children, - that our School scholars may do much towards the spread of the Gospel, by their bringing in others to the School, and by their being encouraged to contribute of their pocket money to missionaries and kindred objects.

10th. We have also learned by these Conventions that Christians of every name are really one in a realized life unity. I do not believe that anything has been so beneficial to this land and blessed unity as these Conventions. All names are for the time forgotten, love is begotten and shown to each other, and we realize that there is "one body and one spirit."

11th. I might further detail to you, but the time would fail me, yet I would not omit this, that we have more than ever learned that it is to the Sabbath Schools of our land and of the churches that we are to receive into the fold on earth, the largest additions, the most intelligent Bible scholars, the most useful members, and the most endearing children, by their bringing in others to the churches to nourish with all tender solicitude, and to provide with abundant liberality, whatever may tend to the prosperity and fruitfulness of these Schools.

We thank God for the light received, for the new life that has been begotten, for the abundant gifts that are provided, and for our high hopes, therefore, in the future. Bless His Holy Name for these, yet we would forget the things that are behind in reaching forth to those that are before. We have learned much, attained much, but we may have and see greater things, may this be our aim as well as our faith.

The thanks of the meeting were presented to the friends of Weston for entertaining the delegates, to the choir for conducting the singing, to the retiring President, and to the pastor and trustees of the church, for the use of the building and fixtures for the holding of the Convention. The Committee on Resolutions embodied the sentiments of the Convention in a set of resolutions which were put to the meeting and unanimously adopted. Farewell addresses were delivered by Mr. Wm. A. Walker, of Cobourg; and Rev. Wm. Millard, of West York; and the Convention closed to meet at Agincourt, in February, 1877.

The Woodbridge Free Press man says "Our York Herald friend speaks of Mr. Cauchon's deeds as smelling 'rank to heaven.' Our friend of the Free Press will please not be quite so fast, we merely gave the Globe's former opinion of Mr. Cauchon. The gentleman was lately applying for admission to the bar of the Supreme Court, and was the recipient of the various selections in their usual creditable manner.

Correction.-In the report of the School Trustees Meeting contained in last week's Herald, a slight mistake was made in regard to the pupils applying for admission to the High School. The report run thus: "Mr. Teffy quoted from the statute, showing the illegality of such a proceeding, especially in cases like the present where the children had been expelled from another school." We have since been given to understand that the children referred to, have merely been "suspended" not "expelled." Mr. Teffy's exact words were, "that the children there had been some difficulty between the pupils applying and their teacher, and he would not be a party to punishing a teacher from another section, over the shoulders of this Board.

They are coming on every train, on waggon, sleighs, buggies, cutters, single teams, double teams, bob-sleighs, skates, horseback snow-shoes, and on foot. They are coming in from the north, east, south, west, north-west, south-west, south-by-west, north-by-east, north-by-west, south-by-east, and south-by-west. They are coming in at night, noon, morning, afternoon and evening. They are coming in single, twins, triplets, four, five, ten and twenty at a time. They are coming on the run, walk, crawl, slide, hop, step and jump. They are coming in bald-headed, black-headed, brown-headed, white-headed, yellow-headed, and black-headed. Grit! Every one of them! They want to be appointed License Inspectors by the Government under the new Liquor Law. And there isn't one of them but has done more for the Government than any other man on this side of the Rocky Mountains.-Sun.

Lecture.-Last Monday evening we had the pleasure of listening to the popular lecturer, "Susannah Evans," a lady who has been engaged by the Central committee for the passage of the Dunkin Act, to deliver several lectures in the county. The subject, requested for this village, was "Moral Suasion and Legislation." The lecture was unique, and with argument, forcibly illustrated, and delivered with an eloquence which showed a heart deeply impressed with a sense of the terrible evils resulting from the use of intoxicating drinks. The lecturer seems to be perfect mistress of the subjects on which she seeks to enlighten others, and does it in a way that even the adversaries of temperance principles involuntarily respect. Her words were, "The Lord, as an individual, she stigmatizes the liquor traffic, as a whole, as a curse to the country. Should the power of the community to put it down, by withholding the patronage by which it is sustained and by an earnest appeal to several classes of society, especially to that 'clothed in white,' (members of churches), to make good use of the influence they exercised, proved that moral suasion will yet accomplish much. But notwithstanding all that moral suasion has done, or can do, we are those whom we appeal, however fervent, could move; for such the only remedy was the strong arm of the law. Urging every one who had that privilege of franchise to cast a vote for the cause of humanity, the lecturer retired amidst great applause. The Rev. B. H. Dundas occupied the chair. The audience was large and evinced much interest in matters pertaining to the passage of the Dunkin Act in this County.
