How Some Ships are Scrubbed.

It seems that in several places in the world there are volcanoes under the sea. Such volcanoes, of course, do not send up volumes of flame and smoke. Instead, they pour forth streams of sulphurous acid vapor that mingle with the sea-water. Some of these volcances are situated in bays where ships can safely ride at anchor.

As is well known, the bottoms of many ships are protected by a covering of copper. This copper, after a time, becomes corroded by the action of the sca-water; a sort of green mold forms, sea-mosses begin to grow, and even small sea animals, like the barnacles, build their shell-houses upon it. Of course, all these things roughen the ship's bottom, and as the vessel gathers more and more, it sails very much slower by reason of the great accumulation. Then, if she happen to be anywhere in the neighborhood of one of these submerged volcanes, the contain sails these submerged volcanes, the captain sails her thither to be scoured.

This scouring process does not require hands or machinery of any sort. All that is necessary is that the ship should lie quietly at anchor where the sulphurous acid vapor, mingling with the sea-water, can gently wash her sides and bottom. In a few days, or weeks, as the case may be, not a weed, not a barnacle, not a bit of the dark green mold remains, and the ship can sail off again, her copper bottom as clean and as bright as when it was first put on.

The Canada Farmer tells a nice story of a man named Langley, who went to St. Mary's bay geese hunting. Seeing a moose on the opposite shore, he fired, and at the same moment a porpoise leaped from the water, and the bullet killed both it and the moose. The porpoise floated to the shore, and the hunter used it as a raft to paddle across to the moose. Then he found that the bullet, after killing the moose, had gone into a hollow tree, in which was a store of wild honey, which was flowing through the hole made by the hellet. Reaching for what he thought!

There ought to be no hostility, for the very persons with whom our meeting is apt to be wkward for those for whom we have a liking. Persons whom we do not like, or who are in different to us, we can pass without restraint. But those whom we respect and wish to be on good terms with, we are anxious to con-ciliate, as far as may be, without sacrificing dignity. The result of our anxiety is often awkwardness. Kindness and a too great civ-ilization, one might almost say, are in part the source of this excessive sensitiveness When we think of a highwayman any then of a man so gentle that it hurts him to pass an acquaintance without leaving upon his mind the pleasantest impression, we say how very different human beings may be under lifferent circumstances.

Nitro-Glycerine Explosion.

[From the Baltimore Sun.] Shortly before one o'clock the other day, about five pounds of nitro-glycerine exploded with terrific force at Lake Montebello. Mr. John E. Eschbach, the contractor for the work at the lake, is engaged in constructing a tunnel by which a small stream known as Tiffany's run will be diverted from the bed of the lake. Nitro-glycerine, which is used in blasting, is prepared by Mr. Kalmbach at a frame house in the woods, a short distance from the tunnel. Drilling in the rock is ac complished with steam, and when the work complished with steam, and when the workmen are ready for blasting, word is given to
Mr. Stolberg, foreman of the nitro-glycerine factory, and he prepares the cartridges,

If a man is fortunate enough to possess money, it matters not how old or ugly he may be, hundreds of intelligent, handsome young women can be found only too willing to become his dead was the silence that one might have can be found only too willing to become his wife. Love is an after consideration. They warry to be supported and dressed extravagantly. How often do we hear the remark, "Better become an old man's darling than a poor man's slave." Alas! too many of them are not satisfied to be darlings. They will persist in loving other men after they are married.

It cannot be denied that a great number of the numarried men age adventurers looked.

It cannot be denied that a great number of the unmarried men are adventurers looking for wives who can keep them without working for a living. The peace and contentment of a happy home is not taken into consideration. They are willing to suffer a hell upon earth if they can be kept in idleness. If our young people do not abandon this extravagance of dress and greed for money our country will be filled with old bachelors and old maids. We must have more genuine courtships and marriages to have prosperity and happiness in this world.

The true art of living easily as to money is to pitch your scale of expenditure a degree below your actual means. Money in itself never yet made a man happy, and never will; as a rule, the more a man has the more he craves. If it satisfies one class of desires it Ayra's HAIR Visor, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often always surely restores its color, when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and tetablished; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resumes resumes their original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions, discases of the scalp are impossible.

The Patent Eye Cups are a scientific and philosophical discovery, and as Alex. R. Wyeth, M. D., and Wm. Beatley, M. D., writes, they are certainly the greatest invention of the age.
Read the following certificates:
Ferrouson Station, Logan Co., Ky., June 6th, 72. Dr. J. Ball. & Co. Cullists,
Gentlemen: Your Patent Eye Cups are, in my judgment the most splendid triumph which optical science has ever achieved, but, like all great and important truths, in this or in any other brauch of science and philosophy, have much to contend with from the ignorance and prejudice of a too sceptical public; but truth is mighty and will prevail, and it is only a question of time as regards their indorsement and general acceptance by all. I have in my hands certificates of persons testifying in unequivocal terms to their merits. The most prominent physicians of my county recommend your Eye Curs. I am, respectfully, J. A. L. BOYER.
William Bratley, M. D., Salvisa, Ky., writes: "Thanks to you for the greatest of all inventions. My sight is fully restored by the use of your Pate the Lups, after being almost entire blind for twenty-six years."

Alex. R. Wyerf, M. D., Atchison, Pa, writes:
