RICHMOND HILL, AUG. 4, 1876.

"A HAGGLERS' PARLIAMENT."

Above is the caption of the leading article in the Globe of the 22nd of July.

In addition to its malversation on the question of Protection, it now boldly states that any man holding an opinion in favor of the above subject is not morally fit to occupy a seat in the Legislature of the country.

Ship building is quiet, both on the Tyne and Clyde. The saw and edge tool trades, the joiners' tool makers, the Britannia metal and plating, and other branches of trade are all very dull and not much doing.

He that will believe only what he can fully comprehend must have a very long head, or a very short creed. Many gain a false credit for liberality of sentiment in religious matters, not from any tenderness they may have for the opinions or consciences of other men, but because they happen to have no opinion of their own.

The Hon. Mr. Laird is one of the tallest men in Canada, he is nearly seven feet high; that is seven ordinary feet—he is not more than four of Brown's Stratford Herald.

Despotism can no more exist in a nation until the liberty of press be destroyed, than night can happen before the sun is set.

According to the Globe's way of thinking no protectionist can be a patriot or a true lover of his country, but what will it say of the late Horace Greeley, of the United States, who did more than any other man towards inaugurating the present protective policy of that country.

From the opposition of the Mail and the Miller, the Globe editors are leaving their hands full of work, seeing that two members from the dusty fraternity were elected in the Ontario and nearly a third in South Wellington.

Killing weeds is one of the most important labors on the farm, at this season. None should be suffered to go to seed, if it can be avoided without too great expense.

is put on a country weekly; if such is their opinion, we beg to assure them they never made a bigger mistake in their lives. If our subscribers do not, after this, receive their paper in time, or do not receive them at all, will take the trouble to drop us a postal card or letter stating such to be the case, they will greatly oblige, as we are determined, if possible, to find out where the wrong lies, not only to ourselves but to the public.

A late Sheffield paper writing upon the state of trade, holds out no hopes of the prospects of trade improving, neither the bountiful harvest of last year nor the considerable reductions which have taken place in prices have had any considerable effect in stimulating the demand for goods.

The English iron trade is very dull, and though ironmasters are making very small profits, and in some cases losing money, it is impossible to keep up prices. Local bar-iron of common quality is quoted as low as £7, 5s. per ton.

The armour plate mills are, however, well employed, turning out very large plates, and there is a good demand for gun-barrels. The war branches being the only departments of the heavy trade in which there is any activity.

The saw and edge tool trades, the joiners' tool makers, the Britannia metal and plating, and other branches of trade are all very dull and not much doing.

After a strike of four months, the scissor forgers, like the smiths, have resumed work at the old rate of wages.

Many gain a false credit for liberality of sentiment in religious matters, not from any tenderness they may have for the opinions or consciences of other men, but because they happen to have no opinion of their own.

Agricultural.

Timothy seed has been and still is very scarce and high. A crop of timothy that could not be cut early enough for hay had better be left for seed. Cut it with a reaper and bind it into sheaves.

Killing weeds is one of the most important labors on the farm, at this season. None should be suffered to go to seed, if it can be avoided without too great expense.

Summer fallows for wheat are apt to be neglected this month. A good ploughing or cultivating during this dry, hot weather, will kill every weed that has germinated.

The sickness and death of stock constitutes one of the greatest losses and discouragements of the farmer. The immediate cause of their death may be beyond our control, but in nine cases out of ten, the disease, if we searched back far enough, might be traced to dyspepsia, derangement of the bowels, and general debility.

Almost every man sets out with a determination when a certain sum has been accumulated to retire from the cares of business, and enjoy the balance of his days in retirement on some sunny farm or rural retreat, his vision has planned. This is wrong. You should commence the business of life with the determination to work as long as you live, and you can do this if you obey the laws of health as related to your physical and spiritual nature.

When will the Liberal Conservatives of the West Riding of York have pluck enough to get up a singular turn-out?

NEW ROOMS FROM OLD ONES.

My wife, says a correspondent, has a wonderful faculty of making the most of a few things in the room, and I have been analyzing her management to see what there is in it that makes everything about the room take on so fresh an appearance occasionally. It is certainly not by bringing in new things, because the condition of the family pocket-book would not tolerate so rash a proceeding. She acts upon the principle that "a fair exchange is no robbery."

She makes occasionally those beautiful transformations by which our home seems to take on new directions and give new pleasure. Even the exchange of couch and stand upon different sides of the room has a good effect; the truth is, we are all children in one sense and are delighted with new things; even if they are intrinsically no better than the old ones. The removal of a vase of flowers or plant from a bracket to the stand for a day, is a pleasing change at times.

POURING TEA.

The "Housekeeper" says:—There is more to be learned about pouring out tea and coffee than most ladies are willing to believe. If these decoctions are made at the table, which is by far the best way, they require experience, judgment, and exactness; if they are brought on the table ready-made, it still requires judgment so to apportion them that they shall prove sufficient in quantity for the family party, and that the elder members should have the stronger cups. Often persons pour out tea who, not being at all aware that the first cup is the weakest, and that the tea grows stronger as you proceed, bestow the poorest cup upon the greatest stranger and give the strongest to a very young member of the family, who would have been better without any. Where several cups of equal strength are wanted you should pour a little into each, and then go back, inverting the order as you fill them up, and then the strength will be apportioned properly. This is so well understood in England that an experienced pourer of tea waits till all the cups of the company are returned to her before she fills any a second time, that all may share alike.
