THE NEW CHURCH DOCTRINE.

There's come a singular doctrine Suc-Into our church to-day These cur'us words are what the new Young preacher had to say That literal everfastin' fire Was mostly in our eye; That sinners dead, if they desire, Can get another try He doubted if a warmer clime Than this world could be proved The little snip-I fear some time

I've watched my duty, straight an' true An' tried to do it well; Part of the time kept heaven in view. An' part steered clear o' hell; An' now half of this work is naught. If I must list to him An' this 'ere devil I have fought Was only just a whim Vain are the dangers I have braved The sacrifice they cost; For what fun is it to be saved,

He'll get his doubts removed

Just think!--Suppose whem once I view The heaven I've toiled to win A lot of unsaved sinners, too, Comes walkin' grandly in ! An' acts to home, same as if they Had read their titles clear, An' looks at me, as if to say, "We're glad to see you here! As if to say, "While you have be'n So fast to toe the mark, We waited till it rained, an' then Got tickets for the ark!

If no one else is lost

Yet there would be some in that crowd I'd rather like to see My boy Jack -it must be allowed There was no worse than he! I've always felt somewhat to blame In several different ways, That he lay down on thorns o' shame To end his boyhood's days; An' I'd be willin' to endure, If that the Lord thought best A minute's quite hot temperature, To clasp him to my breast.

Old Captain Barnes was evil's son-With heterodoxy crammed; I used to think he'd be the one If any one was damned; Still, when I saw a lot o' poor That he had clothed and fed Cry desolately round his door As soon as he was dead, There came a thought I couldn't control That in some neutral land. I'd like to meet that scorched-up soul, An' shake it by the hand.

Poor Jennie Willis, with a cry Of hopeless, sad distress, Sank sudden down, one night, to die, All in her ball-room dress; She had a precious little while To pack up an' away She even left her sweet good smile 'Twas on the face next day; Her soul went off unclothed by ever One stitch of saving grace; How could she hope to go to heaven An' start from such a place?

But once, when I lay sick an' weak, She came, an' begged to stay: She kissed my faded, wrinkled cheek-She soothed my pain away; She brought me sweet bouquets of flowers As fresh as her young heart-Through many long an' tedious hours She played a Christian part; An' ere I long will stand aroun

The singin' saints among, I'll try to take some water down To cool poor Jennie's tongue. Buttears can never quench my creed, Nor smooth God's righteous frown. Their Bibles upside down,

Though all the preachers learn to read I hold mine right side up with care To shield my eyes from sin. An' coax the Lord with daily prayer To call poor wanderers in; But if the sinners won't draw nigh. An' take salvation's plan, I'll have to stand an' see 'em try To dodge hell if they can. More stars of the first magnitude are now visible than at any other time of the year. On a pleasant evening the sky fairly glitters with them. First to attract the eye is Sirius. This blazing star, like a great brilliant, hangs over the south-west, and, though shining through the space of eighty trimons of miles, almost dazzles the eye with the power of its light. Looking north-east from Sivins one meets the steady gloam of Procyon; while to the north-west the gems of Orion Betelguse and Rigel appear. Farther on the same course is seen the juddy glow of Aldebaran, and just above this star, in the clus-ter of the Hyades, Mars sheds his sullen ray. The planet is near the tropic of Cancer as is moving in a northeasterly course. Northwest from the zenth "calm Capeila" tells where the celestial goat is supposed to hide. The Twins, Castor and Pollux, appear very near the meridian, and far up to zaih; while Arcturus, the brightest of northern stars, glitters over the east. Later, Vega looks out from the dark north-mast. Thus nine stars of the first magnitude and one bright planet are above the horizen at the same moment. The trio of rubies, Be-telguse, Aldebaran and Mars, make a very unusual appearance.
