Northern Railway Time Table that "he did not maintain his equilibrium after the chances of exposure were past." Such language is the last resort of a bitter, bigoted, petty mind. No one worthy of the name of man, would or could speak in that way of Sir John Macdonald, who has occupied the foremost place in the Dominion since its foundation, and in old Canada for many years previous. According to the natural fitness of things a being capable of such contemptible utterances would only be carrying out the sneaking proclivities of his nature, 7 30 Felock, to connect with the trains and south; at 4.30 pm., for trains onto at 4.15, and returning at 6; at if he had been down at Ottawa Banqueting Hall with his miserable body crawling along the floor, and his ear applied to the crack under the door, trying to see whether Sir John still maintained his equilibrium.

> Such accusations are also cowardly. because the writer must know they are so much beneath the slandered that he cannot afford to notice them. One of the first essentials to the success of a journal is reliability, and it would be a credit to the whole class if the writers of a few unreliable journals were treated like that creature Rosenburg, of London Police Court notoriety.
