Mr Crooks and Toronto University.

THURSDAY, JULY 22, 1880.

- Mr Crooks has put his foot in it 'again, and raised quite a storm by the rather eccentric manner in which he has attempted to secure a professor to fill the classical chair in Toronto University. We have been watching to see what the Reform papers in this County would say regarding the matter, but, with the exception of the Newmarket ERA, they have failed to either uphold or censure the conduct of the Minister of Education. There is no reason why such should be the case. The matter is outside of Party Politics, but it is not outside of the criticism of every newspaper in the County, or any person interested in the slightest degree, in the success of our educational institutions. The leading Reform neswpapers, with the single exception of the GLOBE, and many of the influential Conservative papers have strongly condemned the course he has taken. We will place the whole matter squarely before our readers. Last vear Mr Crooks superannuated Dr McCaul and Dr Croft, Professors in Toronto University of Chemistry and Classics, leaving two vacancies to be filled. He immediately went to England to secure men to fill the positions vacated, overlooking the claims of Canadians who are declared competent to fill these chairs.

He succeeded in securing Mr Pike as Professor of Chemistry, giving him a salary of $2,800, and promising him the Principalship of the School of Practical Science. This was a much larger salary than had ever before been given to a Professor just entering the University. They have heretofore accepted a smaller amount, and been gradually raised to this salary. Mr Crooks here showed that Canadians were not considered qualified to fill this position, although it is well known that a Canadian, with a German education, and equal to Mr Pike, in every particular, was an applicant for the chair.

Mr Crooks did not succeed in securing a Professor for the Classical chair, situation, make him President, and Winnipeg until September. give him an extra salary of $1,200 a year, making a salary of $4,000. Mr Warren came over, but MrCrooks found he had promised too much. The faculty naturally felt that they had been slighted, and the feeling of indignation displayed by old University men, and the newspapers generally showed Mr Crooks that he could not manage everything to suit himself. So barefaced had been the insult proposed to the other and older professors, that they had intended to resign if he carried out these propositions. He then found it necessary to recognize Dr Wilson's claims to the Presidency, but proposed to create the office of Vice-President of University College for Mr Warren, with the $4,000 a year. There had never been a Vice-President previous to this, and there was not any necessity for filling the office now, but Mr Crooks imagined that by making Mr Warren Vice-President he would be enabled to give him the extra salary, without arousing a strong feeling of opposition. He was again mistaken, and then proposed to give Mr Warren the extra salary without any office. Mr Warren meanwhile has discovered that the course pursued by Mr. popular. He has therefore declined to accept the position, thus leaving Mr public. It is but natural to suppose Chatham for burial, Dr. Pynchon was that the public object to such actions, arrested. and hence the indignation aroused all over the country. It is contended that there was no necessity, whatever, for Mr Crooks going to England at all; that we have Canadian scholars equal in ability to Mr Warren, who is a grad-so, having only recently graduated. It is also contended that Mr Crooks is decidedly averse to Canadian scholars, and will not, under any circumstances accept their applications, no matter what qualifications they may possess, or where they have been educated. That he reapplicants from England, equal in ability to Mr Warren, who were willing to accept the position without shown himself capable of discharging and delightful music was furnished by his duties. POST OFFICE NOTICE made to defend the course he pursued, Narrow Escape from Death. but he has been censured by newspapers Until further notice, Mails will be closed at the all over the Country, on both sides of politics. Mr Crooks had better admit his inability and bad management. He may have acted for the best, but he has made some woeful mistakes. This at 7:30 bungling has had a very demoralizing effect upon the University, and there has been some hard talk and bitter feelings aroused amongst the friends of the faculty. Clearly Mr Crooks has shown his unfitness for the position he holds, and should gracefully glide into another, before he is compelled to resign.

Southdown Sheep.

Agricultural Commission, Mr James Anderson, of Puslinch, gave the following evidence with respect to sheep, It will be seen that he highly recommends the Southdowns, a class which Mr Robt Marsh, of this village, deals very extensively in, both in importing and breeding, and of which he has some of the finest specimens to be found on this continent. Mr Anderson is also an extensive breeder, and has had long ext juries. perience with sheep of all classes. He had been a breeder of Southdown sheep for twenty years, and after trying Cotswolds and Leicesters he had come to the conclusion that Southdown paid him best; they were hardier than either, and he could keep three Southdowns or more as cheaply as he could keep two Cotswolds; previous to two or three years ago his principal market was the States, but recently he was able to sell sheep; the wool of these crosses sold at five cents a pound more than the wool of the pure Southdown, while the fleece would cross well on grade Leicester or Cotswold ewes, and produce both good mutton and wool: he believed sheep were more profitable to the ordinary farmer than cattle; they also kept the land clean and produced valuable manure; they were singularly free from disease in this country; the Southdown was decidedly the best sheep to cross on the common stock of the country to obtain good animals for the European MONY. A Markham Lady the Bride. Knox church was the scene of a fashion able wedding at 9 o'clock last night, which had the effect of crowding that edifice to its atmost capacity. It was the occasion of the celebration of the nupitals of Matthew T Hunter and Miss Lizzie Crowle, of this city, (late of Markham, and daughter of Dr Crowle,) the latter being the popular or-ganist of the church in which the happy event took place. The marriage has been the talk of social circles for some time back. The Rev James Robertson, pastor of Knox Church, conducted the service, and Mrs Soare, organist of Holy Trinity Church, presided at the organ. Long before the hour fixed upon for the ceremony the church was filled. A YOUNG LADY OF CHATHAM. ONT.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 16.—The facts in a case of abortion involving a physician, a specialist, of this city, and a family of eminent respectability of Chatham, Ont, have just come to light. of Toronto, who is now visiting his friends in this village, met with a very painful accident. He was riding on horseback, accompanied by a friend, a short distance south of this village on Yonge street. When near the toll-gate, his horse became unmanageable, through fright, and threw him very beavily on his shoulders. Mr Farr of Thornhill, happened to be driving north, and was At a recent meeting of the Ontario at the gate when the accident occurred. He conveyed Mr Nicholl to Mr John Arnolds, where he has been visiting, and the doctor was called in. It was found that his collar bone was broken, but no serious injury beyond this, was incurred. From the way in which Mr Nicholl fell his escape from serious, or fatal injury was very narrow. He is well known in this neighborhood, having lived here and practised his profession as a lawyer, some years ago. His many friends will be pleased to hear that he will soon recover from his in-

Gone, but not Forgotten.

When we published the particulars of Mr Geo. Soules being poisoned through a pustule on bis hand last week, very few persons had the slightest idea that his illness would be attended with fatal results. But such has proven the case. He gradually sank, until on Tuesall the rams he could produce for the day last, about 12 o'clock, he breathed purpose of crossing our long wooled his last. Deceased will be greatly missed. Death sometimes leaves but little void, and is scarcely noticed was 21 pounds heavier; Southdown rams except by the immediate relatives of the deceased. But it is not so in this instance. George had just entered the prime of life, and was in full health and vigor, up to within a week of his death. Since the time of his arrival in this village, some fourteen years ago, he has always taken a very active part in anything calculated to improve the village. He possessed a very enterprising nature, and in his business, as baker, confectioner, etc, was noted for push, perseverence, and strict attention. By this means he built up an extensive business, and rapidly increased in wealth. George always had a pleasant word for every one, and was always willing to lend a helping hand, to assist deserving persons. He was very tenacious of his pinions, and when determined on a certain course, after mature consideration, was very hard to move; but in no case do we recollect that this characteristic influenced him to do any unjust or unkind act: He will be missed by every one in this village and neighboras usual.
