A SATISFACTORY BARGAIN.

MONTREAL, Sept. 27.—This afternoon quite a large and excited gathering of Sir John Macdonald's followers assembled at Hotel de la Reine to welcome their chief upon his way to Ottawa.

—Allow me to return my most sincere thanks for this address. It is especially gratifying to me to receive this greeting from the young men of Canada. I am an old man myself, and cannot hope to see the culmination and completion of the great enterprise on which I have been engaged.

Portland and the Pacific coast by different routes, we find that the difference in favor of the Canadian route is 521 miles.

A great deal of work has already been expended upon the line from Thunder Bay to Selkirk—a distance of two hundred and twenty-eight miles—and two branch roads have been completed and in operation for some time.

The preliminary surveys have long been completed and the difficulties encountered and overcome in making them have been enormous. The engineers traversed a vast continent which had hitherto been unknown except by fur traders, roving Indians, and a few devoted missionaries.

With regard to the future of the railway, we are told that the contract for the construction of the line is taken by a syndicate said to be the most powerful in respect to money and American enterprise.

When British Columbia was admitted into the Dominion of Canada, it was understood that the Dominion Government, to construct a railway connecting the Pacific coast with the Eastern provinces.

There was a sort of uneasy feeling all through the hall before the meeting was called to order. No one seemed to have any bad news, nor to have any reason for being depressed, yet a cloud had settled down and made its influence felt.

Brother Gardner's delectable dinner and his Isaac Waipole held a whispered conference and when the triangle sounded the old man looked up and down and gently inquired: "Will Brother Haverack Calhoun please hitch along this way?"

Neither of the men had a reply handy, and the President continued: "Ober an ober an ober again I have warned dis club dat no politics alone. I has tole you dat politics am de white man's cess-pool, an' dat no decent cull'd man should go widin ten feet o' it."

Owing to the absence of the respective Chairmen no petitions were read and no election was held. On motion of Laidout White the rules were suspended and Col. Benjamin C. Turner, of Alexandria, La., was called on to deliver an address.

Brother Sidewise Union, of Mansfield, O., an honorary member in good standing, forwarded a communication asking if the club devoted one evening per week, as charged by a Columbus paper, in trying to solve the '13, '15, and '17 cases.

Blue Jim Staggings, of Cartersville, Ga., an honorary member of the club, forwarded charges against Josephus-on-the-Blossom, another honorary member, as follows: 1. Opening a peanut stand against the advice of business men of undoubted financial soundness.

At this juncture the Glee Club roused up and indulged in the following: "I dreamed last night of de olden days, When I worked in de cotton row, When I woke at de call of de overseer, An' hurried away wid de hoe.

John Hufington Williams, the great Canadian orator and philosopher, arrived here a day or two ago for the purpose of making a speech before the club. Why do we stay in when we feel put out? When the regular order of business had been disposed of the Reception Committee proceeded to the auter room to bring in the distinguished visitor, but a great surprise awaited them. John Hufington was lying at full length on a bench, and when they sought to arouse him he rolled to the floor with an awful thud and continued his deep slumber. He was drunk!

"A beggar held out his hand. 'I haven't a cent,' said the gentleman. 'I did not specify the coin,' responded the mendicant. 'A German life insurance company, called Der Lebensversicherungsgesellschaft, was the cause of the irregularity of the matter. Yet one would suppose it got all of its letters.
