What They will do.

It will be interesting to hear what the speakers at the picnic to day think about the tariff and the Syndicate. One thing they must admit that the country is in a flourishing condition. We do not suppose any one wishes to claim that this is owing alone and strictly to the present Government, although some country Reform papers make foolish statements to that effect. The strongest friend of the Government only claims that they made an effort to benefit the country, that they wished to raise the revenue and at the same time encourage home industries. Mr. Blake and his friends may easily find fault, any one can do that, but it will take a good deal of talk, and a great many picnics to convince the people that the present Government is not an improvement on the one they succeeded.

A Good Opinion.

Sir John Macdonald has returned home again, looking well and evidently very well pleased with himself, and the whole situation generally. In another column will be found his idea of English opinion regarding Canada, and the way he sums it up, is no doubt very true. It is very satisfactory to hear that the country never stood so well before. There are some who profess to feel so independent that they do not care what English opinion is, but they do not really mean it. We want the good opinion of our neighbors and every country in Europe, and the better we are known and understood, the better opinion there will be regarding us. Canada will yet be the home of many thousands from Europe, and it is our interest to keep our name fairly before the world, as a prosperous and happy people. Sir John may well feel pleased with the present state of affairs, as he has contributed greatly to bring about such a pleasant condition.

Business Outlook.

The business outlook strikes the Dun Wiman mercantile agency people as being particularly satisfactory. The report of failures for the first half of the present year shows that there have been only about half the number of failures that there were last year in the same time, and the liabilities have been nothing like as great. The report says "that in extent the business of the country has maintained a margin never before reached is beyond question; that its productive power is greater than ever before is equally evident; the ability of the consumer to absorb and pay promptly has increased, while evidences abound on every hand of a growth in wealth and material resources equalled by no other country in the world." This is very flattering. But a note of warning is sounded. The tendency under such circumstances is to extend the line of credit very rapidly. The facility with which weak and unsound applicants obtain goods, and the growing increase in the time and ease of the terms of credit, are particularly noticeable. These are the first signs of a possibility of revision, which some fear must come from the extraordinary expansion which has occurred everywhere in the last eighteen months. The temptation to extend business is great, when the times are good. But this is the critical period. Prudence points to the avoidance of conditions without which disaster is impossible; thus for instance, "the expansion into unwise and injudicious credits; the locking up in unavailable shape of capital necessary for business, the increase of business and personal expenses, and above all the growth of indebtedness." These are the rocks to be avoided while the tide of prosperity is coming in. Canada can hardly claim to be as prosperous as the United States, but it is apparent that some of the waves of returning prosperity must lift over the imaginary boundary line that divides the two countries. If the customs houses were abolished Canada would enjoy the commercial revival of the States to the full, instead of in dribbles.

President Garfield.

The President has last succeeded to the bullet. For months the world has daily been watching the reports of the physicians attending the sick bed of the wounded man. When reports were unfavorable sorrow was expressed, when they were hopeful gratification to the mind of the public was the result. His cheerfulness, his patience, his courage, made for him in the eyes of the world a feeling of admiration. He has had his last hours soothed by the love and sympathy of his family, and the boundless sympathy of the outside world. He died at 10:35 on Monday night.

GRAVENHURST STATION, Sept. 16.—The Woodstock Lumber Co.'s mill stock, about three millions, has been entirely consumed. The stock belongs to McDonogh, McCool & Oliver, of Toronto. It is understood to be insured, but to what extent is unknown. The whole of West Gravenhurst is burning at this moment [4.15 p.m.] One church and six houses are already gone, and if the wind, which is now blowing a gale, continues another mill will go, containing about two and a half million. The fire is already running in the sawdust. We have lost our car and there are six more in danger, which we cannot get at, the track being burned.

Clarke Wallace at Seaton.

ABLE SPEECH FROM THE MEMBER FOR WEST YORK.

LARGE GATHERING OF ELECTORS

On Wednesday night, 14th inst., Mr. N. C. Wallace, member for West York, had the pleasure of meeting a large number of his constituents in Seaton village. A platform had been erected within an enclosure attached to a hotel at the corner of Bloor and Dathurst streets, and from this the assemblage was addressed. Over one hundred persons were present, and great enthusiasm was manifested. The speakers, of whom there were several, were frequently interrupted by cheers and by expressions of the fullest approbation. Mr. Vaughan occupied the chair, and shortly before eight o'clock the meeting was opened. The Chairman, in his opening address, referred briefly to the benefits conferred upon the country by the National Policy. Every man here, he said, could get work, and obtain a fair day's wages for a fair day's labor. In a little time, if the people of Canada remained true to the Government which had worked this prosperity, they would have factories all over the country, furnishing employment to men, women, and children. The meeting had been called by Mr. N. C. Wallace, whom they all knew. Mr. Wallace had served his constituents faithfully during the years he had occupied a seat in the House of Parliament, and it was now his desire to explain how he had fulfilled his trust. He (the chairman) would call upon Mr. James Armstrong to address the assemblage. Mr. Armstrong was received with cheers, and said that in 1878 Mr. Wallace was elected to Parliament to carry out certain pledges which he had made. At that time the country was in the slough of despond. The people of Canada had then weighed carefully the measures proposed by the Conservative party, and had evidently considered that they would be beneficial to the country, for they decided to give the National Policy a chance. Sir John Macdonald was returned to power, and with him Mr. N. C. Wallace had been returned to Parliament for West York. About half the term for which he had been elected had expired, and Mr. Wallace came back to his constituents to give an account of that part of his stewardship, and he (the speaker) was sure he could do so satisfactorily. He had carried out his promise. The tariff had been changed, and it was for the people to say whether or not the change had benefited the country. No one could go out from his home without finding evidence that the

COUNTRY HAD PROSPERED EXCEEDINGLY

during the last two or three years. (Cheers.) A proof of this statement was found in the fact that during August, 1881, there had been $7,000,000 more money in circulation around the Dominion than in the corresponding period of 1880. Another proof lay in the fact that money could now be borrowed on more advantageous terms, and with less interest to pay than in former years. Money was plentiful and no one was unemployed. The difficulty now was to get men enough to do the work. Labor also was of much higher value. It had been urged by the friends of the Opposition that, admitting labor commanded a higher price than in former years, the cost of living had also increased. This argument he had heard advanced by a laborer. Said the man: "I pay $5 75 per ton for coal now, whereas some time ago I paid only $4 per ton. I am quite satisfied, however, because when coal was cheap I had no money at all to pay for it, and now I can afford the increased price." It was the intention of Mr. Wallace this evening to give some information about

THE WORK OF THE GOVERNMENT and the position it then occupied, and consequently he (Mr. Armstrong) would not detain his hearers with a long address. He would add, however, that the Grits were going to make a desperate effort at the next election to pull down the flag of Conservatism and progress, but he did not think they would succeed. (Loud cheers and cries of "No.") The people of Seaton, he knew, were nearly all Conservatives, and he was certain they would all be under the one banner in 1883. A man could not long remain blind or deaf to his own interests. (Cheers.)

Mr. A. M. McDonald

was then called upon. He spoke strongly in eulogy of Mr. N. C. Wallace, and referred to his own terms to the fidelity to trust and the ability displayed by that gentleman during his brief parliamentary career. He believed that previous to the advent of Sir John Macdonald to power in 1878 there was a good deal of money in the country, but those who owned it kept it locked up, because they were then afraid to invest it under the then existing circumstances. He would the Opposition be surprised to learn that the five years they had spent in sitting N. C. Wallace, and retained in sitting terms to the fidelity to trust and the ability displayed by that gentleman during his brief parliamentary career. He believed that previous to the advent of Sir John Macdonald to power in 1878 there was a good deal of money in the country, but those who owned it kept it locked up, because they were then afraid to invest it under the then existing circumstances.

QUESTIONS FOR THE PICKNICKERS.

To the Editor of the Herald: Sir,—Get some person at the Grit Picnic to ask some questions of Messrs. Blake and Mackenzie. 1.—Did not Messrs. Blake and Mackenzie sell the Timber limits on 24 Townships, 9 millions of acres, for about 20 cents an acre, before getting the consent of Parliament, in direct contradiction of their solemn pledge, and cardinal principle that they would expend no public money without getting the consent of Parliament. Does not these fearful Michigan bush fires show clearly what the fate of many thousands of poor settlers in Muskoka will be by and by when fires get in a more cruel wrong never was perpetrated, and yet you will talk of being the poor man's friend. 2.—Did Messrs. Blake and Mackenzie during the five years they were at the head of the Government in Ottawa endeavor to get a syndicate to carry through our Pacific Railway. No. They waited till Sir John went to England and with much exertion got our present syndicate arranged, but then waited till he returned, and until they found what were the terms agreed upon and then made a pretended offer lower. Such conduct is amusing, particularly as the present Syndicate is lower than Mr. Mackenzie offered the township of Bentinck was waited on by an agent for "Excelsior Henry Jones," who desired to support his sub-agent in the purchase of the land, and give the chance to make money the agents terms being very liberal, and he willingly signed a paper which he had never seen, and which he had not read, and which he had not understood. It seems the "agent" had substituted a promissory note for the proposed agreement, and Mr. Mackenzie could not see the note, but he noticed the deception. He refused to pay, being the agent in court. It was not the original note who made the land for a private note for a third party who had required the note. The fraud had been practised, and granted a nonsuit. It is said that ten other cases were depending on the decision in the suit against Dingham.

WESTON, Sept. 19th, 1881.

DETROIT, Sept. 16.—The Governor appeals to the people of the United States for aid to the sufferers by the forest fires. He says that the number of men, women and children left without shelter is now estimated at 15,000. Hanlan is out with a challenge to row Ross or any other man in the world for $500 or $1,000. This will end his rowing career, he says, as he intends devoting his whole attention to his hotel business.

Wedding Bells.

On Monday last, Mr. Wm. Proctor was married at the Metropolitan Church, Toronto, to Miss Tiley Storey, both of Richmond Hill. The Rev. John Potts, D. D. performed the ceremony. Miss Kennedy, of Yorkville, was bridesmaid, and Mr. Alfred Proctor, of Aurora, groomsmen. After the ceremony the happy young couple proceeded to Woodstock, on a wedding tour. Their many friends will join with us in wishing them long and happy lives, and a future as bright and joyous as life now appears.

WOODBRIDGE.

(From our own Correspondent.) A great deal of sickness prevails among around the village just now. The doctors are at a stand still to know the exact cause of so much of it. A great many children died within this last month with whooping cough, which has been prevalent some months.

Hammond VS. Yorkville Corporation.

This was an action tried before His Honor Judge Boyd at the Division Court on Wednesday, brought by the night-watchman, Hammond, against the Yorkville Corporation, for wrongful dismissal. Damages were laid at $60. It appears from the evidence that Mr. Hammond was appointed in the fall of 1880 at $125 per month as watchman. His salary was paid monthly, and after some eight months' service, on account of his being on a sick leave, he received from Robert Gibson a month's notice in writing that his services would not be required after the 31st May last. Mr. Hammond testified that when Mr. Gibson notified him (Gibson) to leave him to put the notice in his pocket and not take any notice of it—that if he got a place in the village to board it would be all right—and therefore he took no notice of the notice, and did not leave on the 31st May, but continued to perform his duties until Monday, 6th June, when the notice came to him while on duty in Yorkville court room and asked him if he had moved into Yorkville, to which Hammond replied "he had got a room in the village," adding that he would send in a report to the council. Mr. Gibson considered this was unnecessary, saying "it was all right." Hammond, however, out of courtesy to the council, sent in a report that "Constable Hammond respectfully reported to the Council, that he had been notified by the Council on Monday, 6th June, that he was to leave a room in the village." On the following Wednesday Mr. Gibson came to Hammond in the Police Station, paid him seven days' pay, handed him the pay sheet for that amount, which he signed, and then Mr. Gibson informed him he was dismissed. Some months previous Mr. Gibson informed Mr. Hammond that if he desired to leave he would have to give the Council a month's notice, and if the Council wished to dismiss him they would have to give him a month's notice. Previous to his dismissal some month or two, Hammond applied for the position of Chief of Police at Sarnia, upon which occasion a certificate of good character, embracing sobriety, intelligence, and efficiency was given him, under the seal of the corporation, and signed by the Reeve, and Deputy-Reeve Saunders, and by Councilors Vair and Foster, and the Chief Constable and Clerk of the Council. It also stated that Hammond had been in the employment of the Corporation for eight months and was put on the list of men to be employed in the case of Mr. W. B. Cameron was counsel for Mr. Hammond, and Mr. Tilt for the Council.—News.

THE WOODBRIDGE TRAGEDY.

INTERESTING TO FARMERS AND OTHERS.

A case was tried on Wednesday, 14th inst., in the Division Court, before His Honor Judge Boyd, and was taken up by farinos and others, residing in the rural districts. Some time ago Henry Jones, the township of Bentinck, was waited on by an agent for "Excelsior Henry Jones," who desired to support his sub-agent in the purchase of the land, and give the chance to make money the agents terms being very liberal, and he willingly signed a paper which he had never seen, and which he had not read, and which he had not understood. It seems the "agent" had substituted a promissory note for the proposed agreement, and Mr. Mackenzie could not see the note, but he noticed the deception. He refused to pay, being the agent in court. It was not the original note who made the land for a private note for a third party who had required the note. The fraud had been practised, and granted a nonsuit. It is said that ten other cases were depending on the decision in the suit against Dingham.

WORTH KNOWING.—There are some business men so perversely inclined as to assert, contrary to their convictions, of course, that "Nobody reads advertisements." However, when an unfortunate reporter fails to give prominence to the prizes won by these same skeptics, or misrepresents any act of theirs, their actions quickly give the lie to their words, and we betide the newspaper man who has thus slighted them.

SUBSCRIPTIONS.—This is to advise that our terms for subscriptions are, when not paid in advance, $1.50. These terms will be enforced if collections have to be made through outside parties. We are willing, however, to accept payment at the rate of one dollar per year, if remittance is made at once.

John McFarlane, of Vaughan, went to Toronto to see the Exhibition, and at the Union Station met two strangers, who seemed anxious to "show him around." While on their ramble one of the men wanted McFarlane to purchase a watch from him, which, however, the latter would not do. They then started to go to Hanlan's, but the watch there was too public a place to suit the confidence men, who lauded their intended victim east of the hotel. Here they demanded his money or his life, but Mac utterly refused to surrender either, and drew a pocket knife instead. The men are believed to be running still.

CHURCH DEDICATION.—On Sabbath,

The Revs. Mr. Carson and Graham will address the meeting.

Robinson & Kent,

that valuable Freehold property in the Township of Markham, Reeve of Aurora, and Mr. H. Dunton, Reeve of York, were here on Saturday last, looking at proposed sites for the Industrial Home. Mr. Arnold's farm on the 2nd Con. of Vaughan was inspected, and Mr. Boyle's near Patterson. We understand that they expressed themselves highly pleased with the land and the location. It is not decided yet where the buildings will be erected, but the chances are that one of the above farms will be chosen.

NOT ENGAGED.—The Managing Committee for the Reform Pic-Nic have no doubt had considerable trouble in making their arrangements, but we would have been better pleased if our Band had been engaged, and one of our villagers secured the job of providing dinner. We understand that economy was the rule, and for the sake of saving a few dollars, the Richmond Hill Band was not engaged.

CORRECTION.

Mr. J. Langstaff, of Langstaff, sent the following to the Editor of the News:—Six-In the Telegram of Wednesday, Miss Langstaff was charged with galloping her horse through the crowd, running over a child, and heartlessly kept on her course without even looking back to see the injury done.

Now, the above is so utterly false that, in justice to Miss Langstaff, I deem it my duty to contradict it, if you will kindly allow me space. On our coming from the dressing-room we trotted slowly along, the space in front being clear, when a child ran across the track a short distance in front. It was almost immediately called back, this time running almost directly in Miss Langstaff's way, whose skirts merely touched it as it passed. If parents were severely censured for not having proper control over their children, it would be much more appreciated that the scandalous article which appeared in the Telegram of Wednesday, which seems to be possessed with an uncontrollable desire to print sensational articles, however regardless of the truth.

Yours, &c.,

J. LANGSTAFF.
