How to Carry East York.
The Economist is getting very anxious about East York, and a few weeks ago gave its readers to understand the lines of action upon which to carry the riding for its friends. This is no less than persistent and determined abuse and misrepresentation of the present member for the House of Commons, Mr. A. Boulbee, who is also the Conservative Candidate for the next election.

But the Opposition journal in East York is not singular in its course. The Reform papers, generally, are adopting the same course, and the journal which undertakes to guide the Reformers of West York has graduated from the same school, and is now eager and anxious to distinguish itself in the manner indicated.

When the Economist has anything to say, politically, it says it right out, and the language used is not by any means creditable to the organ or the party it speaks for. Now, what intelligent man could be expected to believe that the report it gave of the recent Conservative Convention was anything near the truth. It was not to be expected that the Economist would view the Convention in the same light that the Conservatives did, but no one expected even the Economist to descend to such depths of scurrilousity.

The idea of seriously telling the Reformers of East York that Mr. T. P. White got the better of Mr. Boulbee in a political discussion, is really ridiculous to all who know the abilities of the two men, and have some knowledge of the matter under discussion.

When Mr. White stated that this country was ruled by a member of the Syndicate living in Minnesota, he showed his ignorance of who formed the Syndicate, and the amount of stock owned by the members. We rather fancy the speaker would not acquit himself to the satisfaction of his friends, by any such line of argument.

Mr. Boulbee is a supporter of a Government which does not pretend to be infallible, but one which is willing to base its claims for support on its course since last election. On this line, we apprehend, the Conservative Candidate intends to contest the constituency, and carry it too, if the electors are thoroughly alive to their own interests.

The contest will be a warm one, and there will be some hard fighting, but we do not believe Mr. Boulbee, although a bitter speaker when aroused, or the journals who support him, will ever descend to such abuse and nonsensical ascriptions as the Economist delights in.

sevens, united only in the desire to get into power.
But if the Globe really knows when the election is coming, and will let it come, we are willing, for our part. This year is just about as favorable a time as any, although we have no reason to doubt success next year.

The hope of the Opposition is that the crops will be bad, and that such a calamity will create a feeling throughout the country against the Government. It may, but we guess the Government can stand it. By all means let the election come, if it is coming.

Anniversary C. M. C. Opening.
Services, Tea-Meeting, Lecture and Social.

Anniversary services in commemoration of the opening of the C. M. Church were held on Sunday last. The Rev. Mr. Cochrane, of Toronto, occupied the pulpit in the morning and evening, and delivered very good sermons.

On Monday evening a tea-meeting was held in the vestry, and after all who wished to partake of the edibles had done so, they adjourned to the Church. The Rev. Mr. Addison took the Chair, made a short address in reference to the Anniversary, and read a statement of the Receipts and Expenditures in connection with the building of the Church. Mr. Wm. Atkinson and Mr. Wm. Trench also read statements showing the receipts and expenditure in connection with the management of the Church.

After choice selections from the choir, Mr. Addison introduced the Lecturer, the Rev. Mr. Jeffrey, of Cobourg, who kept the audience interested and amused for about two hours, by a lecture on "How to Rise in the World." He advised every one not to go into anything unless it would pay them, and said he would not be religious unless he could make money by it. Every one should endeavor to rise as high in the world as possible, and by perseverance, and push there was scarcely any limit to the capabilities of man. He would not change places with the highest Archangel in heaven, as man had greater intelligence, and greater capabilities of enjoyment than any angel would ever know.

Every man should find out what he is best fitted for, get into it, and with a fixed purpose and some object in view direct all his energies towards obtaining the desired point. Young men should cultivate truthfulness, temperance, religiousness, observation, self-reliance, etc., should look at both sides of a matter before going into it, and learn to say "No" and "Yes" and stick to it. The lecturer advised people to marry young, as it would benefit them financially, and every other way. Filtration is all right but should not be carried too far. Two years was long enough for any courtship, and married life was never so complete and perfect if the marriage took place after the respective parties were in the neighborhood of thirty or thirty-five years of age.

The young ladies were given excellent advice about the kind of young men to marry, and the young men were also favored with good advice on the same point. In summing up the lecturer strongly impressed his hearers with the necessity of living a good Christian life.

Sherwood.
(From our own Correspondent)
The Concert in the M. E. Church, Sherwood, on the 8th inst. was not as successful as it would have been under more favorable circumstances. The room being almost impassable, and a good many of the performers did not put in a good appearance. In the absence of the pastor, Mr. W. J. Bull was called on to take the chair, when the programme, consisting of solos, readings, recitations, and an able address by Rev. E. J. Beck, was ably rendered.

Mr. W. J. Bull has opened a little store in this village, which he has named "The Liberal." He says he is selling at exceedingly low prices. Sherwood, March 14th, 1882.

The "Liberal" on Rapid Transit.
To the Editor of the Herald:

Sir—The LIBERAL man cannot find any silly boy-and-girl love affair to write about, he turns his attention to the "How to Rise in the World" article in last week's issue of that sheet, there is an article by the name of "How to Rise in the World" in which the writer attempts to be witty and amusing by telling us that we should be placed in a work-shop, which was calculated to draw attention to themselves, and afford an unenviable publicity to the young ladies so directly alluded to. The act of these youngsters was silly and thoughtless enough, but the spectacle of indignity across the road from you," showed that he had considerable less sense than people generally credited him with possessing. When he published the matter in his paper, and last week, he made a proposed trip to the North-West, an excuse for venting some more spite.

It would be much better for the gossiping booby to attend to his own business, and let that of his neighbors alone. The young man he refers to is going to Winnipeg and back so rapidly, did not return because he was working on a road of 800, neither did he return because his conduct had been so disgraceful that he was disowned by his friends, but because he was tired and wanted to rest. If this young man did start for Winnipeg and found reason to change his mind and come back, it is not his business, but his own.

By Mr. James, from Josiah Hill and fifteen others, asking aid for Joseph Chessman, an indigent.

By Mr. Forster, from A. Wideman and seven others, asking that S. P. Raymer be appointed guardian for Mrs. N. C. Raymer. Explanations were made by some of the signers and ratifiers claiming that Mr. Joseph Grov had been recommended by these working on road in 1881; they being amongst them.

Mr. James, seconded by Mr. Forster, moved that the Treasurer pay R. T. Hawkins $2.75, for repairing bridge and culvert in Div. No. 7, and for material for the same, payable on order of the mover.
