Using The Surplus.

Some men, honorable in every other particular, do not hesitate to act dishonorably in political matters. We care not who the man is, or what position he holds, nothing should tempt him to speak falsely,-to plainly and fairly tell an untruth for the sake of making some man vote as he desires.

But they will do this,-more is the pity, and we are sorry to record that we heard of a case in our own neighborhood the other day.

One of our leading Grits approached manner gave him to understand that the Conservatives were spending large sums of money in Markham, bribing the elec-tors. The voter said "Boultbee could not afford to spend money, and where were the funds coming from ?" "Oh." replied the Grit, "the Conservatives are spending some of the surplus they have at Ottawa."

Now, we actually believe that we are is intelligent enough to know that he was not telling the truth. He knows well enough that no Government has control of public funds in any such manner, and even were the Government disposed to use the surplus they could not do so without putting themselves in the power of such matters.

No funds can be taken out of the Probably there are some people who imagine that when Sir John wants a dollar he just walks around to the Treasury tells the officials to go out for a walk, and then helps himself to the wealth in the vaults. There may be some such aft agee." and our would be member people, but for the credit of our country, we hope the Grits as a class, are more intelligent.

And the leading Grit we refer to knows better. What are we to think? That he actually acted in such a dishonor able manner in order to make a point against the Government, hoping that the person he was talking to could be easily stuffed? It is a great pity that men will allow their party feeling to influence them in this way.

No party is worth supporting if a man cannot support it without acting contrary to his conscience and understanding. Far better to take no part in find something against the 'covernment that is really true, without manufacturing charges. The Government are not perfect, and have made mistakes. Why not oppose them in an intelligent and honorable manner, if they are not worthy of the position. When men are driven to resort to untruth and misrepresentation to injure any one, it shows that the bad or discreditable can be said against So it is in party matters and so the majority of the electors will decide

An Effective Speaker.

Mr. Wallace surprised more than one the Opposition speakers at Parkdale in the face of the strongest protest on the We have heard from more than one per- part of the Bar. son that he proved a match for them his seward all. Nothing puzzles the Grits worse effective style of speaking shown by Mr. him, and in favor of Mr. Hodgins, that the latter was a speaker of a much superior order. But when the two men dumbfounded. Mr. Wallace need fear for the last four years has given a loval since 1878, and he deserves great credit to develop the magnificent resources of for acquiring such ability in a time very short indeed compared to the many years during which the greater number of political men, -and notably lawyers .have the benefit of labored and continued exertion in this respect The Grits are loth to acknowledge, but they have to ad mit that "he can speak," and to good advantage too.

The Conservative pic nic at Markham on Wednesday, was a grand success. The attendance was large, and the enthusiasm great. Sir John made an eloquent speech and seemed in the best of health and spirits. He evidently felt confident of carrying the country. Among the speakers were Messrs Boultbee and Speight, the latter of whom spoke in favor of the N. P and announced his intention of voting for it.

The Grit Candidate in West York.

Mr. Thomas Hodgins, Q. C., is carrying the much bedragged banner of the Grit party, in this Riding. It will be well to enquire who this individual is, who is ambitious of representing West York in the House of Commons

Mr. Hodgins was a prominent member of the Blackbottle Brigade, who in-Volume 25. cluded in its ranks, such illustrious embryo Grit statesmen as J. D. Edger, R. W. Wells and David Blaine, the latter of whom misrepresented us for a time at Ottawa. The duties of this noble band was to promote the spread of good Reform principles by the free dissemination of Canadian forty rod among voters of doubtful political predilections Mr. Hodgins, we believe, filled the distinguished position of Lieutenant. The gushing and political Edgar being the revered Captain.

After qualifying as a "tried Reformer"

the power that swayed the Globe, as the party's caudidate for West Elgin, in the Ontario Legislature, and in fit of temporary mental aberration on the part of the electors of that illatarred constituency, they returned him as their member. For several years he discharged with singular success the important duties of hore of the House. whenever he rose to enter upon one of a voter, and in a quiet and mysterfous his constitutional disquisitions there being an immediate rush to the smoking rooms and bar, the whiteheaded apeaker and a few dispirited-looking ministers being left to endure the agony of his ponderous ele-

In the session of 1878, a feeling of holy jov pervaded the assembly, for it was whis-pered that the member for West Elgin, feeling his mighty intellect "cabined, cribbed and confined" in the Local Legislature, was about to offer himself as a candidate for West Toronto, for the House of telling the truth when we say that man Commons, and that never again would his voice be heard droning through the "wee sua hours" in the Untario Chamber. The speaker particularly, was serenely happy, he felt that life would not be unendurable.

It must be distinctly understood that Mr. Hodgins never expected to carry West Toronto any more than be now does to carry West York, but he felt that although of many officials who would be cognizant his election was not sure, his reward was. He never anticipated that the Mackensie Government would receive the condign treasury in any such school-boy style. punishment they did, from the hands of an indignant people, but looked forward with calm confidence to soon taking his place on the Judicial Brech as the late lamented Chief Justice Hairison was then sinking into his too early grave. He realized that his dreams of wearing the judicial ermine were destined never to be fulfilled

There is a wise saying of the poet, What ever evil you suffer,
The words of the Bage rehearse:
Though things may be bad, you duffer,
They might be a good deal worse.

And this Mr Hodgins has good reason for believing. Although Mr. Bedgins' big Government bad town by the Board, and comfort and consolation. Comfort and consolation he has received to a very considerable extent, as any person may see from an examination of the public accounts of Ontario, wherein the name of Thomas Bodgins frequently occurs as the recipient of large amounts of public money for services rendered as Crown Counsel.

But the beneficence of the Grit party to their henchmen, did not stop here. FACING MACKENZIE AND HODGINS. The Grits held a meeting in the Masonic Hall, in this village, on Monday afternoon last. The posters particularly requested the presence of the Reformers only, and it was expected that Messrs. Mackenzie and Hodgins would not fail to tell all good Reformers just what they should know. The managers did not invite any people on the Conservative even Mackenzie and Hodgins, alone and this office.

There was a large attendance of electors, both political parties being well represented. The hall was crowded to the doors. Mr. J. Lawrence occupied the Chair, and on the platform, besides day, was a good one. Prices were high, the speakers, we noticed with pleasure especially mileh cows. a number of ladies, among whom were the following; Mrs. J. Newton, Mrs. I. M. Mr. Hodgins addressed the meeting on the Boundary Award, the Redistribution Bill, the National Policy, and the Rivers and Streams Bill. He presented his view of these questions very fairly, but in a stereotyped style and in a manner that could only impress or influence voters who come under the class of 'strong Grits." He showed that he is far inferior to Mr Wallace as a platform speaker, no matter claim on the Mowai Government, and draw defeated in an election.

WEDDINGS. Wedding Parties seem all the go around here of late. Four were reported at the Mayor's office last week This sounds well for the N. P.

A STRANGE HOTEL. The other day a stranger visiting our town took the Temperance Hall for an Hotel.

There is some talk about running an old "Gent," now residing at the Hotel, for our affairs of our town.

The Painter has been very sick since the complaint more or less I believe that our 24th, but we are very happy to see him danger from exposure from this time forward around again. Billous fever seemed to have is past, as St. Jacobs Oil, if applied in time been the cause.

A few days ago it was hinted around town that a leading trit of No 4 Sub-division went to the city and got so full of "Tangle-footed whiskey" that he stopped there two days and spent what loose change he had and had to walk home. No doubt your friend J. A. S. S., across the would rather have given a dollar than have this leak out. JARE.
