

More Voters.

The idea seems to be steadily growing that the franchise should be extended, and that the same qualifications for voters should apply all over the Dominion.

The Newmarket Era of last week, strongly advocates extending to the sons of tradesmen, merchants, &c., in towns and cities, the same privilege that is given to the farmer's sons in Ontario.

There is no reason why the former class should not be allowed to vote at Provincial and Dominion elections. They are as intelligent and as well conducted as the rural youths and should not be deterred from the privilege of voting.

Mr. Mowat extended the franchise to farmers' sons, but stopped there. Probably he thought the young men in towns could not be depended on to stick to him. But he would certainly have a fair share of supporters, even if the balance was slightly against him.

But the worst feature in connection with voting for members of the House of Commons is that a man who is entitled to vote in Ontario could not do so in other Provinces. In Prince Edward Island manhood suffrage is the law practically, and this should be the case all over the Dominion.

Any young man, whether he is a farmer's son, or the son of a merchant, manufacturer, or mechanic, should have a say in electing our rulers. Of course restrictions will be made regarding residence in the country, etc., but every intelligent law-abiding citizen who pays taxes to the Government, and every working man in the country pays taxes, should have a voice in saying how the taxes shall be imposed, and who shall govern the country.

Mr. Mowat stopped short in the work. The Dominion Government should pass a law making manhood suffrage the rule throughout the whole country. Sir John would not lose any friends by such a liberal act.

A Civic Holiday.

The hot, sultry weather seems to make people long for holidays, and in the neighboring towns and villages the citizens are arranging for Civic Holidays and Excursions to some popular resort. Stouffville had its picnic on the 26th. The Presbyterians had an excursion to Midland City, on the Georgian Bay, and the fare was only one dollar. Tickets were good for two days. Midland City is described as a very pleasant place to visit. The Boatmen is agitating the matter in Aurora, and proposes that Richmond Hill, Newmarket, and Aurora join in together and make one Grand Excursion.

The idea is a good one, and by selecting the same day, and the same pleasure resort, the fare would be reduced to a trifling expense. The main question is "Where can we go for a pleasant day, and see something new?" The different Parks around Toronto, the Island, Niagara Falls, and other celebrated places have been excursionized to death, in the opinion of many people. Hamilton is a new spot, and the trip across the Lake from Toronto a very pretty one. But, we suppose there are other places to be considered, and will cheerfully publish any letter suggesting a particular point. Perhaps the fertile brain of the Boatmen man has evolved the right place.

Reformers and the "Globe."

There is a good deal of talk about placing the control of the Globe in other hands, but the Reformers who are dissatisfied with its course at the last election will find that Mr. Gordon Brown is not so easily removed, as they seem to expect. He and his relations hold the controlling in the company, and those who would like to have the management of the concern, must buy up enough stock to control the votes. It is hardly likely that the Reformers will do this. But they could settle their little difficulties, and differences of opinion, by holding a convention of the prominent men of the party, and coming to some mutual and distinct understanding, on all leading questions. Then if the Globe continues to oppose what the majority of the party are agreed on, let them start a new paper, and leave the Globe to take an independent, non-party stand.

Matriculation Examination.

The women's local examinations are held in eight places outside of Toronto. Brantford Young Ladies' College passed five; Drummondville High School, four; Elora High School, seven; Pickering College, five; Richmond Hill H. S., seven; St. Mary's H. S. eight; St. Thomas H. S., 21; Thorold H. S., 7; Toronto Coll., 1st, 8; Richard Institute, 4; and Morryn House, one.

Women's Local Examinations.

Twenty-two candidates were rejected in arts and two in medicine. The following are the names of those who passed the Matriculation Examination from Richmond Hill High School: Miss Nabel Koefer, Miss O. Seager, Miss J. Walkington, Miss M. Rutherford, Miss E. L. Marsh, Miss Jessie Harris, Miss Nellie Prueks.

The Assessment Sustained.

There are very few Assessors who do not have appeals made against their returns, but seldom, if ever, has there been an appeal made on more flimsy grounds than those which were tried before Judge Boyd, in this village, on Monday last.

The Council seems to have been fortunate in securing the services of the present assessor. This year there seems to be a general feeling that he has done his work carefully, well and conscientiously, and only those who allow political prejudice to blind their judgement, have found any fault. There were very few changes made in the assessment by the Council, this year, and only two appeals were made against the decision of the Council.

James M. Lawrence, Esq., agent for the Brillinger Estate, in this village, appeared before the Council some time ago, and desired to have the assessment of this estate altered, manifestly in order to secure votes for the party to which he belongs at present. He also wished the Council to change the assessment of a lot belonging to Mr. Coulter.

The Council very properly declined to place on the roll five men as owners of a property, on which eleven persons have the same claim, (although they will not actually own the property until the death of the present owner,) and which is only valued at $1,000. The intention evidently was to bulldoze the Council into giving these men votes, when they had no legal or moral right to a vote, as the law now stands. The assessment of Mr. Coulter's property was right enough, only the assessor had made a slight error in the amount of land, when copying from his rough draft. He explained the matter to the Council, at the Court of Revision, and they changed the figures to the proper number.

Mr. Lawrence also appealed against the action of the Council in this case, as he was evidently afraid that the change made would give another vote against the political party he professes, at present, to assist.

The case was heard before Judge Boyd, on Monday last. Mr. Hodgins, the defeated aspirant for West York, argued the case against the Council. The assessor appeared as his own counsel, and held his own against the lawyer. The Judge decided that the Council had acted correctly in the Coulter assessment, but reserved his decision in the Brillinger case until Wednesday, when he notified the Village Clerk that, in his opinion, there were no grounds for changing the assessment. Thus in both cases the assessor and the Council were sustained.

Mr. Lawrence also appealed against the action of the Council in this case, as he was evidently afraid that the change made would give another vote against the political party he professes, at present, to assist.

The case was heard before Judge Boyd, on Monday last. Mr. Hodgins, the defeated aspirant for West York, argued the case against the Council. The assessor appeared as his own counsel, and held his own against the lawyer. The Judge decided that the Council had acted correctly in the Coulter assessment, but reserved his decision in the Brillinger case until Wednesday, when he notified the Village Clerk that, in his opinion, there were no grounds for changing the assessment. Thus in both cases the assessor and the Council were sustained.

Health or Wealth.

The Council shows a very commendable spirit in passing the Fire By-law, and providing certain penalties for those who do not comply with its requirements. But there is no use passing By-laws unless the Council is determined to see that they are carried into effect. Indeed it is questionable whether it would not be the better policy to pass no by-law, that they are not eager and prompt to carry out. Such neglect gives the public a false idea of security, and a great and constantly increasing disrespect for the law. We hope the Council will see that this law is enforced.

Complaints have been made, and, no doubt, in some instances, on good grounds that the "Public Health" By-law is a dead letter, and that the Inspector, instead of making an official visit every Spring, and during the Summer, has not officially inspected the yards, etc., of the village for some years. Several years ago the Council authorized this official to make a tour throughout the village, and that year there was many a yard cleaned for the first time since it became known as a yard.

Surely the health of the people is a much more important item than the protection of their wealth. This very hot weather is certain to breed disease where uncleanness prevails.

The Council should certainly instruct the Inspector to attend to the Health By-law, when he is making his official inspection in regard to the Fire By-law. Those of our citizens whose yards and premises are kept in proper condition, will have no objection to a visit from the Inspector, and all those who do not keep their yards and buildings in a clean condition should certainly be made to do so.

A Reliable Prophet.

As the "Rev Sturgeon" is not willing to accept gracefully the crushing rebuke administered to him and the party, by the elections of West York, we reprint the following "forecast of the good time coming" as published in that the Liberal on the 19th of May:

"In West York there was 1800 unpolled votes in 1878. It is a well known fact that almost every Conservative vote not only in West York, but in the Province, was polled on that occasion, as well as securing a large number of Reform votes, who were called by the N.P. Then if we allow for votes that would not in any case be polled, and a margin for dissenting Conservatives (one-third of the number, we have still about 1000 remaining, which we must assume to be almost exclusively Reform in 1878. Mr. Wallace had a majority of 212 with the help of the many Reformers who voted for the N.P. but in 1882, with only those Reformers returned to their first love, and their number increased by intelligent Conservatives who have openly avowed their intention of discontinuing the course pursued by the Government, both on the Boundary Award and the Gentryman's Bill, where will Mr. Wallace's majority come? We submit these few facts for that gentleman's supreme consideration."

Verily, the prophets are not all dead yet. However, Mr. Wallace has the "supreme consolation" of knowing that he is elected member for West York by the handsome majority of 237.

The well known drug firm of N. C. Polson & Co., of Kingston, writes that Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has long been considered the best remedy for summer complaints in the market, and adds that their customers speak in the highest terms of its merits. Wild Strawberry is the best known remedy for Cholera Morbus, Dysentery, and all Bowel Complaints.

BANQUET.
TO CLARKE WALLACE.

Enthusiastic Gathering at Parkdale.

It was peculiarly appropriate that a banquet in honor of Mr. N. Clarke Wallace, the member-elect for West York, should be held in the thriving village of Parkdale—a portion of the village which has always been regarded as a Grit stronghold, but which at the last election returned the decisive majority of twenty-nine for the Conservative candidate. The success which attended the banquet amply justified this selection.

The Town Hall on Friday night was handsomely decorated for the occasion. The walls were hung with flags, and around the room were shields, each bearing the name of a Minister of the Dominion. At the south end of the hall was a raised platform for the use of the chief guests, and on their table was a ballot box inscribed with the figures, "29" and "237," representing Mr. Wallace's majority in Parkdale and the whole riding respectively.

A word of praise is due to those who prepared the programme of toasts and selected the mottoes.

The following are a few of them:—"The Local Legislature" was followed by the significant words non est error. "Parkdale and its majority of 29" was appropriately followed by Shakespeare's words "O such a day, so fought, so followed, and so fairly won," and "The Press" as "Mightiest of the mighty means, on which the arm of progress leans."

The chair was occupied by Major John Gray, president of the Parkdale Liberal-Conservative Association, under the auspices of which the banquet was held; the vice-chairmen were A. W. Luder, M. P. P. G. Tall, D. A. Stutford, Geo. Bennett, Wm. Fahy, Thos. Booth, A. B. Black, C. F. Mansell, G. Rowe, J. A. Saunders, Geo. Booth, and W. Todd.

Among those present not previously mentioned were:—Mr. Clarke Wallace, A. H. Barry, J. Beatty, W. Wedd, Isaac Lenoir, C. Cole, postmaster, W. Gaynor, J. Hall, R. Barry, C. Weeks, P. Peppiatt, J. Gander, J. Beatty, W. Parsons, A. G. Parker, Robert Clark, J. Coxhead, H. Taylor, S. Laxton, W. Griffith, M. Woods, L. Sharpe, A. Wiseman, from Toronto;—W. Hunter, A. Macdonell, F. Donovan, H. Hill, J. Hewitt, T. Bailey, H. Bovell, A. Livingston, A. Fowler, T. Pewsey, Dr. T. P. R. A. Payne, from Vaughan and Weston;—Mr. Duncan W. Parsons, H. Giles, J. Duck, R. McArthur, H. P. Ellis, from Woodbridge;—Mr. McIntosh, Mr. Rowntree, W. Mackay, C. Wallace, H. Abell, Oliver Wilby.

Letters expressing regret at inability to be present were received from Chief Justice Spence, Hon. John O'Donohue, Senator Macpherson, Sir Alexander Campbell, Hon. J. A. Mosses, Hon. Mackenzie Bowell, Hon. John Costigan, Sir Hector Langevin, Hon. Frank Smith, Thos. White, M. P., Dalton McCarthy, M. P., T. Robert, M. P.

Grace having been said by Rev. Father Morris, the guests proceeded to demolish the excellent banquet prepared by Mr. Widding. The menu having been discussed, the chairman called the meeting to order.

The usual loyal toasts were proposed and responded to.

The Chairman in proposing the toast of the evening, said that he had to congratulate West York on returning Mr. Wallace to Parliament after a hard fight by a majority of 237. The Conservatives had a good cause to fight for, and a candidate popular throughout the riding, who they respected and admired, and this inspired them to unusual exertions. He trusted that they would be able to retain West York for another term after this. (Cheers.)

Mr. N. C. Wallace, who on rising to respond was received with loud and prolonged cheering, said that he could not sufficiently express the gratification he felt at the magnificent demonstration they had given him that evening. He was not vain enough to imagine that it was simply in recognition any merits of his own for he well understood it was a spontaneous testimony on the part of the people of Parkdale to the popularity of the Government he had been returned to support. He was happy to be allowed to join in their rejoicing over the great victory the Conservatives had won all over the country. The result of that victory was that Sir John would be able for another five years to develop the National Policy which had already done so much to prosper the country. Not only the farmers but the manufacturing and industrial classes had been benefited by the operation of the National Policy. Now that public confidence had been restored in the stability of that policy, the manufacturers would still further invest in capital. It had been said by their opponents that the country would be ruined by manufactures, but this was not likely to occur when they had the North-west to absorb all their surplus goods for the next twenty-five years. (Cheers.) He had often said that the distinguishing difference between a Conservative and a Reformer was that the former had faith and confidence in the country and the latter had none. The present leader of the Opposition had moved resolution after resolution to delay the opening of the North-west. The Reform party in opposing the N. P. showed that they had concluded on third page.

A grand procession of all the Trades and Labor Organizations in Toronto, took place in that city on Saturday. There were three thousand persons in the procession, which is described as one of the grandest ever seen in Toronto.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT.—To whom you may, in every country and in all climates, persons will be found who have a ready word of praise for this Ointment. For chaps, chafes, scalds, bruises and sprains, it is an invaluable remedy; for bad legs caused by accident or cold it may be confidently relied upon for effecting a sound and permanent cure. In cases of puffed ankles, erysipelas and rheumatism, Holloway's Ointment gives the greatest comfort by reducing the inflammation, cooling the blood, soothing the nerves, adjusting the circulation, and expelling the impurities. This Ointment should have a place in every nursery. It will cure all those manifold skin affections, which originate in childhood, gain strength with the child's growth.

A grand picnic takes place at Holland Landing to-day. (Thursday.) Mr. Mulock and his friends have fine weather for their holiday.

If mothers and nurses would cease giving opiates in the guise of Paregoric, and Cordials, and for children teething and subject to bowel complaints, give instead Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, the lives of many infants might be saved that are sacrificed to deadly drugs.

Sunday morning at Helena, Tex., as a wagon was crossing a bridge, exploded two Mexican cans and four miles were blown to atoms. Another man was blown to pieces, and killed. The cause of the explosion is unknown.

LOCAL ITEMS.

Autograph Albums and Birth-day Cards, just arrived at the HERALD Store.

RECOVERED.—We are pleased to see that Mr. Moodie, of the "British Flag Staff," has recovered from an accident he met with a few days ago, by which his leg was severely sprained.

During the present month, Mrs. Gamble, who intends giving up business, will sell her entire stock of Boots and Shoes, at Cost Prices.

HARVESTING.—The farmers around here are about through haying, and many of them have started cutting barley, oats, and wheat. The crops are good.

At a meeting of the School Board on Saturday, a letter was read from Mr. McBride, requesting an increase of salary. The Board decided to raise the salary to $1100.

THE BEAR.—It seems that the bear is not dead yet. He has been wandering in the swamps around Aurora, and several hunting parties were after him last week, but failed to secure a good shot. The children are afraid to go out berry picking. The bear is now in the Ridges swamp, two miles south of Aurora.

A communication has been received in reference to a poem which appeared in the Markham Economist last week, regarding a Methodist Church Concert, recently held at Buttonville, but the poem is not worthy of a reply, and our space will not permit.

FIRE BY-LAW.—At the last meeting of the Council a By-law for preventing the destruction of property by fire in this village, was passed. One hundred copies have been printed, and will be placed in the business places, so that ratepayers may see what is required. The provisions in the way of stove pipes, stoves, ashes, ladders, etc., are very strict, and the fines range from one to twenty dollars. Every person should read the By-law carefully, and be prepared to conform with its enactments.

E. CHURCH SOCIAL.—The Social given in aid of the English Church spire, by Mrs. John Palmer, on Saturday evening last was well attended. The spread was excellent, and the waiters were prompt and kind in attending to visitors. The Lorne Hall makes a very pleasant dining room, and the music by the Band who were seated in the Council Chamber, sounded very nice. Ice Cream, Melon, and other delicacies were provided. Every one seemed to enjoy themselves. There were a large number of friends present from Toronto, Aurora, York, Scarborough, Maple, etc. The proceeds amounted to some $40.

AFTER A THEIF.—On Friday evening last, a butcher from Purleville named McMullen, was in this village looking for a tramp who he accused of stealing a gold ring and a razor from his house. The tramp entered the house through a window, in the absence of the family, and took the articles out of a drawer. The ring and razor were subsequently seen in his possession. He was traced as far as this village, where he was last struck off.

HOT WEATHER.—The most sensible thing to do in hot weather is to keep as cool as possible, and to abstain from indulgence in alcoholic drinks or any kind of stimulants. The Yorkville News recommends cider as a good beverage, and says:—"We are inclined to recommend cider as a temperance beverage, which from its fruity and pleasant vegetable acids is peculiarly suited to hot weather. Even in fermented cider the proportion of alcohol is but one per cent, and a merely nominal stimulant, in sweet cider no alcohol is present. There is every prospect of a good apple crop, and the cider industry of Toronto if duly encouraged, may bid fair to provide a beverage for family use as pleasant as champagne, and supplying a valuable counteractant to the summer heat."

ENGLISH CHURCH CONCERT.—The Concert to be held in the Masonic Hall on Monday evening next, in aid of the Organ Fund of the English Church, promises to be a very successful one, as amongst those who will be present, and take part in the programme are Mr. Cannavan, and Miss Hillary of Toronto, the Misses Reid, and Miss Shanklin of Thornhill, and Miss Flora Coulter, Richmond Hill. This will comprise a first-class programme, and all who have ever had the pleasure of listening to any of these ladies will anticipate a great treat. Mr. Cannavan is a host in himself, with his inimitable readings, and this will be the first appearance, before an audience in this village, of Miss Hillary, who is highly spoken of by musical critics in the city, and wherever she has sung. The Band will also assist, and Miss Bertie Wilson will take part in the programme.

M. I. RE-UNION.—There was a very large attendance at the Re-union held in connection with the Mechanics' Institute, in the Masonic Hall, on Tuesday evening last. Notwithstanding the warm and sultry weather, the hall was filled to the doors, and many of those present came from a considerable distance. The chair was occupied by the President, Mr. D. J. Fairbairn. The following ladies and gentlemen took part in the programme:—The Misses Reid, Thornhill, Miss Alice Teedy and Mrs. A. Wright, Richmond Hill; Mr. R. Elliott, Buttonville; Mr. Burkholder, Maple; Messrs. C. and A. Savage, and A. Laird, Patterson; Messrs J. Wilson and W. Rogers, Richmond Hill. Several others who were expected to be present and assist with comic and classic songs, were unavoidably prevented from attending. The programme was well varied by songs, instrumental selections, readings and recitations, some of which were rendered in an able manner and with charming effect. Parts of the programme delighted those who enjoy good music and recitations, whilst others amused the average small boy to his heart's content.

An Interesting Dialogue.

The following is a briefly condensed report of a dialogue which took place between three persons, not far from this village, a few days ago. Two Grits, who are very anxious to upset Wallace's election, met a voter on the street, and after greeting him like a long-lost brother, who had just returned from a trip to the North Pole, or Central Africa, he was requested to step down to the office for a few minutes, as they wanted to see him on a matter of particular importance. Arriving at the office, they made very close and friendly enquiries regarding his health, the health of his family, and were pleased to hear that everything was going along nicely. Mr. S. waited very anxiously for the "really important business" to come to the point, and at last it came, after nearly every subject had been exhausted.

Mr. L.—Now Mr. S., how was it you came to vote for Wallace? you always voted with us before?
Mr. S.—Well like the man, and I believe in the National Policy.
Mr. L.—(aside to Mr. G.) Ask him why he likes Wallace.
Mr. G.—What reason have you for giving any preference to Wallace. Now we all know each other pretty well, and I don't see what there is about Wallace like in particular.
Mr. S.—Well he has always used me right, and I felt that I could not go back on him. In one instance he acted very decently, and—
Mr. L.—(agony)—One instance, yes—and that was about—
Mr. S.—There was something that I thought should be done. The matter was represented to him, and he was promptly attended to.
Mr. L.—(aside to Mr. G.) Now we've got him, if we can only get around it quietly. Let's see—ask him if Wallace went to much trouble about it.
Mr. L.—I really can't understand how a man as intelligent as you, Mr. S., could be deceived on the N. P. but, of course if you voted against us other people will be sure to follow you.
Mr. S.—Well, if you favor it, it must have been something of importance to me.
Mr. L.—It was, and I said if he did it I was about—
Mr. G.—Mr. L. could not have expressed the chuckle that broke out, if his head had been at stake, but he caught the starting glance given to him by Mr. L., and he understood what was coming.
Mr. L.—Yes, yes, you said "if he did it, you would be sure to follow me."
Mr. S.—Well, yes, I made up my mind I would. (Here Mr. S. came almost encircled the last remark, and he twisted round on the seat, as if he were somewhat warm.)
Mr. L.—You promised to vote for Mr. Wallace, then if you don't vote for him, who will it be?
Mr. S.—Well, there was a Post Office needed around where I lived, and we asked him to do it, and get one. He attended to the matter immediately, and he says he'll try to do something for Wallace, if he says he'll try to do something for me. He does his best every time, and don't you forget that.
Mr. L.—Oh I never mind Hodgins, he lost us the election, after me going around town, introducing me as his friend, and Mr. Churchman, Presbyterian, and Englishmen.
Mr. L.—Now, Mr. S., you'll tell me, is it right, I believe, if you don't vote for Wallace, you promise that you would vote for him, if he got you that Post Office.
Mr. S.—Well, I know, I thought he acted pretty decent, and I had nothing against the man personally. I believe he was right on the Trade Question, and I believe in him. You know that the leading question was the N. P.
Mr. L.—Yes, that's all right, and so you promised Wallace to vote for him, if he would get this Post Office for you. Now, Mr. S., you promise that you will vote for him, if he got you that Post Office, and you won't lose anything by it, either. I'll see Hodgins, and get him to come out for the Court of Revision, Richmond Hill, on Monday, and you can meet us.
Mr. S.—What do you mean, I want you to understand the thing right. Don't make a fool of yourself over this, as I am told you generally do. Don't bite off more than you can chew, you promised Hodgins to vote for him, if he got you that Post Office.
Mr. L.—That's all right, I understand the whole matter perfectly. All I understand that Wallace made up his mind to vote for you, if you would get this Post Office for him. Now, Mr. S., you promise that you will vote for him, if he got you that Post Office, and you won't lose anything by it, either. I'll see Hodgins, and get him to come out for the Court of Revision, Richmond Hill, on Monday, and you can meet us.
Mr. S.—What do you mean, I want you to understand the thing right. Don't make a fool of yourself over this, as I am told you generally do. Don't bite off more than you can chew, you promised Hodgins to vote for him, if he got you that Post Office.
Mr. L.—That's all right, I understand the whole matter perfectly. All I understand that Wallace made up his mind to vote for you, if you would get this Post Office for him. Now, Mr. S., you promise that you will vote for him, if he got you that Post Office, and you won't lose anything by it, either. I'll see Hodgins, and get him to come out for the Court of Revision, Richmond Hill, on Monday, and you can meet us.
Mr. S.—What do you mean, I want you to understand the thing right. Don't make a fool of yourself over this, as I am told you generally do. Don't bite off more than you can chew, you promised Hodgins to vote for him, if he got you that Post Office.
Mr. L.—That's all right, I understand the whole matter perfectly. All I understand that Wallace made up his mind to vote for you, if you would get this Post Office for him. Now, Mr. S., you promise that you will vote for him, if he got you that Post Office, and you won't lose anything by it, either. I'll see Hodgins, and get him to come out for the Court of Revision, Richmond Hill, on Monday, and you can meet us.
Mr. S.—What do you mean, I want you to understand the thing right. Don't make a fool of yourself over this, as I am told you generally do. Don't bite off more than you can chew, you promised Hodgins to vote for him, if he got you that Post Office.
Mr. L.—That's all right, I understand the whole matter perfectly. All I understand that Wallace made up his mind to vote for you, if you would get this Post Office for him. Now, Mr. S., you promise that you will vote for him, if he got you that Post Office, and you won't lose anything by it, either. I'll see Hodgins, and get him to come out for the Court of Revision, Richmond Hill, on Monday, and you can meet us.
Mr. S.—What do you mean, I want you to understand the thing right. Don't make a fool of yourself over this, as I am told you generally do. Don't bite off more than you can chew, you promised Hodgins to vote for him, if he got you that Post Office.
Mr. L.—That's all right, I understand the whole matter perfectly. All I understand that Wallace made up his mind to vote for you, if you would get this Post Office for him. Now, Mr. S., you promise that you will vote for him, if he got you that Post Office, and you won't lose anything by it, either. I'll see Hodgins, and get him to come out for the Court of Revision, Richmond Hill, on Monday, and you can meet us.
Mr. S.—What do you mean, I want you to understand the thing right. Don't make a fool of yourself over this, as I am told you generally do. Don't bite off more than you can chew, you promised Hodgins to vote for him, if he got you that Post Office.
Mr. L.—That's all right, I understand the whole matter perfectly. All I understand that Wallace made up his mind to vote for you, if you would get this Post Office for him. Now, Mr. S., you promise that you will vote for him, if he got you that Post Office, and you won't lose anything by it, either. I'll see Hodgins, and get him to come out for the Court of Revision, Richmond Hill, on Monday, and you can meet us.
Mr. S.—What do you mean, I want you to understand the thing right. Don't make a fool of yourself over this, as I am told you generally do. Don't bite off more than you can chew, you promised Hodgins to vote for him, if he got you that Post Office.
Mr. L.—That's all right, I understand the whole matter perfectly. All I understand that Wallace made up his mind to vote for you, if you would get this Post Office for him. Now, Mr. S., you promise that you will vote for him, if he got you that Post Office, and you won't lose anything by it, either. I'll see Hodgins, and get him to come out for the Court of Revision, Richmond Hill, on Monday, and you can meet us.
Mr. S.—What do you mean, I want you to understand the thing right. Don't make a fool of yourself over this, as I am told you generally do. Don't bite off more than you can chew, you promised Hodgins to vote for him, if he got you that Post Office.
Mr. L.—That's all right, I understand the whole matter perfectly. All I understand that Wallace made up his mind to vote for you, if you would get this Post Office for him. Now, Mr. S., you promise that you will vote for him, if he got you that Post Office, and you won't lose anything by it, either. I'll see Hodgins, and get him to come out for the Court of Revision, Richmond Hill, on Monday, and you can meet us.
Mr. S.—What do you mean, I want you to understand the thing right. Don't make a fool of yourself over this, as I am told you generally do. Don't bite off more than you can chew, you promised Hodgins to vote for him, if he got you that Post Office.
Mr. L.—That's all right, I understand the whole matter perfectly. All I understand that Wallace made up his mind to vote for you, if you would get this Post Office for him. Now, Mr. S., you promise that you will vote for him, if he got you that Post Office, and you won't lose anything by it, either. I'll see Hodgins, and get him to come out for the Court of Revision, Richmond Hill, on Monday, and you can meet us.
Mr. S.—What do you mean, I want you to understand the thing right. Don't make a fool of yourself over this, as I am told you generally do. Don't bite off more than you can chew, you promised Hodgins to vote for him, if he got you that Post Office.
Mr. L.—That's all right, I understand the whole matter perfectly. All I understand that Wallace made up his mind to vote for you, if you would get this Post Office for him. Now, Mr. S., you promise that you will vote for him, if he got you that Post Office, and you won't lose anything by it, either. I'll see Hodgins, and get him to come out for the Court of Revision, Richmond Hill, on Monday, and you can meet us.
Mr. S.—What do you mean, I want you to understand the thing right. Don't make a fool of yourself over this, as I am told you generally do. Don't bite off more than you can chew, you promised Hodgins to vote for him, if he got you that Post Office.
Mr. L.—That's all right, I understand the whole matter perfectly. All I understand that Wallace made up his mind to vote for you, if you would get this Post Office for him. Now, Mr. S., you promise that you will vote for him, if he got you that Post Office, and you won't lose anything by it, either. I'll see Hodgins, and get him to come out for the Court of Revision, Richmond Hill, on Monday, and you can meet us.
Mr. S.—What do you mean, I want you to understand the thing right. Don't make a fool of yourself over this, as I am told you generally do. Don't bite off more than you can chew, you promised Hodgins to vote for him, if he got you that Post Office.
Mr. L.—That's all right, I understand the whole matter perfectly. All I understand that Wallace made up his mind to vote for you, if you would get this Post Office for him. Now, Mr. S., you promise that you will vote for him, if he got you that Post Office, and you won't lose anything by it, either. I'll see Hodgins, and get him to come out for the Court of Revision, Richmond Hill, on Monday, and you can meet us.
Mr. S.—What do you mean, I want you to understand the thing right. Don't make a fool of yourself over this, as I am told you generally do. Don't bite off more than you can chew, you promised Hodgins to vote for him, if he got you that Post Office.
Mr. L.—That's all right, I understand the whole matter perfectly. All I understand that Wallace made up his mind to vote for you, if you would get this Post Office for him. Now, Mr. S., you promise that you will vote for him, if he got you that Post Office, and you won't lose anything by it, either. I'll see Hodgins, and get him to come out for the Court of Revision, Richmond Hill, on Monday, and you can meet us.
Mr. S.—What do you mean, I want you to understand the thing right. Don't make a fool of yourself over this, as I am told you generally do. Don't bite off more than you can chew, you promised Hodgins to vote for him, if he got you that Post Office.
Mr. L.—That's all right, I understand the whole matter perfectly. All I understand that Wallace made up his mind to vote for you, if you would get this Post Office for him. Now, Mr. S., you promise that you will vote for him, if he got you that Post Office, and you won't lose anything by it, either. I'll see Hodgins, and get him to come out for the Court of Revision, Richmond Hill, on Monday, and you can meet us.
Mr. S.—What do you mean, I want you to understand the thing right. Don't make a fool of yourself over this, as I am told you generally do. Don't bite off more than you can chew, you promised Hodgins to vote for him, if he got you that Post Office.
Mr. L.—That's all right, I understand the whole matter perfectly. All I understand that Wallace made up his mind to vote for you, if you would get this Post Office for him. Now, Mr. S., you promise that you will vote for him, if he got you that Post Office, and you won't lose anything by it, either. I'll see Hodgins, and get him to come out for the Court of Revision, Richmond Hill, on Monday, and you can meet us.
Mr. S.—What do you mean, I want you to understand the thing right. Don't make a fool of yourself over this, as I am told you generally do. Don't bite off more than you can chew, you promised Hodgins to vote for him, if he got you that Post Office.
Mr. L.—That's all right, I understand the whole matter perfectly. All I understand that Wallace made up his mind to vote for you, if you would get this Post Office for him. Now, Mr. S., you promise that you will vote for him, if he got you that Post Office, and you won't lose anything by it, either. I'll see Hodgins, and get him to come out for the Court of Revision, Richmond Hill, on Monday, and you can meet us.
Mr. S.—What do you mean, I want you to understand the thing right. Don't make a fool of yourself over this, as I am told you generally do. Don't bite off more than you can chew, you promised Hodgins to vote for him, if he got you that Post Office.
Mr. L.—That's all right, I understand the whole matter perfectly. All I understand that Wallace made up his mind to vote for you, if you would get this Post Office for him. Now, Mr. S., you promise that you will vote for him, if he got you that Post Office, and you won't lose anything by it, either. I'll see Hodgins, and get him to come out for the Court of Revision, Richmond Hill, on Monday, and you can meet us.
Mr. S.—What do you mean, I want you to understand the thing right. Don't make a fool of yourself over this, as I am told you generally do. Don't bite off more than you can chew, you promised Hodgins to vote for him, if he got you that Post Office.
Mr. L.—That's all right, I understand the whole matter perfectly. All I understand that Wallace made up his mind to vote for you, if you would get this Post Office for him. Now, Mr. S., you promise that you will vote for him, if he got you that Post Office, and you won't lose anything by it, either. I'll see Hodgins, and get him to come out for the Court of Revision, Richmond Hill, on Monday, and you can meet us.
Mr. S.—What do you mean, I want you to understand the thing right. Don't make a fool of yourself over this, as I am told you generally do. Don't bite off more than you can chew, you promised Hodgins to vote for him, if he got you that Post Office.
Mr. L.—That's all right, I understand the whole matter perfectly. All I understand that Wallace made up his mind to vote for you, if you would get this Post Office for him. Now, Mr. S., you promise that you will vote for him, if he got you that Post Office, and you won't lose anything by it, either. I'll see Hodgins, and get him to come out for the Court of Revision, Richmond Hill, on Monday, and you can meet us.
Mr. S.—What do you mean, I want you to understand the thing right. Don't make a fool of yourself over this, as I am told you generally do. Don't bite off more than you can chew, you promised Hodgins to vote for him, if he got you that Post Office.
Mr. L.—That's all right, I understand the whole matter perfectly. All I understand that Wallace made up his mind to vote for you, if you would get this Post Office for him. Now, Mr. S., you promise that you will vote for him, if he got you that Post Office, and you won't lose anything by it, either. I'll see Hodgins, and get him to come out for the Court of Revision, Richmond Hill, on Monday, and you can meet us.
Mr. S.—What do you mean, I want you to understand the thing right. Don't make a fool of yourself over this, as I am told you generally do. Don't bite off more than you can chew, you promised Hodgins to vote for him, if he got you that Post Office.
Mr. L.—That's all right, I understand the whole matter perfectly. All I understand that Wallace made up his mind to vote for you, if you would get this Post Office for him. Now, Mr. S., you promise that you will vote for him, if he got you that Post Office, and you won't lose anything by it, either. I'll see Hodgins, and get him to come out for the Court of Revision, Richmond Hill, on Monday, and you can meet us.
Mr. S.—What do you mean, I want you to understand the thing right. Don't make a fool of yourself over this, as I am told you generally do. Don't bite off more than you can chew, you promised Hodgins to vote for him, if he got you that Post Office.
Mr. L.—That's all right, I understand the whole matter perfectly. All I understand that Wallace made up his mind to vote for you, if you would get this Post Office for him. Now, Mr. S., you promise that you will vote for him, if he got you that Post Office, and you won't lose anything by it, either. I'll see Hodgins, and get him to come out for the Court of Revision, Richmond Hill, on Monday, and you can meet us.
Mr. S.—What do you mean, I want you to understand the thing right. Don't make a fool of yourself over this, as I am told you generally do. Don't bite off more than you can chew, you promised