The Progress of Methodism.
We notice by the Manitoba Free Press that the Northwestern Conference of the Methodist Church has lately adjourned its first session in Winnipeg. The progress and development of the Methodist church in the Northwest has been truly wonderful. Forty years ago its labor of love was begun among the aborigines of that country. In 1838 Rev. Dr. Young, now Superintendent of Mission and first President of the first Northwestern Conference, arrived and laid the foundations of the prosperity which the Church has since attained among the then small though now large and rapidly increasing population. There are at present about seventy clergymen in connection with the Church in that country, most of whom are young, vigorous men, thoroughly alive to the importance of the interests committed to their care, and anxious to promote them to the full extent of their ability. With such an army of workers, a great future is necessarily in store for the Methodist Church in the Northwest.

An Explanation Wanted.
The Brampton Times is very anxious to know where the $1,000 for election petitions came from, that were required to be put up as security for costs. It would like Sir John Macdonald as a witness, to say what he knows about it.
We fancy Sir John knows very little about the matter. As far as we are concerned, we should like to see Sir John give his evidence on this point, and it might not be out of place to have Mr. Mowat on the other side. This continual hinting at corruption and bribery, by the Reform press, is not creditable. We presume the gentlemen, for instance, who put up the petition against Major Gray, did not receive the amount necessary for that purpose from the Ontario Government. Then why should it be thought an incapable thing for parties on the other side to give security without finding it necessary to draw upon the purse strings of the Dominion Exchequer.

The Refuse of a Great City.
In New York the garbage and ashes are placed in boxes and barrels on the sidewalks, and removed daily by the carts of the street cleaning department, which haul them to the nearest department dock, where they are dumped on scows; and these scows are towed out to sea in deep water, and there emptied. The street sweepings are disposed of in a similar manner.
The officials, such as dead animals and diseased meat, comes within the province of the Health Department, which lets out by contract to certain parties, the removal of this material from the entire city. For the present year this work is done for $40,000. The officials is taken by the contractors to Barren Island, and then converted into fertilizers.

SPECIAL SUBJECTS FOR MEDICINE.
Riddell, Andrew B.
Out of 26 pupils sent up, we have passed no less than 20. This is the highest record our Schools has yet taken.
Comment on the above is almost unnecessary and unneeded for. Richmond Hill High School is proverbial for turning out good material. The result of the Examination must be very gratifying to all concerned, pupils as well as teachers, and no doubt it will materially help fill the School for next term.

A Vexed Clergyman.
Even the patience of Job would become exhausted were he a preacher and endeavoring to interest his audience while they were keeping up an incessant coughing, making it impossible for him to be heard. Yet, how very easy on all this he is, as proved by simply using Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. Trial Bottles given away at R. E. Law's Drug Store.

Board of Education.
Richmond Hill, Aug. 13th, 1883.
The Board of Education met. Present, Messrs. Brown, Boyle, Switzer, Duncan, Trench, Teffy, Crosby, and Patterson. Mr. Marshall in the chair.
Minutes of last meeting read and adopted.
Communication from Miss Owen declining the position of Assistant Public School Teacher, was read. Two communications were read from Mr. Alex. Marling, of the Educational Department, Toronto, also communications from Messrs. James Campbell & Son, in reference to School Readers, and from Mr. D. Fotheringham, P. S. I., were read. A communication from Head Master of High School, asking for a committee to draft an application for the $300 made reference to at the last meeting.
Mr. Crosby moved, seconded by Mr. Duncan, that Messrs. Marshall, Patterson and the Secretary be a Committee for the purpose named.
A communication from the Head Master in reference to outbuildings of the High School was read. The Committee of Management was requested to give attention to the matter.
A communication from Mr. Burns, the newly-appointed Assistant High School Master, in reference to a house wanted, was read.
Applications for the position of 1st Assistant teacher of the Public School were read.
On motion of Mr. Brown, seconded by Mr. Trench, Miss Kacieal Macdonald was appointed to the above position, and in case she refused Miss Williams was to be offered it.
Mr. McBride addressed the Board in reference to the standing of the School, and asked that an advertisement be inserted in the Globe and Mail.
Mr. Duncan, seconded by Mr. Brown, moved that the Secretary and Head Master be a Committee to draw up an advertisement.
The Treasurer laid before the Board the estimates for High and Public School purposes.
Mr. Trench moved, seconded by Mr. Duncan, that the sum of $350 be levied for High School purposes; also that $1,000 be levied for public school purposes.—Carried.
The Secretary read an account for his disbursements, which, on motion, was ordered to be paid.
The Chairman called the attention of the Board to the question of the School Readers and stated that there was a gentleman present representing Messrs. Gage & Co.
Mr. Boyle, seconded by Mr. Brown, moved that the question of adopting school Readers in place of ones now in use, be laid over for future consideration.—Carried.
Mr. Crosby seconded by Mr. Teffy moved that the representative of Messrs. Gage & Co. be heard.
Mr. Boyle spoke against the motion, stating that he considered it contrary to the circular, read a short time since, from Mr. Marling.
Mr. Duncan agreed with Mr. Boyle to a certain extent, but he thought the representative should be heard.
Messrs. Brown, Switzer and Patterson also addressed the meeting.
Mr. Marshall, as representative of Messrs. Gage & Co., addressed the meeting at some length in favor of adopting the series of new Readers as got up by Gage.
On motion the meeting adjourned.

Copy of Mr. Fotheringham's letter addressed to the School Board:—
Mr. McBride asks me to explain the apparent discrepancy between his statement of the Entrance Candidates from your Public School, who were successful, and mine, as given by Mr. McMahon:
To allay, as far as possible, the feeling that has existed in Richmond Hill for some time on this subject, Mr. Dickson, of the Newmarket High School, and I undertook to examine the papers of Mr. McMahon's pupils. We marked carefully, and according to our usual standards, and found substantial agreement between Mr. McBride's marking and our own, and the following is a comparative statement of the result:—
Mr. McBride's marking. Mr. D. & myself.
Langstaff, Nellie passed passed
Grant, Marshall passed passed
McCaughey, Hugh recommended recommended
Collard, Wm. do do
Hopper, Alice do do
Langstaff, R. do do
Peach, George do do
Powell, Lizzie do recommended
Trench, Mary do do
Wiley, Eva do do
Mr. McBride left the space opposite the names of those recommended for me to fill, if I thought it well to do so. He virtually had recommended all I recommended, but only published the names of those who had absolutely passed, pending the decision of the H. S. Inspector. The papers of the first two on the list were not sent to us, consequently we did not deal with them. The two on whose cases there was some difference are McCaughey and Peach. McCaughey had taken enough marks to pass, but Mr. McBride thought the mechanical part of the work so defective that he should not pass. Like an initial exam, like the entrance, I have not looked so much to the mechanical execution as to the knowledge shown. I agreed as to the defects in the papers but still passed. In Peach's case I added, as I thought fairly, a few more marks in one subject which passed him in that, and as he had passed in all others, I marked him passed. Mr. McBride recommended only. In a personal interview with the High School Inspector, Mr. McBride laid his views and my letter before them, and the result was a decision to reject McCaughey and pass Peach, as recommended.
My custom has been to publish the names of those recommended, as well as of those who are provisionally admitted by the local examiners. Mr. McBride's is different. He preferred waiting the decision of the High School Inspector, which was only reached on the 20th ult.

Scenes and Reminiscences of College Life by "Fidus Achatas."
FOR THE HERALD.
"Remember! I should think so. But how hard it was ever to get a slope from old! Dear me, nothing ever seemed to keep him away. Rain that no other man would venture out in was nothing to him; an accident that would have secured the absence of any other Professor or tutor, but made him all the more determined to be present; even sickness which would have confined anyone else to their bed seemed to have the effect of making him all the more punctual; a fête down town that would be the occasion of all the other members of the faculty excusing their classes, made him the more obstinate in insisting upon our attendance in his lecture room, and the more exacting when he had us there."
"Yes," said my friend, "Old Dot (his sobriquet among the students), was as certain to be found in his chair every morning as we were to make mistakes before the lecture was over; and that was regarded by some of us at least—as admitting of no doubt whatever. Bless me, what 'confession worse confounded' we used to make of the Binomial Theorem, and what a delightful middle we used to find ourselves in when discussing sines and co-sines, tangents and co-tangents, secants and co-secants! Do you remember with what ingenuity we used to lay plans to escape his lectures, and how, if by any chance a plan succeeded, the author of it was looked upon by the rest of us as a prodigy of genius?"
"Oh yes, we used to lay many a plan, such as fastening the door so that it could not be opened except by removing a window sash away both door and window, in the depth of winter and hiding them where they could not be found for a few days, oiling the black-board so that the best crayons would leave no trace of writing. But all these and many other contrivances were of no avail. If necessary to break a window in order to open the door, why, the window would be broken; if, owing to the removal of windows and door, the thermometer would stand at ten or twelve, another room would be used for the occasion; if the black board had been broken when we assembled in the room, the pictures of innocence, and were sent to the board, and tried to make the chalk mark as usual, but failed, we would look at each other in the utmost wonder, then make known the difficulty to professor as if it were the most surprising and inextricable thing imaginable, when he would order us to our seats, and give us such a 'grind' upon the theory of the work that we would wish with all our hearts that we had let the black-boards severely alone."
"Yes," I replied, and all the time he had upon his features that peculiarly ironical smile which said as plainly as it could be uttered in the most terse and vigorous Anglo-Saxon, "Oh yes, young gentlemen, I understand you. You wanted to get off. Some of you were at a party last night instead of preparing your lecture, and that accounts for the state of the boards this morning. But I'm too old a bird to be caught with such stuff, and I will give it to you, never fear! But our little plans having all failed, and we being determined that Old Dot should not be the only member of the faculty from whom we could never get a slope, we called a meeting. And what a meeting! What resolutions were proposed, seconded and carried! I remember one particularly. It was to the effect that C— being a good-looking fellow, should cultivate the acquaintance of the housemaid or the cook, and by blarney and bribing induce the former to place in the old gentleman's bedroom a certain chemical preparation which would make it inconvenient for him to attend to his professional duties for a day or two; or induce the latter to introduce something not generally used as an article of diet into a certain dish that the old man was particularly fond of, and which would be attended with the same desirable result of forcing him to be absent."
"Oh, but after all," said my former chum, "it was your plan that succeeded; and it was so simple that the wonder was we did not think of it sooner. When the fellows had proposed one thing after another, and some insupportable objection stood in the way of each one of them, you very quietly suggested that the bell-rope should be cut so as to be out of reach. The suggestion was adopted with enthusiasm, and carried into effect, so that the next morning it no longer summoned us to the Mathematical Purgatory, and we got 'a slope' at last from Old Dot."
"Yes," said I, "and when the old rope was replaced by a new one, and the new one locked up in a perpendicular case reaching from floor to ceiling, you proposed another plan which was equally successful; nothing less than removing from the bell the old iron tongue whose tones had so often made the boldest student to tremble as it summoned him into the awful presence."
"Dear me, dear me," was the reply, "what a state the Professor was in when he found himself outwitted! He who had never been fooled before was fooled by the me of '83."
"Then, when he asked us why we had not been to lecture, and we replied that the bell had not rung, and he said that we supposed that there would be no lecture that day, how sternly he inquired whether we could not learn the time from our watches!"
"To be sure," said I, "so he did; and it was perfectly amazing how many students' watches happened at that time to be at the jeweller's for repairs, yours and mine, if I mistake not, among the rest."
"Just here my friend's face, which, during our 'confab,' had been the picture of quiet enjoyment, assumed a markedly cast; and I said to him that I knew exactly what he was thinking of, and he seemed to doubt my possession of such knowledge, I said, 'You are thinking of those verses.'
"True," said he, "I am thinking of them, and I have often regretted that ever I wrote them; for, after all, poor Old Dot was not a bad fellow, and I am more indebted to him than to any other for what little knowledge of Mathematics I have to-day."
"Pooh! Pooh!" said I, "you were quite justified, for the old fellow treated you shamefully. The problem was difficult, and your solution of it, though not coming up to his ideal of what a solution ought to be, was quite legitimate and satisfactory, and he had no right to put you down as he did that morning."
"Well, he did treat me rather roughly, and I confess I felt pretty sore about it, and so, while in a bitter mood I wrote the jingle. But I hope it has been of an ephemeral character, and that the 'old boys' have long since forgotten all about it."
"Forgotten! Not at all; they'll never forget it, in fact, I myself memorized it, and now I'll repeat it for you."
"No, I beg of you not to." Oh, but I will, and I have given it a place amongst 'Scenes and Reminiscences of College Life,' little sketches which I am writing for the York Herald.
Lines addressed to Prof. — of — University, by one of the Class of 186—
I.
Who is the man with the long, hooked nose,
That carries a mass wherever he goes,
And always goes dressed in second hand clothes? Old—
II.
Who is the man with the ugly chin,
Whose carcass is wrapped in a sallow skin,
And whose smile resembles Apollon's grin? Old—
III.
Who is it that, with an awful feint,
Hides the heart of a fend behind the brow of a saint,
As the vilest of tombs are garnished with paint? Old—
IV.
Who is the man with such a florid eye,
That he is afraid of him, won't let him die
Until he is sure he is to see the sky? Old—
V.
Who Professor alone is hated by all,
By every student ever, small or tall,
With a hatred unmitigated and bitter as gall? Old—
VI.
Who is it of all things being the worst?
The last to do good? To do evil the best?
Vile, insolent, monstrous, inhuman, accursed? Old—
In the second paragraph of the first part of these sketches 'great heart' should have read 'sweet-heart.' The word Penelope would have made the allusion still plainer.

LOCAL ITEMS.
WANTED.—A smart, intelligent boy for the printing business, wanted at this Office.
Now is the time for bargains in groceries; room paper at cost prices; furniture in all the latest styles at P. G. Savage's. See new advertisement on third page.
PARTS 21 and 22 of "Picturesque Canada" have been received. The work still contains its superior character and finish. These two numbers take in from Toronto westward.
We notice by the Mail that Mr. Jas. Weidman, (Weidman) at one time connected with this office, figures at a public meeting at Rat Portage. He holds the position of Registrar of Deeds for Manitoba.
BICYCLE TRIP.—The inhabitants of our village had a pleasant sight on Monday afternoon last, by witnessing part of the Toronto Bicycle Club take a spin through our town. They had been on a short trip up along Lake Simcoe, and returned to Toronto by way of Yonge Street. They were attired in neat suits of navy blue, and seemed to handle their machines in an exceptionally fine style.
NEW FIRM.—Messrs. Sneath & Grennan have purchased the business lately conducted by Mr. James Reynolds, in this village, also the good will. These gentlemen are well acquainted with the business, and we bespeak for them a liberal share of the patronage of the community. We believe they will give every satisfaction to those who may favor them with their custom. Look out for their new advertisement next week.
NOTICE.—Complaints having been made to our Reeve that a number of boys are in the habit of playing Lacrosse on the streets, thereby raising the dust and sometimes coming in contact with ladies passing on the sidewalks; and have, in several instances, narrowly escaped being run over by passing vehicles; he has given notice that any person caught playing at this game on any of the public streets of the village, will be prosecuted under the Nuisance Act.
A GRAND SUCCESS.—The Lawn Party given by the ladies of the C. M. Church, at the residence of Parker Crosby, Esq., on Tuesday evening last, was a decided success in every way. The bountiful spread provided by the ladies was excellent, and the manner in which it was disposed of indicated that the large crowd heartily enjoyed it. Music and games of various kinds were indulged in. The lawn was beautifully illuminated with Chinese lanterns, and presented a gay and magnificent appearance. A number of ladies and gentlemen from Thornhill, Markham, Patterson, Carville and other neighboring villages, were present. The receipts amounted to about $60.
OBITUARY.—It is with regret we have to chronicle the death of Mr. A. P. Lowry, city editor of the Mail, who died at an early hour on Friday morning last, at his residence, Gerrard Street West. A practical journalist who graduated from the case, he was popular among his journalistic confreres, with whom he lived in brotherly amity. In his professional capacity the deceased was energetic and industrious, using his abilities to the full to further the interests of the journal with which he was connected. His illness was of only a few weeks' duration, the immediate cause of death being inflammation of the brain. Mr. Lowry was 32 years of age, and leaves a wife and one child. The funeral took place on Sunday last, and was largely attended by members of the Press Lacrosse Club, Press Association, the A. O. U. W., and a large number of citizens. Mr. Lowry was at one time an employe in this Office.
NOT YET DECIDED.—It will be seen by the report of the School Board meeting in another column, that they have come to the decision not to be hasty in adopting either series of new school Readers now before the public for use in the schools. Some of our trustees feel inclined to run over the present year without change. A representative from Messrs. Gage and Co. made the best possible case for his side of the house, and the probability is if the other side had been heard, things would have worn a different aspect to the eyes of those who seemed to fall in with the ideas conveyed, that Messrs. Gage & Co.'s books were the best in every way. There is always two sides to a question, and when the other side is heard it will be time enough to come to a decision upon the merits of the different Readers. We feel convinced which ever series is ultimately approved of, it will only be done after due and mature consideration, and with a desire to do what is right by those whom the Board of Trustees represent.
RETURN MATCH.—The return Lacrosse Match between the Aurora and Patterson Clubs, was played on the Fair Grounds in this village, on Wednesday afternoon last, and was witnessed by a large crowd, a great number of ladies being present, which added much to the interest of the game. Both sides were pretty evenly matched, but the Aurora boys found they had a harder game to play than the one that came off in that village a short time ago. The Patterson boys played a spirited game, and great improvement was evinced since their last match. The game was commenced at 3.15, and was getting very exciting when a neat tip from McBrien sent the ball through the Aurora flags in 20 minutes, claiming the first game for Patterson. The second game was of short duration, the home team knocking the rubber between the flags in 6 minutes. After a short lapse, the third game was commenced, and proved to be the longest, as both Clubs played very hard, and after the ball had been thrown over the field for about 35 minutes, Tully made a very pretty shot between the flags, thus scoring three straight games for Patterson. Cheers were given, and both clubs retired to the Palmer House where a first class supper was enjoyed.

With this medicine every invalid can cure himself, and those who are weak and infirm through imperfect digestion may make themselves strong and stout by Holloway's excellent Pills.
