Foot and Mouth Disease.

The Agricultural and Arts Association ask that further importations of cattle, sheep and pigs into the Dominion be prohibited until such time as the foot and mouth disease is abated in Great Britain and the United States. In Kansas this disease has assumed proportions to course no little uneasiness. At a convention of cattle and stockmen, held at Emporia, at which the Governor and many prominent citizens were present, the infested district was reported to extend over a large area of territory. Reports were received from twelve Counties, signed by Veterinary Surgeons who had been commissioned to make a thorough investigation of the disease. All of them confirming reports previously made. They urged the killing of the animals and destruction by fire of the carcasses and all forage and everything connected with it.

It was argued at the meeting of the Agricultural Association in Toronto, that Canada having so far stood unsurpassed as regarded immunity from cattle disease, it was desirable to maintain that reputation by every means. As to the origin of the disease there are various conjectures, but the best informed Kansas stockmen are reported as saying there is no doubt, whatever, that it has been imported there from Europe. In New Jersey and in Massachusetts, in 1873, foot and mouth disease was prevalent, and some $2,500,000 had to be expended before it was exterminated.

Land Transfer.

Mr. J. Herbert Mason, of Hamilton, delivered a lecture on the subject of Land Transfer, before the Canadian Institute in Toronto. The lecture is now published in pamphlet form, and places before the reader a brief account of the method used in Australia for the registration and transfer of titles in land, and how it could be made available in Canada. Mr. Mason is an authority in all matters relating to loans, mortgages, etc., etc. His pamphlet, no doubt, will be very interesting to all parties in the line of business. He thinks that in the new territories of the North-west the system should be at once put in force, and in the other portion of Canada it might be introduced.

McKim's Evidence.

Without going into the merits of the bribery case, it is worth suggesting that Mr. McKim's evidence is proving altogether too much. In his eager anxiety to make out a case of conspiracy against Kirkland Wilkinson, Bunting, and Meek, McKim, is to a considerable extent, making out a case of conspiracy against McKim, Dowling, Mowat, and Fraser, or whatever members of the Government planned with the said McKim and Dowling the scheme for entrapping Bunting into some act of bribery. Meek, Mowat and Fraser may not have conspired with Dowling and McKim for this purpose, but McKim's evidence certainly makes it look like it.

We have no particular love for Bunting, but we don't believe in a Government which can't believe in a Government any one else laying a trap for a man as Mowat and Fraser seem to have done, if McKim hasn't contrived such a bad cold that he can't tell the truth. As far as the evidence goes, if Bunting has sinned he is as much a victim as a conspirator. But, further the evidence is not sufficient to convict him or to excuse the Globe for its attempts to ruin a rival newspaper by endeavoring to blacken the character of the managing director of the Mail-News.

Temperance Sermon.

A sermon preached in St. Mary's Church, Richmond Hill, on the Second Sunday in Lent, 1884, by Rev. W. A. Bates, B. A., Pastor, and now published by request. Text-1 Cor. IX. 25. 'Every man that strive for the mastery is temperate in all things.'

The people of Corinth were familiar with what are known as the Olympic Games, which were celebrated not far from their city, on the first year of each Olympiad, in honor of Jupiter. These were said to have been founded by Hercules; and, after a long interruption, to have been revived by Iphitus and Leurgus, etc. A. C. 900. They consisted chiefly of gymnastic contests and horse-races, lasted for five successive days, and were closed by sacrifices, banquets, and processions. In time, however, the principal exercise came to be simply the jumping, throwing the discus, wrestling, and boxing. Victors at these Games were rewarded with chaplets of wild olive, or of parsley, or of pine leaves; they had statues erected to their honor in the Grove of Altia, and upon their return home they received still more substantial favors. E. G. Athens is said to have rewarded her victorious athletes with a triumphal entry and maintenance for life at the public expense. Now before entering into any of the contests at the Olympic Games the candidates underwent a regular course of training, in which nothing was more essential than temperance. To this the Apostle alludes in the text; and those to whom he wrote would understand him to mean that temperance in the Olympic Games, or the wrestler, or the boxer, had to be 'temperate in all things' if he would be successful, so an analogous temperance was necessary for the Christian if he would run successfully along the stadium that leads from earth to Heaven, if he would be victorious over all his spiritual enemies.

There are many things in which the Christian should be temperate-should rule or govern himself-that only a few of them can be considered at present; and perhaps the first that would present itself to an ordinary mortal, looking at a Christian congregation, would be dress and personal adornment. There is a vulgar notion that richness and expensiveness in these things indicate pride, which is equally indicative of humility. But pride-sinful pride-does not necessarily lie in the shape of the bonnet or of the material of the dress, in wearing jewels or doing without them, in the cut of the coat or the colour of the cloth; but in seeing a cottage too lowly to be entered, a man too poor to be acknowledged, a woman too low to be seen, and returned. A man in patched half-cloth may be, and often is, as proud as another in glossy broadcloth; a woman in common home pin, and destitute of a single ornament, as proud as a duchess dressed in sateen and decorated with jewels that have been in the family for centuries. No reasonable person who gives the matter due consideration would wish to see people dressed in richness, or ornaments for personal adornment, or anything that would detract from the purity of the heart. When one reflects upon the check that would thus be given to the pursuit of the miner, the pearl-diver, the diamond-seeker, the jeweller, the weaver, and the host of other; and when one thinks of the vast number of poor men who would thus be thrown out of employment, and with their wives and children be deprived of bread; and when one thinks of the many other serious evils that would ensue in the blow that would thus be given to certain arts and sciences; no philanthropic or public-spirited man can wish that plainness should be the universal rule, that there should be no gayety, no magnificence, in personal attire. It is, however, in things that are made everything very beautiful, though, for aught man knows, everything might have been just as useful without the beauty. Then, too, there is no reason to suppose that the devil is less proud now, in all his hideous repulsiveness, than he was when, as an angel of light, he rebelled against the God of Heaven. Now it has been too much the fashion to accuse women of excess in dress and adornment. Men are equally intemperate. In any community where fashion prevails the amount which the former expend for dress, and bonnets, and caps, jewellery, and feathers, and furbelows, and all the rest of it-including even those mysterious things in connection with ladies' dresses which men are not supposed to know anything about-is placed on one side of the ledger; and the sums laid out for fur coats, and caps, and breast-pins, and finger rings, and massive watch-guards, and heavy seals, and diamond stick-studs, and gorgeous neck-cloths, and resplendent sleeve buttons, and all the other of that kind that go to the external make-up of a fashionable man, are placed on the other side of the ledger; and it will be found that men are at least as extravagant as the women. But neither men nor women should be intemperate in this matter, and a very good rule for all is to be governed here by their means and their social position. It would be a most unwise thing, as well as an unseemly, for any family with an income, say, of a couple of thousand dollars a year, and occupying a place among the lower middle class, to see the expense in the adornment of the person as would be quite suitable for another family having the same necessary outlay, and an annual income double the size of the other, and occupying a higher social position. It is a cause of thankfulness that in Canada during the last few years there have not been nearly so many business failures as in the same length of time preceding; but even in the comparatively few that have occurred in recent years, if they could be investigated and their causes ascertained, it would be found in all probability that they were due to intemperance in dress and such like things as is commonly supposed. Mr. and Mrs. Merchant and their family dress in such and such a style, and wear such and such articles, and their family must do the same thing, and make just as imposing an appearance. Excellent reasoning, very cogent, very logical; but it would be a happy thing for many if its power in reducing to beggary were no greater than its consistency.

Another matter which would strike the man who goes through the world with his eyes open is the necessity of the exertion he has to make for temperance in work, whether of mind or body. Sloth, either mental or physical, is bad, and is properly enough classed amongst the deadly sins; but, wherever theologians may place it, they should put over-work in juxtaposition. True it is that sloth and idleness often lead to such crimes as robbery, arson, murder, and so on; but over-work just as often leads to bulimic disease, organic disease, lunacy, suicide, disgrace, and misery. And the people will say that it was a mysterious dispensation of Divine Providence, when there is no mystery whatever about it; and the good-natured preacher at the funeral will say that the dear brother has been taken away by God in His great goodness, whereas the man has worked himself into his grave, has committed suicide, by over-work just as surely (though not just as rapidly) as if he had taken a deadly poison. All this is done, too, because people will be rich, because they have such an inordinate desire for this world's goods, that they devote their whole time and attention, and ability to worldly pursuits; and frequently, too, from one of the most contemptible of all causes.

TESTON.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Since my last letter appeared in your paper, a great many changes have been made around here. I will try and be as brief as possible.

The Sons of Temperance Division, No. 361, surrendered its Charter a few weeks ago. A young man from the vicinity of Bells Lake, made himself very popular by breaking the door, entering the hall, taking the furniture away and leaving it at a farmer's barn. A big row followed between the ex-Mayor and the young man. The Mayor gave him his breakfast, and the young fellow went home kind of down hearted over it, because some bones the Mayor gave him to pick, stuck in his throat.

Another Division has commenced. 'Just in Time' is the name, and a large number became members the first night. They are bound to put down whiskey one way or another.

A torch-light procession took place here, headed by the young man from Bells Lake, on Thursday night at 11 o'clock, after which he brought back the furniture. The boys cleared him well and he felt very mean. After leaving in it he had to go fifteen miles home and getting nothing for his trouble. Mr. Taggart has rented his Hotel to a gentleman from Bolton, and he intends going heavily into the butchering business this summer. We wish him success.

The 'Long' man above here keeps dark of late, and he has a good reason for doing so, as a blessing is awaiting him when he shows up.

The Salvation Army bus runs regular to Cranberry Marshville, carrying lots of people who are doing good work.

The Cornet Band is prospering. We wish it success. They intend having a big pic nic on the 24th May, if all goes well.

Lund's works are very busy just now, getting out ordered work. Nothing but first-class work is turned out by this firm.

'Strap Oil,' of Maple, had a short letter in last week's Liberal.

Sleighting is all gone now and Old Sol brings forth glad tidings to our youngsters.

Your correspondent 'Jeff,' of Sherwood, was in town last week and gave me a call. He reports business brisk in that locality.

The 'Bad Boy Abroad' takes the cake here and moving a little nearer Cranberry Marshville, and the office is now vacant. Who will fill it?

Eggs are only fifteen cents per doz. at the ex-Mayor's. Wonderful drop in them.

Two young lads nearly met their death by setting two roosters fighting. The father of the lads took an active part in the proceedings with a whip.

Mr. James Kirby has taken up quarters here. We all welcome him as a citizen, and wish him success.

The Sabbath School is largely attended, about 45 being the average. Teachers seem scarce.

Our Grangers are not doing much just now, business they say is kind of dull.

The painter had friends visiting him from Chicago, a few days ago. The school teacher thinks a sidewalk should be laid down from here to Cranberry Marshville.

The snow is still two feet deep on the sidewalk in the south Ward. It should be shovelled off for the sake of

Your Friend, SHORTY Teston, March 26th, 1884.

It Should be Investigated.

If any of our readers are suffering from chronic disease of the stomach, liver, kidneys, or blood, they should investigate the merits of Burdock Blood Bitters. It is making some of the most remarkable cures on record.

Cranberry Marshville.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The snow is going very fast, and the roads are in a very bad state at present. The farmers are jubilant thinking of an early spring.

The gentleman who occupied the position of Deacon has been promoted to Captain, and the Mayor's office has been a scene of bustle and excitement, and crowded full of office-seekers. Smarty of Teston, presented a petition to be appointed Deacon in the room and stead of the resigned Blacksmith, but the Council could not entertain his application, as he did not live in the corporation and the Deaconship remains vacant yet. The painter and Jesse James are hanging around for the office, but they are well known as notorious characters.

How does it come that the Village Council met over at Teston on Saturday last? Was it a regular meeting, or was it to take stock? I hope some of the ratepayers will answer the question.

A young man living in this village, was kind enough to take a lead of furniture to the city of Toronto, for a neighbor. It was a very high load, and he fixed a comfortable seat in an arm chair, on his way down the chair became spiritualised or else the young man went to sleep and dreamt he had his sweet heart on his knee, and thought the old man was after him to scold him, and as the old man was entering one door, he made bound to get out of another, not thinking he was on a sleigh load of furniture, he fell to the ground with a thump almost breaking his neck, and the rest of the company picked him up, and seated him in the chair again, and then tied him fast so that no further trouble would ensue.

I am not a fighting character, but a little dog cannot scare me, if it is a Tarrier.

The Constable is well satisfied with the appointment, and he says he expected it long ago. I am BAD BOY ABROAD. Cranberry Marshville, March 25th, 1884.

NOTICE-Notice is given that all school children or any parties found damaging or trespassing on the property known as the Skating Rink will be prosecuted according to law. The Rink closed on Saturday evening last, and has been stowed carefully away for the summer months, so that our village "sports" can now put their skates away until next fall, and in the meantime oblige the corporation by driving down the nails in the sidewalks.

'WAR NOTES'-Such is the martial title of a weekly campaign paper just started for the benefit of the general Scott Act Campaign, inaugurated by the Dominion Alliance. It is issued by the Western Publishing House, Montreal, at a bare cent price-20 copies weekly for six months, for one dollar. War Notes has, in fact, as well as in name, the ring of battle, its articles being crisp and keen, its news set up in a pointed style, and its headings trumpet blasts well designed to rally the temperance cause. It gives news of the working of the Scott Act where it is in operation, as well as campaign news.

FIRE BRIGADE-A special meeting of the Fire Brigade was held in the Council Chamber, on Friday evening last, when about twenty-five members were present. A communication from Brampton, respecting a tournament to be held there on the 24th of May, was read, but was decided not to take any part in it, on account of the Spring Show being held in this village on that day. The debate then took place and Messrs W. Harrison and T. Palmer appointed judges. Mr. H. A. Nicholls captured the Affirmative side, and Mr. T. F. McMahon the Negative. After an interesting and lengthy discussion, Mr. Harrison gave the decision in favor of the Negative, and Mr. Palmer in favor of the affirmative, consequently the 'debate was tendered to the judges, the meeting adjourned.

SCHOOL INSPECTION-In the beginning of the present week the Senior High School Inspector, J. A. McLellan, M. A., L. D., made a thorough examination of our High School, spending the whole of Monday and the forenoon of Tuesday in hearing the different subjects taught, asking questions, &c. At the close of his inspection he made a short address, stating that he was well pleased with the work done by both teachers and pupils, and remarked that the latter must be working hard, as they had acquitted themselves satisfactorily in every subject. He endeavored to impress on the pupils the necessity of earnest application, in order to be successful with their studies, stating that he had known pupils who indolently expected their teachers to prepare them for examinations without making any exertion in their own behalf and afterwards endeavored to make their consequent failure reflect on the school attended. He knew the teachers were earnest and painstaking, and hoped that the pupils were willing to do their part. He said that his personal observations proved to him that it was not the cleverest, but invariably the hard working, industrious pupil of less ability, that succeeded best in after life, thus showing that the mind as well as the muscle is strengthened by continued and systematic exercise. In closing, the Doctor gave Friday or Monday as a holiday. He promised that, at mid-summer, aid would be given to the Library of Reference by the Education Department, provided the trustees in the meantime contributed a similar amount. The school has an attendance of over 90 pupils.

MOROCCO LEATHER Note Paper for sale at the HERALD Store.

LECTURE-The Lecture on 'This Canada of Ours' delivered on Monday night last, in the Canada Methodist Church, was fairly attended, and was well appreciated by those who were there. The proceeds left $26 for Church purposes.

PERFORMANCE-Three men with two bears struck this town on Tuesday morning last, and gave a performance which seemed to greatly amuse the school children. There was nothing very modern about the tricks however, as they were the same that have been done years ago.

CLEANING-Now that the snow is about gone, we think it would be advisable for our city fathers to pay a little attention to the street crossings, and see that some of the mud and filth is removed from them. At present they are in a very bad condition, which makes it inconvenient for pedestrians, especially the ladies to cross and re-cross the street.

CLOSE SEASONS FOR FISH-The following schedule of the close seasons for fish in Ontario during the year 1884, which has just been issued by the Department of Marine and Fisheries, may be of interest:-Pike, 15th April to 15th May; Maskinonge and Bass, 15th April to 15th May; Salmon Trout and large grey Trout, 1st of Nov. to 10th Nov.; White Fish, 1st Nov. to 10th Nov.; Speckled Trout, 15th Sept. to 1st May.

BIBLE SOCIETY MEETING-The Annual Meeting of R. H. Branch Bible Society will be held on Thursday evening, April 10th in Presbyterian Church, commencing at 7.30. The Rev. J. G. Manly, permanent Agent, with resident ministers, are expected to address the meetings. The collectors will have the pleasure of calling on the public for their annual subscriptions during this and next week. Collection will be taken up at the close of the public meeting. R. Marsh, Pres.

SERMON-A fair congregation attended the C. M. Church in this village, on Sunday evening last, to hear Dr. McLellan, M. A., L. D., of Toronto. The honorable gentleman took his text from 1 Peter II. 17.-Honor all men, and kept the congregation in spell-bound silence for an hour with his eloquent and plausible remarks. We trust it may not be long before the Doctor will again favor the village with another treat similar to the one witnessed last Sunday evening, and which was so highly appreciated by all present.

'THE WEEK'-This journal has now reached its sixteenth issue, and is making steady progress in public favor. Of late several new features have been added, and some of those included in the initial numbers have been dropped, as being not sufficiently interesting to the general reader. Articles on special subjects, 'The Churches,' 'Legislative Notes,' 'Sporting Notes,' etc., have already appeared, and the proprietors announce that arrangements have been made for others by able pens, on art, the medical and legal professions, commercial subjects, and social subjects. A chess column will also be opened at an early date. The addition of several columns of general matter, under the heading 'Here and There,' in which current topics are treated in a light, chatty manner, is decidedly to be commended, and we understand has considerably added to the popularity of 'The Week.' The contributed articles maintain the high standard taken by this journal from the first, the able notes of 'Bystander' (Professor Goldwin Smith), of course, being a leading and ever interesting feature. The reception which our Toronto contemporaries have already met, abundantly justifies the belief of its proprietors that there is a field for an independent journal such as 'The Week' has so far proved itself to be.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS:-Nervous Irritability-No part of the human machine requires more constant supervision than the nervous system-for upon it our health and even life depends. These Pills strengthen the nerves, and are the safest remedy for all nervous diseases, and mental weakness, giddiness, numbness, and mental anxiety yield to them. They dispatch in a summary manner those distressing despondent symptoms, stomachic pain, fullness at the pit of the stomach, abdominal distension, and regulate like capricious appetites and confined bowels-the commonly accompanying signs of defective or diminished nerve tone. Holloway's Pills are particularly recommended to persons of studious and sedentary habits, who gradually fall into a nervous and irritable state, unless some such restorative be occasionally taken.

Weather Probabilities. Fortelling the weather is uncertain at the best, but it is certain if you catch cold in this changeable climate you can best break its ill-effects with Hargray's Pectoral Balsam, the most reliable and pleasant remedy for coughs, colds, bronchitis, and lung complaints. It is so agreeable that even a child will take it.

Baby Carriages.

Harry Collins, Yonge street, Toronto, offers the handsomest line of baby carriages in the trade. Mothers who wish to give the little totty-wotties a comfortable vehicle for out of door exercise should patronize Harry. Comfort, elegance and cheapness are combined in one. A baby looks its very best in one of Harry's conveyances and mothers should bear this in mind. No matter what the baby is like, whether he is big or little, fat or thin, dark or light, pretty or ugly, he will look well in Harry's carriages.

Cure for Rheumatism.

Sufferers from either acute or chronic rheumatism will find no more ready relief or better cure than Hargray's Yellow Oil, the popular household remedy for external and internal use in all painful affections.

That Costly Supper.

FOR THE HERALD-Down at West Hill Creek, Pa., lives Mr. Jacob Lieb, a cautious man-very his caution procured for him the other evening one of the most expensive suppers for two, on this year's record, but he did not seem to enjoy it and from the published account of the spread, we opine that it was not even tasted by him.

Fearing a visit from robbers he deposited his fortune to the amount of $5,000, in the parlor stove-even generally unused until the advent of winter-and left home without telling the President, Mrs. Lieb, of the newly inaugurated bank-vault. A snow-storm coming on, Mrs. Lieb prepared supper, spread it in the parlor and waited the return of the absentees, first kindling a fire in the stove to add to the success of the entertainment.

Mr. Lieb came home, took in the situation, saw how he and the situation had been alike taken in, and nearly fainted or made a feat of doing so, and then made a quick run for the stove in which his valuables had been placed. His fortune was stove in doubly, literally and figuratively. The ashes when taken the Court House were found to be unable to bring comfort to his mind or cash to his pocket. But the Court House was not the place to seek for aid in such a case. Had the expected burglars made the haul the Court House might have been of some use, but the officials there don't deal in ashes. The proper place to have visited would have been Barmum's Curiosity office where a year's engagement might have easily been made with the man who secreted his greenbacks, etc., in the parlor-stove, and didn't tell his wife. Such a combination as that man, with the fatal stove, and the ashes representing the cash, would have proved well worthy of the attention of the crowd who visit Barmum's curiosity and unostentatious departments every year.

However, if he intended to keep the stuff locked up, he can put the ashes in a tin-box and carry it around with him without fear of being robbed, and it will be just as good. But, he mustn't blame Mrs. Lieb for she simply did her best to make things comfortable for the master, and if he got uncomfortably warm it was no more than was to be expected from $5,000 worth of fuel.

The chances are that he will be roasted for many a day to come when he goes out amongst his neighbors. The Parlor Oven Bank proved an Exchange Bank and a Consolidated too, for all the securities were exchanged for ashes and the various kinds of valuables were consolidated into one small ash heap. He may be thankful that he has no double liability!
