The two special Canada Facific railway trains, ton cars each, and drawn by pow-erful locomotives, were standing on the tracks of the Explanade just south of the station. The roofs of these cars, as well as thore of a couple of freight trains, were rowded to the edges with men and boys who had climbed there to get a good view of the embarkation. On the routh, out-side the platforms of the station, the U-iversity students to the number of shout two hundred, were formed in two lines, and passed the time in waiting the arrival of the brigade in singing their Callege songs. The strains of "The Girl I Left Bahind Me," and "Aud Lang Syne" were heard coming from the direction of York Street. "They're coming I" was the cry that was started and passed from one to the other outil every one was pushed and surging and yelling and sheuting in their endeavor to get as near the trains as was possible. The Greandiers proceeded to the south of the two trains and haited. Then came the gallant Queen's Own, headed by their hand, and buge band and pioneers. They took wp their positions on the north side of the trains. The three rear cars of the train on the north track had been already filled with the 8'f from the Infartry School under command of Major smith.
