SPRINGHILL.

(From Our Own Correspondent)

In looking over your popular paper his year past I have noticed short titbits in the shape of items, some laughable others of a more scrious nature from most every town and village in the good old County of York. I ask your renders one small favor before going into the subject too deep, that they will have to excuse me as I am left-handed, so if any flaw appears of words spelt upside down I hope they will use their good sense and excuse me, and correct the same the following week. Springhill is second to none for items of interest, and so many of our townsmen are so well adapted of becoming shorthand reporters, I am really surprised that more have not taken this precious work in hand before this and became a correspondent.

Springhill is situated (well I suppose every person who can read and figure knows without me telling them.) Its inhabitants are increasing rapidly by way of immigrants and births. What makes our town so popular is the station below us. If that good old structure could express its opinion it would raise more mischief than the rebellion in the North-West. I hope I am not intrading too far before giving you a few of the past items, and so I will proceed. A few weeks ago a society was formed here to be known as the " Auti-smoking OAKRIDGES. Society," and some of the members are Builiff, Shoemaker, Mason, Station Agent, Telegraph Student, Blacksmith and a tanner. It is the general impression that this Society will take the cake from anything in North York.

C. Montgomery and W. Crossley left last week for active service in the North-West. A large number of citizens saw them off from the station, and wished them a safe return.

Our shoemaker is heard early and late pegging away, and making fresh promises for new boots. Yours, etc.,
