

Colonial Delegates Get Mad Over Britain's Policy in the New Hebrides—Quite a Scene Raised—The Queen's Title to be Further Extended.

Last Friday night's London cable says: A meeting of the Colonial Conference was held to-day, with Sir Henry Holland presiding, when the draft scheme for the increase of the Australian squadron was agreed to, as were the resolutions relative to laying a submarine cable between Vancouver and Australia.

Sir Henry Holland, Secretary of State for the Colonies, announced in the Colonial Conference here on the 27th ult. that the Government had arranged with France for a joint naval commission to the government of the New Hebrides.

The delegates were unanimously in favor of the extension of the title, subject to the Queen's pleasure, and suggested that the terms of the proclamation of 1858 should be adopted, viz., Queen of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the Colonies and Dependencies thereof.

The delegates were unanimously in favor of the extension of the title, subject to the Queen's pleasure, and suggested that the terms of the proclamation of 1858 should be adopted.

WHIRLED TO DEATH.

Horrible Death by a Young Woman's Playful Carelessness.

A Jersey City despatch says: A horrible accident occurred in the smoking and fine cut department of Lorillard's Tobacco Factory, this city, about 2 o'clock, which resulted in the death of Mrs. Honora Perrine, a widow, employed in the factory.

CZAR AND NIHILIST.

He Will Commute their Sentences—Determination of the Prisoners.

A St. Petersburg despatch says: It is reported that the Czar has decided that the sentences of death pronounced against the nihilists, convicted of complicity in the recent attempt to assassinate him, shall be commuted to imprisonment at hard labor for life in the case of the two who were condemned. Polianovsky, one of the condemned, said he and his accomplices acted from firm conviction that what they set out to do was their duty to perform.

Picot-edged ribbons are the most fashionable for all sorts of trimming. "It is the little things that tell," says an old adage. Yes, especially the little brothers.

THE LONDON TRIBUNE

VOL. XVIII RICHMOND HILL THURSDAY, MAY 19, 1887. WHOLE NO. 1,503 NO. 51.

SHOT AND ROBBED.

Plucky Fight of an Old Sandwich Hotel-keeper.

A Windsor despatch says: Captain John Horn, sen., of Detroit, has for the past two years conducted the Road House at Sandwich, a short distance above the mineral springs. Captain John frequently the only person on the premises. Last night he was alone, his bedroom being just in rear of the bar, with an entrance to it from the dance hall.

COLONIAL CONFERENCE.

The Delegates Present an Address to the Queen—Handsome Gifts and Congratulations.

A London cablegram says: The Colonial delegates visited the Queen at Windsor to-day to present their addresses. Several valuable presentations were made from the colonies, among them being a gold casket studded with Cape diamonds, which was presented by the Cape representatives, and a casket of native woods, mounted in silver.

RAILWAY DISASTER.

An Intercolonial Express Wrecked by an Enormous Snowdrift—Two Men Killed.

A Moncton, N. B., despatch says: Yesterday's express from Quebec was five hours behind time. The delay was caused by a fatal snowdrift three miles west of Trois Pistoles. The west-bound accommodation struck an avalanche which had dropped on the track from a high bank in a cut, cutting, and both engines and the four first-class cars ran off the track and piled in a heap of ruin.

STABBED TO DEATH.

A New Westminster (B.C.) despatch says: Between 9 and 10 o'clock yesterday morning J. E. Muir, who has been engaged for many years logging at Semiahmoo, was murdered on the railway wharf in this city by a man named Wm. Shearer.

A certain current slang phrase has been traced to the late Mrs. John Bunyan. In "The Pilgrim's Progress" occurs the passage: "When it is a cold day for them in a nation, then they lurk in the hedges, though their ordinance lies there, as leaves that are dry and fall down from the tree."

There is something in this little fellow I like," said an appreciative visitor to a young hopeful he was trotting on his knees. "Now," said the boy, "how did you know I had swallowed a penny?"

IRELAND'S CRIMES BILL.

A last (Wednesday) night's London cable says: There was an unusually large attendance in the House of Commons to-day, as strong interest was felt in the Dillon bill.

Mr. W. H. Smith announced in the House of Commons this afternoon that the Government had resolved that the allegation that the statement by the London Times that Mr. Dillon told a falsehood while denying in the event of the adoption of Sir Edward Clarke's motion, he would move an amendment to the effect that the effect that an inquiry be made by a committee into the charges of willful falsehood, in a speech delivered in the House of Commons brought in an article by the Times against Mr. Dillon.

Mr. Gladstone intimated that in the event of the adoption of Sir Edward Clarke's motion, he would move an amendment to the effect that the effect that an inquiry be made by a committee into the charges of willful falsehood, in a speech delivered in the House of Commons brought in an article by the Times against Mr. Dillon.

Mr. De Lisle, Conservative, rose to a point of order. He said he had heard Mr. Banner (Home Rule member for Middle Cork) say that "Conservatives are damned lot of cads."

Mr. Speaker Peel—The Clerk of the House will please see that the words are taken down. Mr. Tanner denied that he had used the word "damned." He repeated, however, that the Conservatives were a lot of cads.

Mr. Speaker said Mr. Tanner must withdraw the expression and apologize. Sir Wm. Vernon Harcourt denounced the Government's proposal. Sir Edward Clarke, ex-Solicitor-General, moved an amendment to the Government's proposal to the effect that the House did not consider the Times article concerning Mr. Dillon a breach of privilege.

Lord Randolph Churchill admitted that the case presented a prima facie breach of privilege, but he thought the House was not refusing a judicial inquiry. The only difference was as to the form of inquiry to be adopted. He regarded a resort to the ordinary tribunals of the law one that would afford a better remedy than could be obtained from the action by the House. He deprecated the attack made by Mr. O'Connor on the Government leader in so many words.

ODIUM AS CRIMINALS.

Some of them in the meantime had been imprisoned. Enough had been done and said in these six years to prejudice the minds of any English jury.

Mr. Gladstone intimated that in the event of the adoption of Sir Edward Clarke's motion, he would move an amendment to the effect that the effect that an inquiry be made by a committee into the charges of willful falsehood, in a speech delivered in the House of Commons brought in an article by the Times against Mr. Dillon.

Mr. Gladstone intimated that in the event of the adoption of Sir Edward Clarke's motion, he would move an amendment to the effect that the effect that an inquiry be made by a committee into the charges of willful falsehood, in a speech delivered in the House of Commons brought in an article by the Times against Mr. Dillon.

Mr. Gladstone intimated that in the event of the adoption of Sir Edward Clarke's motion, he would move an amendment to the effect that the effect that an inquiry be made by a committee into the charges of willful falsehood, in a speech delivered in the House of Commons brought in an article by the Times against Mr. Dillon.

Mr. Gladstone intimated that in the event of the adoption of Sir Edward Clarke's motion, he would move an amendment to the effect that the effect that an inquiry be made by a committee into the charges of willful falsehood, in a speech delivered in the House of Commons brought in an article by the Times against Mr. Dillon.

Mr. Gladstone intimated that in the event of the adoption of Sir Edward Clarke's motion, he would move an amendment to the effect that the effect that an inquiry be made by a committee into the charges of willful falsehood, in a speech delivered in the House of Commons brought in an article by the Times against Mr. Dillon.

Mr. Gladstone intimated that in the event of the adoption of Sir Edward Clarke's motion, he would move an amendment to the effect that the effect that an inquiry be made by a committee into the charges of willful falsehood, in a speech delivered in the House of Commons brought in an article by the Times against Mr. Dillon.

WATCHING THE FISHERIES.

The Canadian Cruisers Find No Trouble in Looking After the Americans.

A Halifax despatch says: The cruiser Triumph, on the station occupied by the Terror last summer, called into Barrington yesterday. She has visited within the past few days all the harbors and usual resorts of fishing craft between Liverpool and Barrington, and is now on her way to Pubnico, the western limit of her beat.

A Halifax despatch says: The cruiser Triumph, on the station occupied by the Terror last summer, called into Barrington yesterday. She has visited within the past few days all the harbors and usual resorts of fishing craft between Liverpool and Barrington, and is now on her way to Pubnico, the western limit of her beat.

A Halifax despatch says: The cruiser Triumph, on the station occupied by the Terror last summer, called into Barrington yesterday. She has visited within the past few days all the harbors and usual resorts of fishing craft between Liverpool and Barrington, and is now on her way to Pubnico, the western limit of her beat.

A Halifax despatch says: The cruiser Triumph, on the station occupied by the Terror last summer, called into Barrington yesterday. She has visited within the past few days all the harbors and usual resorts of fishing craft between Liverpool and Barrington, and is now on her way to Pubnico, the western limit of her beat.

A Halifax despatch says: The cruiser Triumph, on the station occupied by the Terror last summer, called into Barrington yesterday. She has visited within the past few days all the harbors and usual resorts of fishing craft between Liverpool and Barrington, and is now on her way to Pubnico, the western limit of her beat.

A Halifax despatch says: The cruiser Triumph, on the station occupied by the Terror last summer, called into Barrington yesterday. She has visited within the past few days all the harbors and usual resorts of fishing craft between Liverpool and Barrington, and is now on her way to Pubnico, the western limit of her beat.

THE NANAIMO CALAMITY.

Securely Any Hope of Saving the Imprisoned Miners.

AGONIZING SCENES ABOVE GROUND. A Hundred and Fifty Miners at the Bottom of the British Columbia Mine—No Hope of Safety—Heart-Rendering Scenes.

A Nanaimo, B. C., despatch says: A terrible explosion of gas took place on Tuesday evening in the No. 1 shaft of the Vancouver Coal Company's mines, in which there were upwards of one hundred and fifty miners at the time. The first intimation of the disaster was the appearance of a plume of black smoke, followed by a terrific shock, followed by a second one stronger than the first, carrying pieces of wood, miners' lamps, etc., hundreds of feet into the air.

A Nanaimo, B. C., despatch says: A terrible explosion of gas took place on Tuesday evening in the No. 1 shaft of the Vancouver Coal Company's mines, in which there were upwards of one hundred and fifty miners at the time. The first intimation of the disaster was the appearance of a plume of black smoke, followed by a terrific shock, followed by a second one stronger than the first, carrying pieces of wood, miners' lamps, etc., hundreds of feet into the air.

A Nanaimo, B. C., despatch says: A terrible explosion of gas took place on Tuesday evening in the No. 1 shaft of the Vancouver Coal Company's mines, in which there were upwards of one hundred and fifty miners at the time. The first intimation of the disaster was the appearance of a plume of black smoke, followed by a terrific shock, followed by a second one stronger than the first, carrying pieces of wood, miners' lamps, etc., hundreds of feet into the air.

A Nanaimo, B. C., despatch says: A terrible explosion of gas took place on Tuesday evening in the No. 1 shaft of the Vancouver Coal Company's mines, in which there were upwards of one hundred and fifty miners at the time. The first intimation of the disaster was the appearance of a plume of black smoke, followed by a terrific shock, followed by a second one stronger than the first, carrying pieces of wood, miners' lamps, etc., hundreds of feet into the air.

A Nanaimo, B. C., despatch says: A terrible explosion of gas took place on Tuesday evening in the No. 1 shaft of the Vancouver Coal Company's mines, in which there were upwards of one hundred and fifty miners at the time. The first intimation of the disaster was the appearance of a plume of black smoke, followed by a terrific shock, followed by a second one stronger than the first, carrying pieces of wood, miners' lamps, etc., hundreds of feet into the air.

A Nanaimo, B. C., despatch says: A terrible explosion of gas took place on Tuesday evening in the No. 1 shaft of the Vancouver Coal Company's mines, in which there were upwards of one hundred and fifty miners at the time. The first intimation of the disaster was the appearance of a plume of black smoke, followed by a terrific shock, followed by a second one stronger than the first, carrying pieces of wood, miners' lamps, etc., hundreds of feet into the air.

very few people in the city that have not lost relatives or friends. One lady lost her husband, father and brother, and is frantic with grief. All she wishes now is to see her dead husband's face once more. He was to have taken a holiday that day and gone off by bicycle riding, but being a rainy day he postponed his pleasure trip and went down to the mine to see if he could return alive. One gentleman from Victoria has five brothers, a brother-in-law and an uncle imprisoned in the mine by the deadly gas.

There are 101 white men and 50 Chinese still in the mine. Forty-seven of the whites are married men with families. Some of the young wives with small children are frantic with grief, standing around the mouth of the fatal shaft. Others are dead with weary watching and tears.

There are 101 white men and 50 Chinese still in the mine. Forty-seven of the whites are married men with families. Some of the young wives with small children are frantic with grief, standing around the mouth of the fatal shaft. Others are dead with weary watching and tears.

There are 101 white men and 50 Chinese still in the mine. Forty-seven of the whites are married men with families. Some of the young wives with small children are frantic with grief, standing around the mouth of the fatal shaft. Others are dead with weary watching and tears.

There are 101 white men and 50 Chinese still in the mine. Forty-seven of the whites are married men with families. Some of the young wives with small children are frantic with grief, standing around the mouth of the fatal shaft. Others are dead with weary watching and tears.

There are 101 white men and 50 Chinese still in the mine. Forty-seven of the whites are married men with families. Some of the young wives with small children are frantic with grief, standing around the mouth of the fatal shaft. Others are dead with weary watching and tears.

There are 101 white men and 50 Chinese still in the mine. Forty-seven of the whites are married men with families. Some of the young wives with small children are frantic with grief, standing around the mouth of the fatal shaft. Others are dead with weary watching and tears.

There are 101 white men and 50 Chinese still in the mine. Forty-seven of the whites are married men with families. Some of the young wives with small children are frantic with grief, standing around the mouth of the fatal shaft. Others are dead with weary watching and tears.

There are 101 white men and 50 Chinese still in the mine. Forty-seven of the whites are married men with families. Some of the young wives with small children are frantic with grief, standing around the mouth of the fatal shaft. Others are dead with weary watching and tears.

There are 101 white men and 50 Chinese still in the mine. Forty-seven of the whites are married men with families. Some of the young wives with small children are frantic with grief, standing around the mouth of the fatal shaft. Others are dead with weary watching and tears.