The World in Trouble.

VERY HEAVY DAMAGES WANTED,
BY A LADY WHO THINKS SHE HAS BEEN
LIBELLED IN A LETTER RE-
VETER CASE.

TORONTO, Aug. 1, 1887.

To the Editor of the Toronto World:

DEAR SIR.—We are instructed by Mrs. Harriet A. Hawkins to write to you concerning an article which appeared in the issue of your paper of July 29, 1887, headed "A Thorough Incurable." There can be no question but that the article amounts to a gross libel upon Mrs. Hawkins, and as her solicitors we are requested to ask you to publish an apology for the insertion of the article and to make what amends may now be in your power for the wrong you have done to our client. If you do not desire to adopt this course please name your solicitors, upon whom we may serve a writ.

CARSTON & McCULLOUGH.

The above letter was received by the World on Tuesday last, 2nd inst. A representative of the paper called upon Messrs. Carston & McCullough and explained to Mr. McCullough, the B. C. L. of the firm, that it was perfectly willing to publish any statement he or the lady referred to desired to make in regard to Mr. Langstaff's letter, in which the alleged libel appeared. Mr. McCullough thought this was the proper course to take and it was understood that he was to send The World a letter giving Mrs. Hawkins statement. Instead of this the following letter of a different tenor, was handed into the office:

TORONTO, Aug. 1, 1887.

DEAR SIR.—Since we saw you we have again seen Mrs. Hawkins in reference to the article of which she complains, and which appeared in the issue of your paper of the 29th of July, 1887. Mrs. Hawkins thinks that a very great wrong has been done to her, and she instructs us to say that it will take a very large amount of damages to compensate her. Will you be kind enough to give us the name of your solicitor.

CARSTON & McCULLOUGH.

On receipt of these letters the law was turned up and found to read as follows:

2. No such action shall lie unless and until the plaintiff has given to the defendant notice in writing, specifying the statements complained of, such notice to be served in the same manner as a plaintiff's statement of claim is served, or delivering the notice to some grown up person at the place of business of the defendant. The plaintiff shall recover actual damages only, if it appears on the trial of the action that the article was published in good faith, and that there was reasonable ground to believe that the same was for the public benefit, and if it did not involve a criminal charge, and if it appears that the publication took place in mistake or misapprehension of the facts; and that a full and fair retraction of any statement therein alleged to be erroneous was published in the next regular issue of the newspaper or other periodical publication aforesaid, or in any regular issue thereof, published within three days after the receipt of such notice, and was so published in as conspicuous a place and type as was the article complained of.

When the above conditions have been complied with The World is prepared to take such action as the circumstances warrant. In the meantime The World might say that in mentioning the lady's name it had no desire to injure her, and published the letter complained of merely as throwing some light on what has become a case of great interest, especially in the locality where the kidnapping took place.

Our Washington Letter.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

At the White House, the reception of the different delegations, who came to invite the President to visit their States, has been the order of the week. On Monday the President received the Missouri delegation headed by Mayor Francis of St. Louis. The Committee was received in the library on the second floor of the Executive Mansion, next to the President's private office. If it had been known how large the delegation was, arrangements would have been made to receive the gentlemen in company in the East room. After the neat and complimentary speech of Mayor Francis, the President replied in a few well chosen words and accepted the invitation to visit St. Louis at the time of the State Exposition and Agricultural and Mechanical Fair, stipulating, however, that his visit to St. Louis should not interfere with his proposed trip to Atlanta, Ga., which is arranged for the first week in October. The Mayor replied that all would be managed to suit the convenience of the President, and in conclusion reminded him that the invitation expressly included Mrs. Cleveland, whom the President must not forget to bring. Mr. Cleveland replied that she would not let him forget her. Both speeches, that of the mayor and the President's reply, were continually interrupted by cheers and applause, and the Missourians departed jubilant over the success of their mission and the heartiness of their reception at the White House, and doubtless rejoiced that the President in no wise held the people of Missouri responsible for the reason of the withdrawal of his first acceptance.

On Wednesday the Chief Magistrate again received a delegation who came from Kansas City, to invite him to extend his trip West to that place. After a repetition of the speeches and applause of the previous reception, the President accepted the invitation. A committee from Lynchburg, Va. has also asked the President to honor that town. He has not yet given an answer. It will be seen by these proposed journeys, that Mr. Cleveland will take an extended tour in the South and West in the fall, including several States and most of the large cities en route. This is conclusive evidence that there is no intention on the part of the Executive of calling an extra Session of Congress. Certainly not in October when he proposes to be absent from the Capital.

The son of an ex-president, the venerable John Tyler, lies in a critical condition at his residence here. Mr. Tyler is suffering from partial paralysis and from the effect of the excessive heat. He was overcome by the sun one day last week, and fell in the street. He was taken to his home in an unconscious condition, and though he is slightly recovered from the first attack, little hopes of his permanent recovery are entertained.

The U. S. National Museum suffers a loss in the death of Dr. Chas. Rau, a prominent archaeologist, and curator of the department of Antiquities at the Museum. His death occurred in Philadelphia, of congestion of the lungs.

Gen. Wm. McKee Dunn, late Judge Advocate General, died at his farm in Va. on Sunday last. Gen. Dunn has been suffering for several years with kidney troubles, but over-exertion during the warm weather, hastened his death. His loss will be felt by the whole community as well as socially, and in army circles, for he was largely interested in the development and prosperity of Washington, and has been greatly instrumental in the present prosperous condition of the Capital.

The mortality among the very young and very old in Washington has been very great and superinduced by the terrible heat of the last four weeks. The babies succumb of tenness, for out of a list of eight deaths in one day, seven were infants under one year. There is no prospect of relief either, for the sun continues to shine with unabated vigor and the frequent showers bring no change of temperature. Under such a stress it is impossible not to talk about the weather.

The press of business at the Post Office General has been obliged to stop the granting of leaves of absence to employes until after the first of Sept.

The household effects of Oscar J. Harvey, the forger, were sold the other day by the Marshall of the District under preceptory orders by the Court. The sale will not realize enough to decrease the amount stolen by Harvey from the Government, to any perceptible degree. A very handsome pair of crimson portieres brought $3. and a rare vase was knocked down to the only bidder for fifty cents. The rest of the furniture was sold at the same ridiculously low figures. It seems that Harvey had a passion for collecting rare and handsome furniture and bric-a-brac. It is said he cultivated the criminal accomplishment of forging in order to indulge in his love of the fine arts. He obtained his position at the Treasury. It is reported, through a forged letter from Sam. Randall, M. C. from Pa. Indeed the man's whole history is a counterpart of "Jim the Penman's."

Washington, D. C., July 29th, 1887.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS

—Notable Facts.—Intense heat augments the annoyance of skin disease and encourages the development of febrile disorders; wherefore they should, as they may, be removed by these detergent and purifying preparations. In stomach complaints, liver affections, pains and spasms of the bowels, Holloway's Ointment well rubbed over the affected part immediately gives the greatest ease, prevents congestion and inflammation, checks the threatening diarrhoea and averts incipient cholera. The poorer inhabitants of large cities will find these remedies to be their best friend when any pestilence rages, or when from unknown causes, eruptions, boils, abscesses, or ulcers, beset the presence of taints or impurities within the system, and call for instant and effective curative medicines.

The St. John, F. B., cotton mills now employ over 500 hands, and are yet five months behind with their orders. It is said that no one who really wants to work need be idle a day in St. John. A mechanic has had to postpone a large job because he could not get enough skilled labor in the city.
