

A Quarrel.

There's a knowing little proverb, From the sunny land of Spain...

Try it well in every way, Still you'll find it true, In a fight without a quarrel...

Let's suppose that both are wrong, And the strife begun, In one voice shall you say "Pence..."

Afterward, "Never," he roared, "I will live my last, Can I love again? I will die unwept..."

SHIRLEY ROSS:

A Story of Woman's Faithfulness.

"To escape from me!" he repeated sadly. "But, my poor child, if I had known that my presence gave you any pain..."

"How can I be happy, Shirley, when I see you thus?" he asked, with an intense sadness. "Do you guess how much we have suffered on your account?"

"I came away because—because—" Her voice failed her, and the words died away upon her lips, her head drooped on her breast...

"Because, in your generosity and unselfishness, you thought that I should forget you if you let me. My darling, how could you think that?"

"I cannot understand them, Shirley." "Nor is it necessary that you should. Ah, if I could trust you—if I could trust you!"

"Listen to me, my darling," he said very gently, but with an impressive gravity in look and manner. "You have acted, I am sure, with perfect unselfishness throughout everything."

"I cannot tell you," she said faintly. "Is it that you no longer love me?" he asked, with the same perfect gentleness and was silent.

"There was a long pause. Guy's face had grown very pale, and his lips quivered. He had taken her silence for an affirmative answer to his question, and it had given him a sharp pang, as if a knife had been thrust into his heart."

"That I was starving," she said, with a little smile. "Did it hurt you to think of it? Ah, do not—do not look at me so, Guy! That is all over now, you know. You must forget it, and—"

misstress, was strange enough; but, as he watched her, he recalled the stories which had reached the Rectory and the Hall—of the constant strangely timid visits of the doctor and her maid, who walked with him—also the rumors of voices and the presence of a strange man in the cottage on Christmas night.

"Shirley," he said, and his voice was very low and his face very colorless as he went toward her. "I cannot even believe your own witness against yourself. Why do you not trust me, dear? Is it that, after all, you doubt me? Is it that you believe me the murderer of your husband?"

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

pression in the great burning eyes which met his, and then warded away so quickly. "Madge is a very dear girl; but she will never be anything to me but my old friend, and I will never love her as I love you."

"She spoke with a more natural expression than the bewildered look had passed, and a tinge of color had stolen into her face in her momentary gladness. It was a wonderful relief to Guy, to see that color and the changed expression of her face, and he smiled as he answered—"

"I should be very glad," he said gently. "Why should I be sorry, Shirley?" "I thought—I thought she was to be your wife."

"I shall have no wife, Shirley," he replied. "I am growing into a confirmed old bachelor. Do you know, dear, that I might as well be thinking of doing with my fingers to-day? I think and I had both noticed so many little things in her, which reminded me of you that, when Lady Oliphant described you to me to-day, a thought flashed upon me like lightning that Mrs. Grant must be our Shirley."

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

five minutes had elapsed Guy lifted his head and saw Sir Hugh's sunken eyes fixed upon him, and every shade of color died out of his face and lips as he rose to his feet and drew back a little, more overcome than he had ever been before in his life as the truth flashed across him.

"She? Madge! Oh, Guy, is it true? And you—you are not sorry—you do not love her?"

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

"I have no doubt, but I am sure that you believe me the murderer of your husband? Ah, you know that, deeply as he had wronged me, I forgave him all fully!"

CURRENT TOPICS.

The Powers of Europe, which have exhausted their resources in preparing for the war, are now in the United States, which refuses to spend money in war preparations, has put a cowboy and Indian war under way in the Indian Territory without a day having been wasted in diplomatic negotiations.

Nonny is surprised to learn that within the last five years the United States Government has lost over $200,000 because of errors or defects in the instruments used to test sugars in appraising them for the collection of duties.

From the conduct of Sir Morrell Mackenzie during the illness of Emperor Frederick, of Germany, the English-speaking public has formed an idea that he is amply able to take care of himself in any controversy that may arise with the doctors of the Fatherland.

Every child who is taught to plant tree seed or who sets a true with his own hands is being taught a good lesson. He feels that he is doing something that will make the world a better or pleasanter world to live in, it may be, longer after he himself ceases to live.

Sojourners at the summer resorts are complaining in vigorous epithets of the highbidding conduct of the hotel servants during the summer season. It has become impossible to obtain the slightest service from the attendants without first displaying a gratuity.

Tea cultivation, it is said, is to be tried by a rancher at Elko, Nev., who proposes employing Indian women and children to grow the tea.

A rock has been found in Alabama which readily oxidizes iron. There are always some new combinations in nature coming up. They always serve some good use.

A recent English invention relates to casting packing-rings ready for use without boring or grinding. The rings are cast in a chill mold and a metal core and other monopolists who have done a rude awakening on this subject.

PERSONAL bravery and fearlessness in the presence of danger are frequently claimed as peculiar attributes of dwellers in the breezy and mountainous regions of Nevada and California, and tend to substantiate the claim.

A good deal has been said and written about the influence of education to prevent crime. It is held by many that intellectual education is one of the surest means of preventing crime.

Mr. Berry Wall is really becoming more of a public attraction than her erstwhile glorious husband. She has already reached the distinction of having men fight for her.

Dr. Mackay states, in his "Dictionary of Lowland Scotch," that about 2,000 words used in the poems of Piers Ploughman are obsolete in England but retained in Scotland.

Mr. Manhattan, who is making a dreadful noise, says: "Nabry—'Yis, the poor fellow, he's a good fellow, and his yersef wud cry, sor, if he had his own pain." Mr. M.—'Can't Mrs. Manhattan—'can't its mother quiet it?' N.—'Perhaps she cud, sor, if she were here; but she has gone out, sor.' Mr. M.—'Gone out? Where?' N.—'She's gone to the dentist's, sor, to have Fido's teeth filled."

THEY DODGE THE EVIL ONE.

No Marks to Indicate Where the Chinamen are Buried.

In the Macphelah Cemetery, Philadelphia, there are buried the bodies of a dozen Chinamen who died in that city, and in a short time they will probably be exhumed and sent back to the Flowery Kingdom.

The coming week will witness a large influx of American visitors, and we trust they will be able to enjoy their trip to the East. Those of our visitors who have tried it in previous years have had only good reports to give, and it has in no way deteriorated with age.

From the conduct of Sir Morrell Mackenzie during the illness of Emperor Frederick, of Germany, the English-speaking public has formed an idea that he is amply able to take care of himself in any controversy that may arise with the doctors of the Fatherland.

Every child who is taught to plant tree seed or who sets a true with his own hands is being taught a good lesson. He feels that he is doing something that will make the world a better or pleasanter world to live in, it may be, longer after he himself ceases to live.

Sojourners at the summer resorts are complaining in vigorous epithets of the highbidding conduct of the hotel servants during the summer season. It has become impossible to obtain the slightest service from the attendants without first displaying a gratuity.

Tea cultivation, it is said, is to be tried by a rancher at Elko, Nev., who proposes employing Indian women and children to grow the tea.

A rock has been found in Alabama which readily oxidizes iron. There are always some new combinations in nature coming up. They always serve some good use.

A recent English invention relates to casting packing-rings ready for use without boring or grinding. The rings are cast in a chill mold and a metal core and other monopolists who have done a rude awakening on this subject.

PERSONAL bravery and fearlessness in the presence of danger are frequently claimed as peculiar attributes of dwellers in the breezy and mountainous regions of Nevada and California, and tend to substantiate the claim.

A good deal has been said and written about the influence of education to prevent crime. It is held by many that intellectual education is one of the surest means of preventing crime.

Mr. Berry Wall is really becoming more of a public attraction than her erstwhile glorious husband. She has already reached the distinction of having men fight for her.

Dr. Mackay states, in his "Dictionary of Lowland Scotch," that about 2,000 words used in the poems of Piers Ploughman are obsolete in England but retained in Scotland.

DANGERS OF USING LEAD PIPES.

Lead-Poisoning the Result of This Means of Conveying Drinking Water.

Lead pipes are extensively used for conveying drinking water into dwellings from the main in cities and also from distant springs in rural districts. The use of lead is always attended with danger to health, for the metal unites with mineral acids contained in the water and forms lead salts, most of which are deadly poisons, which are introduced into the system of those who drink the water.

The symptoms of severe lead-poisoning are anæmia, a dull hue of the skin, digestive derangement, bad breath, shrinkage of the gums, colic, constipation, neuralgic pains in the muscles and joints, and muscular paralysis. The last symptoms give rise to what is called "drop-wrist." Severe as are the symptoms, the tendency is to recovery after removal of the cause and proper treatment. The result is a post mortem examination reveals lead in almost every organ and tissue—most in the bones; and next after these in the kidneys, liver, brain and spinal cord.

It should be an unvarying rule to let off the water from the faucets in the service-pipe over night. This will prevent the country conducting the water from distant springs to the house, they should be wholly discarded. What is called "pure spring water" almost always contains acid gases which have a strong affinity for lead, and which form poison. Really pure water, that is, distilled water, has no action on lead.

The keeper of the Tillamook Rock (Oregon) lighthouse reports to the Light-house Board a wave which broke at a right angle to the shore, and the water, his calculation is, as follows: A rock upon which the lighthouse tower stands rises ninety-six feet above the tower, the focal plane of the light itself is thirty-eight feet above the base of the tower, and the crest of the wave was at least two feet above the light.

That dairy lady tripping by, How bright her step, and brighter eye, How fresh her cheek with healthful glow, Like roses that in Maytime blow!

Method for strengthening the memory are the craze in many of the large cities. The people who study the memory lesson seem to forget everything else. So it is noticed.

Cats are found to be the best exterminators of rabbits in New Zealand. They do great havoc among the young ones, and in some sections scarcely a rabbit was to be seen.

Dr. Henocque, of Paris, has invented a new spectroscopic method for investigating the composition of the human body. It is a proof of importance in studying nutrition.

A rock has been found in Alabama which readily oxidizes iron. There are always some new combinations in nature coming up. They always serve some good use.

A recent English invention relates to casting packing-rings ready for use without boring or grinding. The rings are cast in a chill mold and a metal core and other monopolists who have done a rude awakening on this subject.

PERSONAL bravery and fearlessness in the presence of danger are frequently claimed as peculiar attributes of dwellers in the breezy and mountainous regions of Nevada and California, and tend to substantiate the claim.

A good deal has been said and written about the influence of education to prevent crime. It is held by many that intellectual education is one of the surest means of preventing crime.

THEY DODGE THE EVIL ONE.

No Marks to Indicate Where the Chinamen are Buried.

In the Macphelah Cemetery, Philadelphia, there are buried the bodies of a dozen Chinamen who died in that city, and in a short time they will probably be exhumed and sent back to the Flowery Kingdom.

The coming week will witness a large influx of American visitors, and we trust they will be able to enjoy their trip to the East. Those of our visitors who have tried it in previous years have had only good reports to give, and it has in no way deteriorated with age.

From the conduct of Sir Morrell Mackenzie during the illness of Emperor Frederick, of Germany, the English-speaking public has formed an idea that he is amply able to take care of himself in any controversy that may arise with the doctors of the Fatherland.

Every child who is taught to plant tree seed or who sets a true with his own hands is being taught a good lesson. He feels that he is doing something that will make the world a better or pleasanter world to live in, it may be, longer after he himself ceases to live.

Sojourners at the summer resorts are complaining in vigorous epithets of the highbidding conduct of the hotel servants during the summer season. It has become impossible to obtain the slightest service from the attendants without first displaying a gratuity.

Tea cultivation, it is said, is to be tried by a rancher at Elko, Nev., who proposes employing Indian women and children to grow the tea.

A rock has been found in Alabama which readily oxidizes iron. There are always some new combinations in nature coming up. They always serve some good use.

A recent English invention relates to casting packing-rings ready for use without boring or grinding. The rings are cast in a chill mold and a metal core and other monopolists who have done a rude awakening on this subject.

PERSONAL bravery and fearlessness in the presence of danger are frequently claimed as peculiar attributes of dwellers in the breezy and mountainous regions of Nevada and California, and tend to substantiate the claim.

A good deal has been said and written about the influence of education to prevent crime. It is held by many that intellectual education is one of the surest means of preventing crime.

Mr. Berry Wall is really becoming more of a public attraction than her erstwhile glorious husband. She has already reached the distinction of having men fight for her.

Dr. Mackay states, in his "Dictionary of Lowland Scotch," that about 2,000 words used in the poems of Piers Ploughman are obsolete in England but retained in Scotland.

THEY DODGE THE EVIL ONE.

No Marks to Indicate Where the Chinamen are Buried.

In the Macphelah Cemetery, Philadelphia, there are buried the bodies of a dozen Chinamen who died in that city, and in a short time they will probably be exhumed and sent back to the Flowery Kingdom.

The coming week will witness a large influx of American visitors, and we trust they will be able to enjoy their trip to the East. Those of our visitors who have tried it in previous years have had only good reports to give, and it has in no way deteriorated with age.

From the conduct of Sir Morrell Mackenzie during the illness of Emperor Frederick, of Germany, the English-speaking public has formed an idea that he is amply able to take care of himself in any controversy that may arise with the doctors of the Fatherland.

Every child who is taught to plant tree seed or who sets a true with his own hands is being taught a good lesson. He feels that he is doing something that will make the world a better or pleasanter world to live in, it may be, longer after he himself ceases to live.

Sojourners at the summer resorts are complaining in vigorous epithets of the highbidding conduct of the hotel servants during the summer season. It has become impossible to obtain the slightest service from the attendants without first displaying a gratuity.

Tea cultivation, it is said, is to be tried by a rancher at Elko, Nev., who proposes employing Indian women and children to grow the tea.

A rock has been found in Alabama which readily oxidizes iron. There are always some new combinations in nature coming up. They always serve some good use.

A recent English invention relates to casting packing-rings ready for use without boring or grinding. The rings are cast in a chill mold and a metal core and other monopolists who have done a rude awakening on this subject.

PERSONAL bravery and fearlessness in the presence of danger are frequently claimed as peculiar attributes of dwellers in the breezy and mountainous regions of Nevada and California, and tend to substantiate the claim.

A good deal has been said and written about the influence of education to prevent crime. It is held by many that intellectual education is one of the surest means of preventing crime.

Mr. Berry Wall is really becoming more of a public attraction than her erstwhile glorious husband. She has already reached the distinction of having men fight for her.

Dr. Mackay states, in his "Dictionary of Lowland Scotch," that about 2,000 words used in the poems of Piers Ploughman are obsolete in England but retained in Scotland.

DUNN'S BAKING POWDER THE COOK'S BEST FRIEND