The last Carnival of the season was held on the Rink on Tuesday night when the slim attendance and the small array of costumers showed that the Carnival season was past for the winter.

Cattle Fair.

At the Monthly Cattle Fair, on Wednesday, there was a large amount of Stock, some of it very fine. Buying was brisk, our home butchers taking the lead. Several butchers present from a distance.

Typographical Error.

In our report of the financial standing of the Methodist Church last week, a typographical error occurred in the payments which should have read "Two notes of $600 each-$1200.00 instead of $12.00."

Sum Moribus.

Etiquette.

Senator Mc Pherson, of Toronto, has written a book on etiquette, to be observed by officers and members of the Senate. One of the rules is that a Senator shall not call another a liar without first attracting his attention with an ink stand or a paper weight.

Early Spring.

The indications are that we will have an early spring, from the fact that crows are becoming plentiful, and their cawing may be heard almost any morning. This is an Indian prediction, who, by the way, are better weather prophets than Vennor or Wiggins.

The first Correction.

The first disciplinary correction at the Industrial Home was administered last week to an inmate named Whiteoak, from Markham. He gave the managers considerable trouble and finally became violent and had to be confined for a time, which had the effect of subduing him.

Our Railways.

The Toronto World gives publicity to the rumor that the Grand Trunk Railway Co. has secured a controlling interest in the Hamilton & North-Western Railway and will soon have possession of the Northern. It also states that it will soon obtain peaceable possession of the Toronto, Grey and Bruce road.

Entertainment.

Mr. Geo. M. Beynon, teacher in School Section No 4 Markham and Vaughan, about two miles north of this place, held an entertainment in his School House on Friday evening which was well patronized. A number of young people went from Richmond Hill. Proceeds to go toward purchasing prizes for the pupils.

Molly Maguires.

County Crown Attorney Fenton, who is vigorously prosecuting the purchasers of lottery tickets in the London Fraud, received a threatening communication from an "Invincible." The words "death," "prepare," and some other hieroglyphics were discernible, and the shape of a skull, over the words, "let up on lotaries."

Masonic Lotteries.

The grand master of the grand lodge of Ontario A. F. and A. M., has issued the following edict: "Whereas the holding of lotteries, gift enterprises, games of chance, and clearly against the laws of the country and the principles of freemasonry, and calculated to bring dishonor upon our ancient and honorable order, this is, therefore, to give notice that such practises are hereby forbidden on behalf of any lodge or individual member under the jurisdiction of the grand lodge of Ontario, A. Stephen J. Bean, G. M."

Hotel Sale.

The Royal Hotel was put up at auction at the Monthly Sale on Wednesday. The property was run up to $2,700, but as this did not reach the up set price it was not sold. The furniture and bar fixtures were sold without reserve. Bidding on it was lively, and many articles went for their full value, while there were many good bargains struck.

Light Sentences.

On Monday John Cobb, who, it will be remembered, stole a case of goods from the Northern Railway, and who pleaded guilty to the charge, was brought before Judge Boyd, in Toronto, to receive his sentence. The Judge inflicted the incredible light sentence of three months in goal at hard labor. Hiram Dunham and Mary Marshall, charged with receiving the goods knowing them to be stolen, were sentenced, Durham to three months, and Marshall to one month.—Banner.

Beecher on Gladstone.

In the course of a recent sermon Rev H. W. Beecher paid the following eloquent tribute to Gladstone:—"No nobler statesman has risen in our day than Mr. Gladstone. He stands with Count Cavour, and is greater than he. As compared with Themis, he is a patriotic and immeasurably his superior both in wisdom and in public and private morality. Perhaps Bismark is fitted to guide an empire amid the storms of war, but he is not to be compared with Gladstone as a statesman, controlling a nation in peace. He is an unselfish man, seeking the good of his country and his race, and not seeking himself; seeking good to all by ways of peace and not by ways of violence. A Christian and a patriot, clothed with learning uncommon even among the scholars of our day. A man of spotless honor, he stands upon the highest place on earth—higher than the throne he serves. A man without violence; a diplomatist without guile; a leader without personal ends; a statesman carrying into public life the conscience of a Christian and the instincts of a gentleman. If he should go down we should renew our in day the magnificent spectacle of the ancient days, when the great law giver and leader of Israel, having conducted his people through the desert, came upon the borders of the promised land and died without entering therein. Gladstone will have brought the English and Irish people to the very bounds of liberty and died without being permitted to go over. Who can avert it but God and the people? It is for us standing in our place to exert a true Christian influence to the full for England and to the full for Ireland, to pour out our prayers that He who guides the destinies of nations, He who has been the captain of our salvation, will overrule all things to the furtherance of justice and settled order of that empire which we love. God save the Queen! God save the Parliament! God save England, Scotland, and Ireland! God save Ireland from the hands of oppression and from her own hand, and may the mercy which he gives to this continent go on wings of the prayers of every emigrant for his own land until all the earth shall dwell together in settled peace with a love of light spread from every star."
