

ing to herself. I would rather have again

the country laudic asylum that every day;

When Mrs. Manners had left me, and

I never saw the poor creature again.

Some interesting facts concerning the

Men who stand next to the Chief Executive.

Visitors who, from curiosity or business,

have called at the White House, must have been impressed by the courteous yet serious manner with which they were received and escorted through the mansion.

The gentlemen whose duty it is to receive

all persons coming to the White House are

Colonel E. S. Danmore, Mr. John R. Rick-

ard and Mr. T. E. Pender, and they have occupied their present positions through the

administration since and even during the

body-guard saw him to his carriage the day. Mr. Pender was President Lincoln's

ward-guard, and he has now in his possession of the fatal night on which he visited Ford's

theater, and he has now in his possession

only the blood-stained coat which Mr. Lincoln wore on that memorable occasion.

There is not a public man in America to-day

who does not know, and who is not known

by these gentlemen, and the reminiscences

of public and social life which they can recount would fill a congressional volume.

Grant's administration; which Hayes held

the reins of government, and when Garfield

was shot, it was these men who stood in the executive mansion, welcoming the advent of each new administration, bowing at its

departure, and receiving both martyrs

through the portals.

During that long, hot and never to be forgotten summer when President Garfield lay

in the Presidential mansion, the influence

of the deadly malarial

which hung about the White House, but

all things, about the period these men received their posts for a single day, although each one was suffering immensely.

I am

Denmore said:

"It is impossible to describe the tortures

to be compelled to witness. I have undergone some of the greatest agony requires a tremen-

ous dose of opium. All that summer I had terrible headaches, heart-ache and a stifling sensation that sometimes took away my breath.

My appetite was uncertain and I felt searing pains in the small of my back. I was under the doctor's care with strict instructions not

to get out of the house, but I remained on my feet. You would be surprised to know how I would be surprised to know that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

ing to herself. I would rather have again

the country laudic asylum that every day;

When Mrs. Manners had left me, and

I never saw the poor creature again.

Some interesting facts concerning the

Men who stand next to the Chief Executive.

Visitors who, from curiosity or business,

have called at the White House, must have

been impressed by the courteous yet serious manner with which they were received and escorted through the mansion.

The gentlemen whose duty it is to receive

all persons coming to the White House are

Colonel E. S. Danmore, Mr. John R. Rick-

ard and Mr. T. E. Pender, and they have

occupied their present positions through the

administration since and even during the

body-guard saw him to his carriage the

day. Mr. Pender was President Lincoln's

ward-guard, and he has now in his possession

of the fatal night on which he visited Ford's

theater, and he has now in his possession

only the blood-stained coat which Mr. Lincoln wore on that memorable occasion.

There is not a public man in America to-day

who does not know, and who is not known

by these gentlemen, and the reminiscences

of public and social life which they can re-

count would fill a congressional volume.

Grant's administration; which Hayes held

the reins of government, and when Garfield

was shot, it was these men who stood in the

executive mansion, welcoming the advent

of each new administration, bowing at its

departure, and receiving both martyrs

through the portals.

During that long, hot and never to be forgotten summer when President Garfield lay

in the Presidential mansion, the influence

of the deadly malarial

which hung about the White House, but

all things, about the period these men received their posts for a single day, although each one was suffering immensely.

I am

Denmore said:

"It is impossible to describe the tortures

to be compelled to witness. I have under-

gone some of the greatest agony requires a tremen-

ous dose of opium. All that summer I had terrible

headaches, heart-ache and a stifling sensation that sometimes took away my breath.

My appetite was uncertain and I felt sear-

ing pains in the small of my back. I was under

the doctor's care with strict instructions not

to get out of the house, but I remained on

my feet. You would be surprised to know how I would be surprised to know that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

was in the Presidential mansion, and that I

ing to herself. I would rather have again

the country laudic asylum that every day;

When Mrs. Manners had left me, and

I never saw the poor creature again.

Some interesting facts concerning the

Men who stand next to the Chief