

A MURDER BY THREE WOMEN.

Shanghai Crimes for which three women have been convicted in France.

In the Lower Pyrenees, at the little village of Lannet, three women have just been condemned for a singular crime. They conspired together and murdered a man named Joseph Larraz. The unfortunate victim was 55 years old and in good health, but was nevertheless murdered to find; and he had always carried 1,800 francs, which he always carried to go for a walk. Larraz had no room entered the tavern than Madeline's room upon him, while Candolot fastened the door on him, and behind him. They both then dragged him into a chamber. Dams Gousebarth held his legs and arms, and gave him a rope. When he no longer gave a sign of life, Madeline took his body and handed 25 francs to one of her accomplices and 25 francs to the other. The rest she kept.

Larraz had often demanded the repayment of the sum which she owed him. Once, when he visited her for the first time with this object, she cordially invited him to stay to dinner. He accepted, but hardly had he finished eating when looking in at a window, espied the corpse lying on the floor of the bed chamber. The authorities were notified, and at 11 o'clock in the evening the gendarmes came. Larraz's body was discovered after a long search, under the mattress of a bed on which the young child of the woman Larraz was sleeping. It had been placed in a sack. The three murderers confessed their crime, each one on her own part, and to throw the blame on the others. Larraz was sentenced to hard labor for life, and both the others to the same penalty for twenty years. They listened to the judgment without evincing the least emotion.

The custom of presenting cans to our first men has been revived. It originated with Eve, who presented a Can to the first man of that period.

EL MANDI AT HOME.

A correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph on the case of El Mandi.

A few days ago there arrived in El Oued, from Oued, an elderly man named Mahmud el Melegy, whom ill usage had made almost blind. His antecedents are known to many merchants here, and it is stated he once was a rich, prosperous, and honorable resident of Oued, but he is now destitute. Mahmud had no longer a home in his native town, and he had to go for a walk. Larraz had no room entered the tavern than Madeline's room upon him, while Candolot fastened the door on him, and behind him. They both then dragged him into a chamber. Dams Gousebarth held his legs and arms, and gave him a rope. When he no longer gave a sign of life, Madeline took his body and handed 25 francs to one of her accomplices and 25 francs to the other. The rest she kept.

The crowd of children growing up in London affected him with real pain. These small plants, each with its head just out of the ground, with a whole life ahead, and such a training! Noticed another trait, too! Scotch thrift, showing itself in hatred of waste. If he saw a crust of bread on the roadway he would stop to pick it up and put it on a step, or a shelf, or a table, or a chair, or a window-sill. Some poor devil might be glad to eat my dinner upside down, was it I? "I will give you my head," exclaimed a person to Mohammedan, "if every word of the story I have related be not true." "I accept the offer," replied the philanthropist, "presenters of small value strengthen the bonds of friendship, and should never be refused."

Carlyle's Sympathy.
