Prohibition.

How listless, and how tardily,
The Temperance chariot rolls, Forgetful of the agony That rends poor stricken souls.
The thousands of poor hopeless ones,
That sink each passing year; Reverberating dying groans Re-echo far and near.

While rolling swiftly at our heels,
The juggernaut of woe, Crushing beneath its ponderous wheels, Ten thousand victims low.
While thousands more the tempter snares, Secure in feidish toils, His potent tyranny declares, Delighting in his spoils.

While Church and State look on and view,
The cruel havoc wrought,
The young to spend their dimms,
To curse the land throughout.
"Am I my brother's keeper"? they By acts, the words propound, Disturb us not, some other day, When time to think is found.

The Gospel truths are preached in vain, Where I quor has control,
The rum-retailer counts his gain, Forgetful of his soul.
With demon stratagems allures,
The young to spend their dimms, Chuckles and laughs when he secures,
The step that leads to crimes.

Our homes must be destroyed, forsooth, Because men pine for gold, Our brightest gems, our noble youth, While heaves to hold.
But surely shall the nation's word,
For justice full demand, For brothers' voices long unheard Cry from the blood-stained land.

O! can it be another year Will pass, and naught be done To save our land from woe so drear, The blackest 'neath the sun.
Will not the men in whom we trust To represent our cause, Arise, and walk from east to West, For Prohibition laws?

Or will they fail when needed most,
Nor strive to do their best?
But join the opposition host,
To treat it as a jest?
At most the lenky laws discuss, While laughing in their sleeve,
At the procrastinating ruse, Invented to deceive.

We envy not such men of straw, Who fail to keep their word, Fair promises, replete with flaws, By selfish motives stirred.
Their names we'll trample in the dust, A by-word to contempt;
Their memory a spot of rust,
To mar our country's name.

To every man who fearless stands, With well-directed God's smile will rest upon their lives, To bless with earthly wealth.
Their deeds shall be inscribed for eye, On monuments of fame;
And Canada will bless the day, Such heroes she can claim.

Our Toronto Letter.

Inspector Hughes—Conservative Doings

The Toronto Inspector is shortly to appear in a new role. His present employment it seems does not afford play enough for his ambitious designs. His ideas of a school Inspector's duties are in want of a much needed reformation. By permission of the Public School Board the Inspector will shortly proceed on a tour of the Province, ostensibly to enlighten the darkness of the provincial intellect on the anomalies of the school law, but, in reality, to stomp the country in the interest of the Conservative party. No one would offer the slightest objections to a freak of this kind if the Inspector would relinquish the office he accepts the salary of. It stands to reason that if the Inspector goes a stumping his duties will remain unperformed. If he can conscientiously accept a salary for an office which he holds and neglects to fill, then it becomes a matter of importance to the public if this state of things can be allowed to continue. It must be remembered that the position of a School Inspector is not in any sense a political one, and it cannot be seriously said that the condition of affairs at the present day calls for any loosening of the bonds that confine officials of this class to a performance of their duties and denies them active participation in politics other than local. It is said that Mr. Hughes has an eye to the portfolio of Education in the event of the Conservatives coming into power in this Province. This may partly account for his anxiety to stomp the Province. No doubt he stands a fair chance in the present scarcity of able men in the Conservative ranks of filling such a position in the very improbable event of a Conservative success. Dismissing such speculations from our minds the melancholy sight of a public assembled so far lost to common sense and public duty as to lend themselves as tools to forward the ambitious schemes of unscrupulous men.

CONSERVATIVE DOINGS.

The Convention called for the purpose of choosing persons to bear the party banner at the elections for the Local House, have elected the two Clarks—the trunk maker, and the editor of the Orange Sentinel—as champions of Conservatism. Of the first nothing remarkable can be averred. His record in the House for the time he has been in it is not one of any great service to the country. Doubtless an honest man as the world goes, but I am afraid a common place one, not in the least intended for a parliamentary career.

The other Clarke, the editor, is by all odds an abler man, and is generally credited with the possession of a good deal of native generosity. Giving him all that is due to him in this respect, the fact of his being the editor of a paper holding extreme views in many things—no doubt shared by him—will have the effect of seriously weakening the Conservative cause in a quarter least able to stand it.
I understand that at the approaching Labor Convention, a Conservative of very mild type will be put forward as the Labor candidate. If this is done, the ground will be cut from beneath the feet of the Conservative candidates, as it is, the nomination of these two men is not calculated to promote the local Conservative interests, nor depreciate the chances of the Reform party.

A very grave accusation has lately been made public, reflecting on the public character of the Hon. W. Meredith, the leader of the Local Opposition. He is charged on oath by Mr. D. J. O'Donoghue, ex M. P. P. for Ottawa, with having (whilst the latter represented Ottawa in the House) attempted to purchase his support for the Conservative party, then led by the present Judge Cameron, by an offer of a seat in the Government to be formed on the overthrow of Mr. Mowat by the defection of Mr. O'Donoghue and some five other members, who had been arranged for in other ways. The whole affair is denied by Mr. Meredith, and his friends ask why the charge has been held so long in abeyance. It seems that the matter had for years back been widely known among the friends of Mr. O'Donoghue, and the occasion of its being made public was accomplished in an indirect manner, which, coming to the ears of Mr.
Meredith, was publicly denied. Whereupon Mr. O'Donoghue felt bound in consequence to affirm, and in the strongest possible manner. The way the matter came to be made public was something in the following manner: Mr. O'Donoghue is a leading labor reformer, and in the course of his connection with a certain labor society he had the misfortune, or good fortune, to be constantly opposed to a certain person, who, in revenge, persecuted him with the tenacity of a gad fly, assailing his conduct in the Legislature.
To vindicate himself, and at the same time to remove the perfidious fly, he entered into a defence of his Parliament-career, in which the revelation regarding Meredith formed a part. It is needless to say that the retort courteous has not had the most soothing effect on the minds of the Conservatives. Anyhow it will render them less noisy in the future.
