MUSHROOMS EASY TO GROW.

If It a little singular, to put it mildly, that a delicacy as the mushroom, one that is such a general favorite, should not be more generally cultivated-or rather grown, as it needs no cultivation- so plen : fully that every owner of a pasture lot or moderate sized lawn can have sufficient for family use when first gathered and for pickling and canning for winter's use. To grow mushrooms in order to have them fresh during winter is quite an expensive undertaking and a practice that cannot become general because of the cost. Modern im. provements in the modes of preserving vegetables have made this vegetable a necessity rather than a luxury. How can they be grown in quantities at a trifling expense is the question, and it is an easy one to or meadow.

PACKING BUTTER IN BRINE.

Last season we packed our surplus butter on the following plan and found when we sold in December, when the butter was unpacked for sale, it came out just as fresh and well tasted as it was when packed, ays the "Dairyman." We adopted the following method:

Bought new pork barrels, scalded them out thoroughly with boiling water three different times, the last time covered the barrel with a cloth to keep in the steam. Let stand until the water cools, then rinse out the barrel with cold water, and the barrel is ready for use. We made a strong brine, by boiling, that would float an egg, skimmed off any scum that was on top, and let stand over night. In the morning the brine would be as clear as crystal. Butter was salted in the usual way, one ounce to not to speak ill requires only our silence the pound. Made into five or six pound which costs us nothing. rolls, wrapped carefully up in cheese cloth and tied with cotton wrapping twine to keep the cloth in place. Ine rolls were then placed into the barrels and covered with the brine and kept covered. The air is not allowed to come in contact with it again until unpacked. And my opinion is, right here is where the secret lays in keeping the air excluded, no foul odors can get to it. Some might think the butter he complains of in others, and examine his would get too salty in such strong brine. Not one bit of darger, if the butter has been properly handled before going in the barrel. and press it solidly together. We packed seveternity. eral barrels in this way, and it was in the brine four or five months, and not a fault found to a pound of it. I have no doubt that butter packed in this way can be shipped to any market in the United States or Europe, if ordinary care is taken not to let it lay outside, exposed to the hot sun. Butter can be packed in this way in firkins or in any vessel that will hold the brine.

DAIRY COWS.

In selecting a dairy cow, the question is generally asked, how much milk does she give per day; but the more important one, " how long does she continue to give .that amount," is not always added. How many cows are there which do not give milk longer than about six months per year. They will give a large flow, but it does not last any length of time. Such an animal is not wanted in the dairy and should go to the butcher. An animal averaging say 50 pounds -equal co about 25 quarts-per day, for seven months will give during that year in round numbers about 10,500 pounds. Another giving but 40 pounds per day-or 11 gallons less - for ten months will during the year give 12 000 pounds, a difference 1.500 pounds in favor of the cow giving the 14 less per day. Considering the milk worth 3 cents per quart, will make a difference of great faculty. $22 50 per year. The same is true of the quality. In comparing two animals, the one may give a third more milk during a certain period than the other, but the difference in the quality may be such that the second will yield a third more butter than the first. These are questions which interest every farmer more or less, and a careful test of every animal upon the place may save much in the end.

Thin Back, Lance-Tooth, Cross-Cut Saw

The Maple Leaf Ricer and Lance Cross cut saws are now sold in all parce of the world. The quality of these saws is unequalled. Their extellence is whol'y due to their superior temper, the proces of which is kept a profound secret by Shurly & Dietrich, the manufacturers of these saws One of the best evidences of their superior quality, is that other saw manufacturers put on the market as close an imitation of thes baws as they are able to produce, and represent it to be as good as the Maple Leaf saw They run their saw upon one name until the publis become familiar with its inferior quality, then they change the name, in order to humbug the public another season, all of which is the very best evidence of the superior quality of the Maple Leaf saw, as it is not the custom to counterfeit a poor article. These counterfeits are so'd for a much lower price than the Maple Leaf aw can be bought for : the dealer, of course, endeavors to sell them at nearly the same price, thereby realizing a larger profit. And some of the more unprincipled dealers, in order to sell the counterfeit saw, will te'l untruths of various kinds regarding the quality of both the genuine and the counterfeit.
