(Continued from Fourth Page.) the faithful are to decide what is and what is not a lie. According to this author, "mental restrictions" are of two kinds-purely mental and real. As regards real restriction he says:-"Real re striction occurs when the declaration i false, if we regard the words alone; but circumstances concur which signify that something to be secretly understood, which the speaker keeps in his mind, and which, being secretly understood, the declaration is true." "Restrictio realis occurist, dum enuntiato, spectatis solis verbis, falsa est, sed circumstantiæ concur runt, quæ significant aliquid esse subintellgendum, quod loquens in mente tenet, et quo subintellecto, enuntiate est vcra.

Dens, Vol. IV., No. 244, p. 399. What will your intelligent readers think of this specimen of Catholic Moral Philosophy? But perhaps we may be told that this is only the opinion of one man, and is not endorsed by the Church. But this will not do, for we have this rule ceiving the sanction and approval of one of the infallible Popes, Innocent XI, which gives it the full sanction of the Uatholic Church. In a proposition laid down by him he said:-"If any, either alone or before others, whether asked or of his own accord, or for the purpose of sport, or for any other object, swears that he has not done something which in reality he has done, by understanding within himself something else which he has not done, or a different way from that in which he has done it, or any other truth that is added, he does not really lie, nor is he perjured." 'Probatur etiam ex damnatione hujus prop, 36, Innoc, X1: Si quis vel solus vel coram aliis, sive interrogatus, sive sponte propria, sive recreationis causa, sive quocumque alio fine, juret se non fecisse aliquid, quod revera fecit intelligendo intra se aliquid aliud, quod non fecit, vel aliam ab ea, in qua facit, vel quokvis aliud additum, revera non mentitur ne est perjurus." Dens, Vol. IV., p. 306.

It will be perceived at a single glance how wide these rules open the door for falsehood and perjury; in their practical working their effect must be to completely destroy all confidence between man and man, and exterminate all faith and integrity. This is one of the abominable methods which "that learned and illustrious society of Catholic Priests," have made use of in order to accomplish their wild dream of universal empire. But it is not the only one by any means. The Romish doctrine of "Ambiguity and That if a proposition is susceptible of two all the civil and religious rights we claim meanings, then one may be expressed when for ourselves, but no more. it is not meant, and the other which is meant may be reserved in the mind. Here we have it as plain as language can make it:--"An equivocation of this kind does not contain a lie, in whatever sense it may be received; because the external from a purely mental reservation, in na vere significant illum sensum, quem loquens in mente habet, et sic differt a restrictione puse mentali, in qua verba externa non continent sensum mentalem." Dens, Vol. IV., p. 311.

If these rules do not form a part of the they do mean. Perhaps the renowned champion of Romanism at Thornhill, or some of his many assistants, will enlighten your readers on the subject. Sanchez, one of the fathers, says:-"A man may swear that he never did such a thing (though actually he did it), meaning within himselfthat he did not do so on a certain day, or before he was born, or understanding any other such circumstances, while the words which he employs have no such sense as would discover his meaning." The reason given by him and Filiutius, another father, is that "it is the intention that determines the quality of the action." They even furnish us with a surer method of avoiding falsehood:- "After saying aloud, I swear that I have not done that, to add in a low voice, to-day; or, after saying aloud 1 swear, to interpose in a whisper, that I say, and then continue aloud, that I have done that." And Escobar, another and greater of the Jesuit fathers, lays down the following demoralizing rule in reference to promises not confirmed by an oath:-"Promises are not binding when the person making them had no intention to bind himself." That is, in plain English, in the opinion of this good Jesuit, you can lie as much as you please, if you have no intention to keep your promise when you make it, then according to our code of ethics, it is not a lie at all. Church of Rome has expressed views in very positive terms. We find Pope Gregory IX announcing without a blush the impious doctrine, that "Christians should not regard the sanctity of an Sath towards him who is the enemy of God, and who tramples under feet the decrees of the Church." Coremorvin, Vol. I., p.

These ultramontane doctrines, so clearly taught by standard writers of the Church of Rome, are beyond all question, subservism of the essential principles that bind civil society together. It is high time for Protestants to get their eyes opened, and I have no doubt that many of the more intelligent Roman Catholics will be disposed to ask the question, "are these things really so ?" I have demonstrated that they are, let him prove they are not

For the present, Yours in defence of truth. W. W. PERCIVAL

The Manse, Richmond Hill, May 27th, 1889.

POST SCRIPTUM .- If the Rev. Mr. Egan does not redeem his promise, made in his letter of April 11th, and defend his church, I must come to the conclusion that in his opinion, no successful defence can be made, or that he is conscious of his own incapacity to make it. It is to me quite repulsive to be compelled to attack a prostrate antagonist, for that is the Rev. gentlemen's present position as far as the question under discussion is concerned.

With regard to the doctrines of the Presbyterian Church, they are quite capable of defence, but as that is not the question under discussion, I must there fore for the present decline to enter into

When Mr. Egan states that the Pres byterian Church is "attempting to rob their Catholic fellow citizens of the civil and religious rights received by the laws of the land," he states that which is positively and most emphatically untrue, and when he made the statement he knew that it was false. Why did he not pro duce evidence to confirm his statement? Does he suppose the public will accept his simple statement as authoritative If so, he is much mistaken. This is in perfect harmony with the course he has pursued all through this discussion. He expects the public to accept his bald statements, unsubstantiated by proof. 1 now publicly challange him to produce a single proof, that either the Presbyterian or any other Protestant Church in Can-Equivocation" is about on a par with ada has ever sought "to rob their Catho their Mental Restriction theory. This lie fellow citizens of their civil or religious theory briefly stated amounts to this:- | rights." We cheerfully concede to them

Mr. Egan in his frenzied zeal against Presbyterianism has overshot the mark, and he actually exalts it to a pinnacle of power and influence in this land, that it has never had the blind presumption to arrogate to itself. Note well his state words truly signify that sense which the | ment. He says "other denominations of speaker has in his mind, and thus differs | Protestants are used by them as cats paws and will no doubt in due season receive which the external words do not contain | their merited but unwelcome recompense the mental sense." "Hujusmodi æqui- at the hand of predominant Presbyterian vocatio non continet mendacium, ın quo- ism." We hope our Episcopal, Methocumque sensu accipiatur, quia verba extor- dist and other Protestant friends will have a due appreciation of the very Russell & Bros. unique compliment thus conferred upon them by the Rev. J. J. Egan. If they are pleased, we Presbyterians, certainly have no reason to complain.

I am not altogether without hope that Jesuit system of "mental reservations," I | the Rev. Father Egan's study of the Conshould then very much like to know what | fession of Faith may yet be the means of leading him away from the errors of his church, for according to his own confession, he is not a Roman Catholic by intelligent conviction but only by the accident of birth, for in his letter of the 9th inst. he says, "if I had been born of Protestant parents and received a Protestant education it is likely I would be honest!y what I was brought up to be."

He complains that in my last letter have held up some of the many peculiarities of his church to ridicule, and dismisses the whole subject (as he has done every other subject) with a single wave of the hand. All that I have to say is, if the church of Rome does not wish to be held up to ridicule, it must then cease to deal so extenively in the ridiculous. I can introduce the rev. gentleman to a citizen of Toronto who is prepared to affirm that when he was in Rome, in one of the churches there he was shown two sculls of St. Peter, one a little one and the other a big one, and when he asked for an explanation of this somewhat mysterious phenomenon he was very gravely assured that one was the scull of St. Peter when he was an infant, and the other was his scull after he had grown to manhood. He thinks that this subject has a tendency "to propagate infidelity" I have no doubt he is quite correct, and this probably accounts for the fact that we find in France, and other Roman Catholic countries that infidelity is rampant. I frankly contess that were I compelled to make a choice between believing all the absurdities of Romanism, and believing nothing, I should unhesitatingly prefer the latter. As the Rev. Mr. Egan is very anxious for me to prove that the church of Rome is opposed to the free circulation of the Bible, I shall be happy to accommodate him in my next,

SPRING FAIR.

Queen's Birth-Day in Richmond Hill.

A SUCCESSFUL DAY.

The Directors of the Richmond Hill & Yonge Street Agricultural Society may well feel proud of the success of their fifteenth annual spring exhibition held here on the 24th of May. There was a very large number of visitors, the exhibits were good, although in some classes the number of entries was not as large as in some former years. The machinery and agricultural implements made a fine display, but where so much is on exhibition we can do little more than name the various articles. A patent automatic gate, exhibited by Messrs. Savage & Nicholls, proprietors for Vaughan and King, was a special attraction on the north side of the fair ground. It worked 2nd, P. Boynton; 3rd, T. Boynton. like a charm, and had many admirers. Ingleton & Co. exhibited a double blast separator and a Traction engine. Patterson, Bro, & Co., of Woodstock, had a self binder, a gang plow, a mower, a sulky take and a seed drill. Flenry's Sons exbibited a binder, mower, sulky plow, two furrow gang plow, and four walking plows. The Massey firm had a binder and two mowers. Allen, Newmarket, showed a two furrow gang plow, and four walking plows. R. Ross, for Harris & Son, Brantford, exhibited two binders and a mower, and C. H. Keffer, for the Mowat Manuf'g Co., Whitby, had a centre-cut mower with all the modern improvements. Blanchard Bros. had erected several rods of Russell's Patent Fence, which was so solid that scarcely a team of horses could have swayed it either way. Many of the animals among the horses, cattle and swine were well worthy of mention, but the prize list will have to suffice. Though there was some fine work in the ladies' department, the number of entries was small, and this will never be remedied while the directors charge the ladies a dollar for a member's ticket, and ten cents extra for each article exhibited. The band, the trapeze performers, the bag-pipes, and step-dancing turnished emusement, and the whole may be termed a success. The following Prize List.

A Protest.

To the Editor of THE LIBERAL:

Sir, On the 24th of May I entered my horse in one of the speeding races on the Richmond Hill Fair Grounds, and although squarely gaining two heats out of three, I was not awarded any second prize. This to my mind, and to the minds of all who witnessed the race, is to say the least, unbecoming and unfair,

By way of explanation, I may say I was induced and entreated to enter my horse on account of there not being a full complement of horses to run in the race. I know the reason I did not get the prize was because I would not compromise and divide the prize money, amounting to ten dollars.

Now sir, I have entered a protest to the prize money being awarded to any one elsebut myself, who should legally and honorably receive it. I hope that the Directors of the association and Judges appointed by them will carefully look into the matter and see that fair play and justice is meted out to one who justly merits it. Thanking you for space in your valuable paper. I remain vours truly,
