Another Fraud.

A well-dressed and rather good-looking young man, who gave his name as Thomas Howarth, created a sensation in the village on Friday evening previous to his being taken to Toronto-jail by Detective Slemm. A few days previous he had come here with a horse and buggy saying he was desirous of purchasing a farm. Having been directed to Mr. Ezra Clubine, he was not long in making a bargain with that gentleman for his 200 acres on the 3rd Con. of Vaughan. His buggy having got accidentally broken he borrowed Mr. W. D. Clubine's, and on Thursday drove to Mr. W. Struthers, at Pine Orchard, 5th Con. of Whitechurch. While at that place he also bargained for Mr. Struthers' farm. On Friday Mr. Clubine, not feeling satisfied that all was right, drove to Pine Orchard, and brought back to Richmond Hill the seemingly anxious farm buyer. As he appeared to be in earnest about buying a farm, he and Mr. Clubine went to J. M. Lawrence, Esq., and had an agreement drawn up, by which the purchaser was to pay a certain amount for the farm, a check for $500 on the Bank of British North America to be given the day after the agreement was made. But in the meantime Mr. Struthers had come to the village and laid a charge against Howarth for stealing his purse and about $20 in bank bills. Just after coming out of Mr. Lawrence's office Mr. Brownlee, village constable, arrested him and took him to the Palmer House. Detective Slemm having telephoned from Toronto to detain him till he should arrive. Shortly after being arrested Howarth handed the purse to Mr. Brownlee and acknowledged that it was Mr. Struthers' property. Later in the evening the detective arrived and took the confessed thief to jail. On Saturday morning in the Police Court he pleaded guilty to stealing the $20 and was remanded for a week. The same "dandy" is charged with horse stealing. How he intended making money by agreeing to purchase farms it is difficult to say.

BIRTHS

BRUNSKILL—On the 4th inst., at the Oulcott House, Eglinton the wife of Wm. Brunskill, of twin daughters.

Why the British House of Commons has 670 members, or 45 less than we have in Canada, although our population comes a long way short of the population of the city of London alone. If the United States had the same magnificent scale of representation in her Legislatures as we have in Canada, her 62 or 63 millions of people would give her about 10,000 of them.

The fact of the matter is we look about as absurdly ridiculous as Tom Thum would look dressed up in some big fellow's clothes. Our clothes are far too big for us. The fact is they were cut by those master tailors, "the Fathers of Confederation" (you have seen pictures of them no doubt) in 1865, and they were made big enough to fit us in 1891, by which time we were to number about 15,000,000. But the fact is the child born in 1865 had to put on man's apparel, and as he has not grown much, if any since, his clothes are still too big for him. Another thing that impresses me unfavorably is the tendency to import into this country the aristocracy of the Old Country, with all its glitter and tinsel. It may be all right as far as England is concerned, because it is backed up by age and wealth. But in this country it is out of place. Knights are getting plentiful. We have even also a live Lord, and who knows but what we will get a Duke by and by. The whole business, as far as this country is concerned, savours very much of the reductio ad absurdum. I honor our few public men that have refused such honors.

In conclusion permit me to say that I do not see a very bright prospect for the future of this country, until many of our public men manifest a higher standard of morality than they do at present; until the rank and file of the electors learn to think more of principle than they do of party; until our valley of Achor is thickly studded with monumental piles, marking the resting place of our modern Achans.
