ADVERTISE.

More business men attribute their success in life to the judicious use of printers' ink than to anything else. It is true some men have tried it for a few months, have given it up, and then pronounce it a loss of money and a failure. We venture to say that nine out of ten such men are failures themselves. Because a man's buildings do not burn down is a poor reason why he should cancel his insurance policy. Comparatively speaking because a person pays ten dollars for an advertisement one day and does not reap twenty dollars for it the day following would be a poor reason for him to discontinue advertising altogether. Nothing serves a better purpose for a man in business than a good standing advertisement.

SCHOOL LAW.

It is not an unusual thing to hear people say that the law which gives school teachers the benefit of holidays and vacations is an unjust one. The same class of people claim that when a teacher is engaged for a shorter term than a year, the law is confusing and makes it difficult to know what portion of the holidays a teacher should receive.

We maintain there never was a fairer law on the statutes, nor one more easily understood if people will take the trouble to read the clause relating to teachers' agreements. See Ont. statutes, 1891, Chap. 57, Sec. 40. Briefly, his salary is to be paid "in the proportion which the number of days during which he has taught in the calendar year bears to the whole number of teaching days in such year." Lawyer Lawrence put the whole thing in a nutshell on Saturday when he explained to the judge that, suppose a teacher were engaged at $1000 a year and there were 200 teaching days in that year, he would receive at the rate of $5 a day. If he taught 60 days and left the school, he would receive 60 times 5, or $300. If he taught 80 days, he would get 80 times 5, or $400. It therefore resolves itself into a question of simple multiplication.

Sunday School Exams.

To the Editor of THE LIBERAL:

SIR,—There will be very many S. S. Superintendents who will agree with the reasons given by Mr. Harrison as to the advisability of having written examinations for the S. S. scholars. In fact there will be only a small number of S. S. teachers who will not approve of the scheme, feeling their own inefficiency as workers in the Master's Vineyard. The vast majority would hail with gladness any method that will make S. S. teaching more effective. No doubt many of the younger teachers would avail themselves of the privilege of writing at the examinations, although debarred from the prizes, yet they would feel repaid in the work accomplished. Other teachers, older in years, might not engage in the work, but would so encourage the scholars to compete in this laudable work, feeling that in their younger days they did not enjoy such an incentive to study, and feeling their lack of systematic study of the Bible, they would desire to leave more efficient teachers in their place when their work is ended.

Yet there is one great hindrance to this work in having it generally engaged in by the scholars of the riding, viz., the carelessness and opposition of the parents. Some parents will carry their indifference to this scheme as they have been showing it to all kinds of S. S. work for years. Superintendents and teachers have only to have this fact mentioned so as to have brought to their memory a great number of parents (and with sorrow be it said a large number members of the church), who appear indifferent as to whether their children even read the lessons in their homes before coming to the school. How would it be possible to stir up such parents to take an interest in their children preparing for such an examination as the scheme proposes. Again other parents will give the scheme opposition as taking the time they wish their children to devote to work on the farm, or in the shop, or in the house. Others will oppose it because it will take too much time from their Public or High school studies. Parents, members of the church, have been known to continually prevent their children attending a week evening service in the church that lasted only an hour, lest they might not be able to pass some school examination.

With such facts as these before us how can the officers of the W. R. of Y. S. S. A. launch such a scheme upon the S. S. workers without preparing the way through the pulpits of our land, by the pastors bringing the subject before the families in their visitations, and all who approve of this particular kind of work to interest some one else in its favor. Certainly if only one scholar out of every ten upon the S. S. roll were to study for the proposed examinations it would eventually be a success, but the question is to get one-tenth interested, when some ministers, superintendents and teachers if not actively opposed to the scheme are quite indifferent to its success. If a certain Sunday were set apart for ministers and superintendents to bring this question before congregations and schools there might be some possibility of the success of the proposal so ably shown by Mr. Harrison in last week's LIBERAL.
