

HELPLESS AND HOPELESS.

Two Years of the Most Intense Suffering.

Mrs. John W. Cope, of Port Stanley, Sufferer from Malarial Fever Followed by Ulcers—Her Friends Despaired of Her Recovery—A Cure Found After Doctors Declared There Was No Hope. From the St. Thomas Journal.

One of the happiest couples in the county of Elgin are Mr. and Mrs. John W. Cope, who live in the house at the tollgate, on the London and Port Stanley road. The cause of their joint happiness is that Mrs. Cope, who for three years past has been a great sufferer, and whose recovery was not believed to be possible, has been completely cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, after a number of physicians and many remedies had failed. The many reports of the marvelous cures effected by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in different places are so well authenticated as to leave no doubt as to the absolute truth of all that has been claimed for them. If, however, further proof is wanted it is afforded by the wonderful, almost miraculous cure of Mrs. Margaret Cope. Hearing of this remarkable case a Journal representative was detailed to investigate it. The lady who is sixty-four years of age, was found engaged in her home work, evidently as well as she had ever been and as active as many women not half her age.

"Yes, I was completely cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills," said Mrs. Cope, in reply to the reporter's query, "and I will be pleased to give you all the facts in regard to my case, in the hope that it may be the means of inducing some other sufferer to try these wonderful Pink Pills and find relief. In August or September, 1890, when we were living in Tilsonburg, I was taken ill with malarial fever. After I recovered from the fever my limbs began to swell. They continued to swell for nearly a year. Two years ago red, sore spots, the size of a big penny, broke out on each ankle. A Tilsonburg physician was called in and attended me for more than three months, but I grew worse and worse. These spots stung and burned and caused me the most intense pain. He finally told me that nothing could be done for me as my age was against me, and that I could not live long. Then I tried medicines given me by a Tilsonburg druggist, but to no avail. A year ago last fall we moved to the tollgate here. The sores kept growing larger. I tried everything that anyone recommended, but everyone who saw me was of the opinion that I could not get better. A physician, formerly practising at Port Stanley, was then called in and treated me for about four months. He said he had never seen anything like my case in the whole course of his practice, and said the sores were ulcers. At this time the sores formed a complete ring around my ankle and up the leg for about four inches. The effusion from the sores was like water, and three or four heavy cloths rolled around them would soon get wet, and the water would run down into my slippers. The burning, stinging and twitching was sometimes unbearable and I could not sleep at night from the intense pain and could not keep the bed clothes on my limbs because of the burning sensation. The longer the physician attended me the worse I seemed to become: Then my son sent for another doctor: He did not say what was the matter, but that I could not be cured. At this time my husband strongly urged me to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and although utterly discouraged I began taking them in Nov., 1892: After I had taken four boxes the stinging pains in the sores began to stop and the effusion of water ceased. I continued taking the Pink Pills until I had taken twelve boxes, and as you now see, I am entirely cured. I have not taken any Pills since last April and my health was never better than it is now. I can stand work better than I could for years before I was taken ill, and feel like a new woman. I went down to Tilsonburg on a visit recently and my children and old friends and neighbors could hardly credit that I was cured, but it is a joyful fact nevertheless."

Mr. Cope was present during the interview with his wife and said: "I know that every word my wife has said is true, and both of us are prepared to make affidavits to its truth at any time. She suffered so much with the sores that I thought she would go crazy, and had little hope that she would ever be cured. You may be certain that we are profoundly grateful for this wonderful remedy, and that we never lose an opportunity to say a good word for it. It has brought my wife health and strength after everything else had failed, and we have reason to be deeply thankful."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood, and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of the grippe, palpitation of the heart, nervous prostration, all diseases depending upon vitiated humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities, and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork, or excesses of whatever nature.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont., and Schenectady, N. Y., and are sold only in boxes bearing their trade mark and wrapper printed in red ink, at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, from either address.

Is a Woman Ever Justified in Proposing?

Always it has been considered that it is the man's part to propose, not to woo. So that the woman's question at the head of this article will, no doubt, come with something like a thrill of horror to many people.

But there has been all through the world's history exceptions which go to prove the rule that a woman is the passive agent in these matters. In early Egypt, where the woman was held to occupy a higher position than the man, the woman naturally proposed marriage. Through all the ages of a reigning sovereign, if that sovereign were feminine, had to offer her hand to a subject, or one lower in rank than herself, if she wished to be his wife, since it would have been an impossible audacity for him to have been the proposer.

But in modern times and in ordinary life, is it ever excusable—nay, meritorious—for a woman to offer herself to a man? One can easily imagine cases in which it might be so—where the woman is of higher social position, and the man would think it presumption on his part to propose; or where she has wealth and he has none, and he fears his motives might be misunderstood if he spoke. In such cases, if enough had passed between them to make her sure he was only withheld by the fancied difference between them from making her his wife, she might well, without any loss of feminine dignity or self-respect, take the matter into her own hands.

This has, indeed, been oftener done than the outside world has any idea of, since people do not generally blazon abroad the sacred details of their love-making.

Under certain conditions a woman is perfectly justified in proposing to a man; but before she does so she must be perfectly certain of two things—first, that only a mistaken feeling of honour prevents his speaking for himself; and secondly, that he loves her.

Can anyone imagine a position more full of humiliation than that of the woman who offers herself to a man only to be politely refused? She feels she has forsaken the traditions of her sex, and lowered herself in his respect in vain; and that she has ruined any chance she might have had up till then of winning his love.

Sometimes one is shocked by the way in which the relations between the sexes are undergoing revolution in these days. Not only do girls sometimes allow a man openly to see their preference for him before he has shown the least sign of desiring it, but they even inquire sometimes whether it would not be allowable to tell a man that they love him, and to suggest his marrying them.

Needless to say, a girl who could seriously contemplate such a step would be a girl devoid of all womanly feeling and all refinement of mind.

The House of Commons.

Those of our readers who are interested in political matters will find most valuable a list of the members of the House of Commons, which has been prepared for the CANADIAN ALMANAC for 1894. In it are given the names of the members, with their politics, the defeated candidates, the number of votes they each received, the members' majority and the population of the constituency. This political chart will be invaluable to all who care to follow the fortunes of the next session and especially at the coming general election.

British Politics.

Imperial parliament resumed business last week. Mr. Gladstone proposes to give up the whole session, which is only expected to last about six weeks, as an adjournment must be had over the Christmas holidays and the regular session must commence in February, to domestic business. There is every indication at present that this programme will be carried out without excessive friction. The attitude of the Opposition is transient, as if it had been determined to rest from fighting for the present. Some little ripple has been caused by the attitude of the Parnellites under Mr. John Redmond who demand a general amnesty for the imprisoned dynamites and the immediate passage of a bill for the relief of evicted tenants; but as they can only command nine votes all told and the opposition are disinclined to accept their aid, it is not anticipated they will succeed in causing any serious trouble. It is probable that the local option bill will be shelved, as likely to create a division in governmental ranks, but it is regarded as almost certain that both the Parish Councils and Improved Registration bills will be successfully put through.

"Now good digestion wait on appetite, And health on both."

says the great Shakespeare, but he did not have in mind a coated tongue or torpid liver with all the symptoms of biliousness, so common in this country. All this, and more, can be cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a purely vegetable compound, which restores the action of the liver, gives tone to the flagging energies of the dyspeptic's stomach, and thus enables "good digestion to wait on appetite, and health on both." The Origin of Wall-Paper.

In answer to a query as to the origin of wall-papers, an English authority states that the art of paper hangings was copied from the Chinese, among whom it has been practised from time immemorial. Wall-papers did not come into common use in Europe till the eighteenth century, but stamped papers for the purpose appear to have been made in Spain and Holland about 1555. The first allusion to wall-papers known to exist is in the examination of Herman Schinkel, a printer of Delft, who was accused, in 1558, of printing books which were forbidden by the then prevailing laws. Being interrogated as to certain ballads, he said they had been printed by his servant in his absence, and that when he came home and found they were not delivered, he refused to deliver them, and threw them into a corner, intending to print roses and stripes on the back to paper attics.

It is probably to King William III. that England owes the introduction of wall-papers into that country. Paper hangings of a sort, it is true, were in use in England before the time of William of Orange, but they usually consisted merely of maps of the world, as it was then known, with fantastic borders of Indians, negroes, and elephants, and other natives of far-off regions. The art of paper hanging in imitation of the old velvet flock was new when William came to England. It was on the walls of the drawing-room at Kensington Palace that these new hangings were first seen in Britain. They took the fancy of the fashionables of the day, and their cheapness being an additional recommendation, they speedily came into general use.

"August Flower"

For two years I suffered terribly with stomach trouble, and was for all that time under treatment by a physician. He finally, after trying everything, said stomach was about worn out, and that I would have to cease eating solid food for a time at least. I was so weak that I could not work. Finally on the recommendation of a friend who had used your preparations a worn-out with beneficial results, I procured a bottle of August Flower, and commenced using it. It seemed to do me good at once. I gained in strength and flesh rapidly; my appetite became good, and I suffered no bad effects from what I ate. I feel now like a new man, and consider that August Flower has entirely cured me of Dyspepsia in its worst form. JAMES E. DEDERICK, Saugerties, New York.
