A Sign Board Needed.

Every now and again we hear of strangers being left at the Richmond Hill station who step off the train and think they have reachtheir destination, Richmond Hill Village. Mr. Joseph Gibson, the temperance lecturer, was a victim to this illusion on Monday evening. He remained at the station for some time after Proctor's 'Bus had started waiting for a conveyance to take him to Victoria Square. The horse and rig were, of course, waiting for him at the village, but the two failed to connect. Mr. Gibson, however, hired a rig and got to the Square in time to deliver a rattling temperance speech.

Next Monday morning, THE LIBERAL Carrier Boy will don his brightest smile, make an early call to each of his patrons in the village, wish them all a Happy New Year, and present them each with a Calendar for 1891. We believe that the calendars Rev. Wesley Dean preached an interesting | to be distributed will surpass any remembrance yet sent out from this office, and as we have reason to think that our carrier has been faithful in the discharge of his weekly task during the year we hope there will be a generous response.

Victoria Square.

The Christmas Tree and Entertainment of S. S. No. 4 was quite a success, in spite of the rough might. The school house was beautifully decorated, and reflects much credit on those who did the work. The entertainment was of a good order, although not lengthy. The tree looked very handsome, and everything would have passed off guite well if the order had been good. But it seems sad to think that young men who have come to the years of accountability do Call and see the new Ladies Blizzards and | not know how to conduct themselves when they get away from home. The conduct displayed might have been considered highly proper among the savages, but among civilized people of the 19th century, it is nothing but rowdyism. The proceeds at the door amounted to $14.-Com.

Methodist S. S. Xmas, Tree.

About 400 people attended the Christmas Tree Entertainment in the School Room of the Methodist church on Christmas evening. The programme consisted of an address by the Superintendent, Mr. Harrison; music by the school orchestra, and recitations by the scholars. Mr. J. H. Sanderson acted as manager, and Mr. W. A. Sanderson cheered the hearts of the children by officiating in the capacity of Santa Claus. The room was neatly decorated with evergreen wreaths, motto-s, &c., and a guardian angel cut from paper by the skilful hand of Mr. Ashiord Wright, was suspended from the ceiling directly above the richly laden tree. The effect was pleasing, and no doubt the artist was unconscious of scores of compliments paid to him in his absence during the evening. A pleasant feature of the evening was the presentation of a well-filled purse to Miss H. H. Wiley by the teachers and scholars of the Sabbath School as a mark of appreciation for her valuable services as organist. The entertainment by the children was very good considering the short time spent in practice. After Santa Claus had seen that all of the children and many of the grown-up people had been provided with presents, a very happy evening was brought to a close by Rev. Mr. Vickery pronouncing the benediction.

The Ladies' Journal for December.

This large monthly closes its fourteenth year with a Christmas number under the joint editorship of Mr. Thos. Bengough and Miss J. H. Wetherald. Everything about the Journal shows new life and vigor. New type, new paper, beautiful new title page, new department headings, specially designed by a Toronto lady, Miss Jeffrey, and new features, all go to make up a good publication. A large portrait of Lady Aberdeen, sitting at a spinning wheel, adorns the front page. An outline is given of this famous lady's life and work, together with a full report of her fine address to women at the mass meeting in Toronto in October. A special article by Miss Wetherald relates to the King's Daughters and is embellished with portraits of Mrs. Isabella Davis and Mrs. Dickinson, of New York, Miss Tilley, of London, and Miss Brown, of Toronto. A sketch of the new movement among the Methodists relating to the order of Desconess is illustrated with portraits of Sister Dora Stevenson and Mrs. Lucy Rider Meyer. An interesting page headed "Language Learning by Mother's Methods," contains articles by Mr. Bengough, based on interviews with Mrs. Jennie Drewry, who is introducing the Gouin method in teaching French; Herr Haupt-"German in five weeks: " and Mr. Des Brisay-"Latin in six weeks." There are portraits of these three notable teachers. Charming Christmas stories have been specially written for the Journal by Mrs. Westlake Yeigh and Mrs. Fanny Crawford Firstbrook-the latter being specially il-Instrated by a Canadian artist. "Madge Merton' contributes a clever interview with Editor Stead on Women-their work, their needs, &c., and Mrs. McDonell on "Women's Duty in the Piebiscite." Altogether there are 32 pages of interesting, profitable, varied matter, suitable for women of all ranks and tastes. $1 a year, 10 cents a number.
