Our Ottawa Letter.
We are on the eve of another session, probably one that will be long remembered. Sir Charles Tupper is not the only one who dreads it. Foster dreaded it, and after reading the official Gazette to day we can express no surprise.
It is said that nothing is so bad that it might not be worse, but what could be worse than the financial statement Minister Foster is forced to lay before you to day.

I have no doubt he would have suppressed it had he the power to do so, at least until the elections in Haldimand, Antigonish, Vercheres and Quebec West are over, for it is certainly very damaging evidence against the government, an evidence of reckless extravagance and unfulfilled pledges.
Let us look at the official figures given us.

The statement, which is for the nine months ending 31st March, places the revenue collected during that period at $24,553,099, against $27,845,846 during the corresponding period of last year.
For the same period the expenditure on consolidated fund alone, without reference to expenditure on capital account, which amounted to another $3,273,195, was $23,844,991, or $513,236 more than it was during the nine months ending 31st March, 1894.

While the expenditure was $513,236 in excess of expenditure during the three quarters ending 31st March of last year, a shrinkage of $3,292,747 is shown in revenue, making the country's finances $3,805,983 worse off than they were on the same date, 31st March, 1894.
Allowing that for the next three months, which go to make up the balance of the present fiscal year, the revenue shows no further decline, and that revenue and expenditure remain the same as last year, what will be the position of our finances on the 30th June.

The deficit in the treasury on the 30th June last year was $1,210,332. To this must be added the $3,805,983 representing the balance now standing against the treasury up to 31st March as compared with our position on the same date of 1894 and we get the actual deficit for the year, allowing that matters grow no worse for the remaining three months.
Just look at the result of this masterpiece of financing, you taxpayers who have been the dupes of Minister Foster and his colleagues.
A deficit of $5,016,415.

Is there a Tory Minister or a Tory newspaper who will dare say it will be less?
I have of course assumed that there will be no further shrinkage in revenue, but I know that in doing so I am deceiving myself and misleading you.
Those who are best posted in respective revenue and expenditure for the next three months say that it is impossible that a further adverse balance of at least one million dollars can be averted, which would bring the deficit up to over six million dollars at the end of the year.

I do pity Tory correspondents and editors who for party sake have to put forth their best efforts to make as good a story as possible out of the very unsatisfactory text the government has furnished them in the financial statement.
With all the facts before him the editor of the Citizen, the government organ here, in reviewing the financial statement to-day puts a sign board heading over his article, "The Reign of Economy." Some one met Foster going up to his department this morning smiling away as if a happy thought had struck him. Asked what it all meant Foster said he was laughing to see what a good job the editor of the Citizen had made out of the financial statement.

Let us see where Foster found his grain of comfort out of the Citizen's comments on his balance sheet.
In showing that "A Reign of Economy" had struck the government, the editor of the Citizen tells us that the ordinary revenue for the month was $2-748,153 and the expenditure $1,509,958, both of which he says are less than for the corresponding month of last year.
Now the editor of the Citizen leaves you just there. He does not tell you how much less the revenue was, nor does he tell you how much less the expenditure was.

I will. The revenue for the month was $1,011,173 less than in March last year, while the reduction in the expenditure was only $189,353 less.
This is what they call "The Reign of Economy."
I won't say it is economising the truth, but it looks mighty like it.

The editor of the Citizen then goes on to say that for the nine months there has been a reduction of $3,292,747 in revenue as compared with the corresponding period of 1894, but while he tells you that the expenditure for that period amounted to $23,844,891, he makes no comparison with the expenditure of last year. Why? Just because that expenditure would show an increase in expenditure of $513,236.

The Citizen, however, finds that in expenditure on capital account during the month there has been a reduction of $200,659, which it announces with the following interesting bit of information:
"If the revenue has fallen off, &c., &c., it has to a large extent been met by reduced expenditure on capital account, the result of rigidly economical management of the departments of government." For appearance sake in view of the approaching session they have cut down expenditure on capital account $200,659, and they are losing no time in letting you know all about it.
But where does "The Reign of Economy" the Citizen tells us about come in?
Mr. Foster and his friends must think they are teaching the methods of finance to a Kindergarten class when they attempt to palm off such stories upon you.

Carrville
Although muddy streets are very prevalent in this vicinity, and considering the unpleasant weather, quite a number attended service on Sunday evening and listened attentively to the eloquent sermon expounded to them.

Mr. McCarthy's hired man took his departure rather suddenly, and certain persons miss him very much. It is hoped he will soon return.
We hope our choir leader will be able to take her part in the singing next Sunday, as she was much missed during her absence.
Mr. John Coombs, jr., has gone north to work with his brother during the summer.
We are sorry to learn Mrs. Leaf took very ill on Sunday morning, but she is improving now and we hope she will soon recuperate.

The young folks of this town intend holding an entertainment in the school house for the purpose of doing some local improvements during the summer.
All are welcome. Don't miss it for we expect to have a good time.
If warm weather continues the farmers will soon be clapping their seeds under ground.
