On Monday evening last a most pleasant time was spent at Mr. W. Trench's. It was the choir of the Methodist church and a few | we know not the hour when the Son of Man other friends. The evening was occupied with "confabs," games, music and brief, spicy speeches. Excellent solos were rendered by Mesdames Mason and Powell and Messrs. Hume and Savage. Mr. R. W. Glass also gave a beautiful cornet solo. The chairman of the impromptu entertainment was Rev. G. L. Powell. On assuming the chair he immediately called on Rev. Mr. Vickery, who spoke in very complimentary terms of Mr. Trench and his proverbial hospitality. Then the company sang heartily By order of the president a meeting to re- "He's a Jolly Good Fellow." Mr. Coombs and Mr. Brown, both of the High school, and Mr. Hume, leader of the choir, also made short and pleasant speeches. The company then separated after prayer was offered by

Old customs, such as husking bees, paringbees, &c., have now become almost a thing of the past in this vicinity. Yet sometimes we hear of a paring-bee, but nothing like the ones of our grandfathers' days. On the 16th, however, a regular old-time husking-bee was held in the barn at "Dutch Castle," the residence of Mr.Ed.Forester. About 100 were invited, but owing to the unfavorable weather some were unable to attend, Nothing was spared to make the event a success. Mr. Forester excels in the art of decorating, and certainly his taste in this case was novel and original. Cornleaves fastened together hung in scallops from the beams, while here and there Chinese lanterns mingled their mild radiance with the stronger light of a Pittsburg lamp and other lights. An arch of corn-stalks marked the entrance to the impromptuball-room, where the usual dance was to take place. In one corner a young colt, 'Nelly F.," was tied; in another a Tamworth sow, "Ambra Nelly," with her 19 little ones, grunted her satisfaction at being present. "Sir John" in his corner represented the sheep, fine calf. Turkeys, ducks and hens, in bexes with wire doors, surveyed a scene which they may never witness again. A playful family of cats, ticketed "For Sale," gamboled in their cage. Then there was a fine display of roots, citrons, &c. Last but not least was the large pile of corn waiting to be husked. Soon the guests arrived and commerced the onslaught. In a short time the pile was surrounded by a cheerful company, laughing and king as fast as they husked the golden ears. Many hands make light work, so that the last ear was disposed of, and then came a toothsome lunch and hot coffee, to both of which those present did ample justice. After lunch, "music arose" in the "ball-room," and to it the dancers "tripped the light fantastic." "Missi sippi" York Plowmen's Association will be held on | was well patronized during the evening, and it the farm of Mr. John Lawrie, 12 miles east | was not until the "wee sma' hours" that the merry company dispersed, with pleasant recollections of the old-time husking-bee, and wishing no doubt that they may occur oftener.
