The Liberal.

RICHMOND HILL, April 20, 1899
JOURNALISTIC BILLINGSGATE.

What an entire lack of appreciation of the common decencies of journalism is evidenced by the two following extracts taken from different editorials in one issue of the Mail-Empire last week. Commenting upon Mr. Patterson's speech, the gentlemanly writer says: "With lungs of brass he bellowed for two hours and a half, but, leaving out its effect on the auditory nerves, it is remarkable how little his thundering differed from silence. A fog-horn of equal power would scarcely be less eloquent." And again in the next column appears the following:—"During Mr. Sifton's prolonged defence of his Yukon mismanagement a pleasant musical sound, resembling one of the lower notes of a great organ, pervaded the Commons Chamber. It was the snoring of the big Ontario policeman, Sir Richard Cartwright. Sir Richard has time to sleep. He is not engaged in hunting rascalities now." Of course there is not a scintilla of truth in this, but that matters not to the Mail-Empire. How are the mighty fallen. Imagine The London Times, or The Standard, The Daily News, or The Morning Post, speaking of parliamentary leaders in this coarse and witless manner.

During the first three months of the present year, according to the R. Dunn & Co's. trade review, there have been 370 business failures as against 433 for the corresponding period of last year, and 547 in 1897. The liabilities covered were $4,257,426, as compared with $3,009,270 last year, and $5,195,706 in 1897. The failures in manufacturing industries alone represented $2,437,107, against $458,524 last year, and $1,402,432 in 1897. In business failures the aggregate liabilities have decreased in proportion to the number of failures. The opposite condition in the report of manufacturing industries is due to a single failure, with liabilities of $1,150,000. These are healthy indications.

There is nothing to confirm The World's rumor of yesterday that Mr. John Richardson, M. P. P., is to retire from public life, to be succeeded by County Councillor R. J. Gibson as Liberal standard bearer in East York. Mr. Richardson had a pretty severe illness a few weeks ago, but his friends say he is feeling well again. A bye-election is not at all likely.

The first division in the Dominion Parliament was taken Tuesday night. Sir Charles Tupper's Yukon charges were rejected by a majority of 53.

Mr. John Kinnee has purchased the dwelling house and lot in the village, owned by Mrs. Teasdale of Headford, and purposes moving in before long.

Fishing and catapult shooting are the favorite sports with the boys just now. The latter is a dangerous pastime and should not be allowed.
