BENEFIT OF A HOME MARKET.

For several years past the village of Stouffville has been in a position to boast of probably the best market of any village in the province. Every Thursday, market day, the streets are thronged with farmers' wagons, and a large amount of money passes weekly through the hands of the buyers and sellers. The merchants of that enterprising village are doing a good trade, and every line of business appears to be successful. The present market house has not sufficient accommodation to meet the requirements of the place, therefore it will be closed, and two others of larger dimensions will take its place. The corner stone of one of these was laid on Friday last in the presence of a large and interested crowd of spectators. Mr. W. F. Maclean, M. P., who performed the ceremony, referred to the business enterprise of Stouffville, and spoke at length of the merits of a home market which has done more than anything else to make the village what it is.

All towns and villages are not as well situated for a mammoth market as Stouffville is, yet in many places a home market for all kinds of produce can be created if the citizens are thrifty, and show a spirit of enterprise. Richmond Hill has had a market scheme on its hands for some time, and although nothing has so far been decided upon it is hoped that a grain market, as well as a market for all kinds of farmers' produce, will be established here with satisfactory results, at no very distant day. But this will depend upon the enterprise of our citizens.

WORKING IN HARMONY.

Political opponents since the Liberal Government have been in power have represented Sir Richard Cartwright as not in sympathy with his fellow members in the Cabinet. Time and again they have said that he was not working in harmony with his colleagues and that he would eventually show his disapproval of the general policy of the Government. They painted him as one who was a believer in economy and in this they were truthful. They pictured him as an enemy of extravagance and corruption and in this they were equally truthful. But all along they failed to draw a distinction between spending large sums of money judiciously and spending it extravagantly and corruptly. Sir Richard Cartwright's speech delivered in Massey Hall on Thursday evening before an immense audience was all the evidence that was required to show that he had faith in Canada, faith in the Government, and faith that the expenditure complained of would bring about good results. As Sir Richard pointed out a government might easily be justified in making a little expenditure during a season of prosperity and growth in trade, whereas it might be suicidal to expend the same amount during a period of stagnation.

One of the main objects of the address was to deal with the expenditure, and to show what misrepresentations and exaggerations had been made during the past few months. The speaker made out a clear case, and showed that his present utterances are quite consistent with his former professions.

THE GOVERNMENT SAFE.

The lack of live political topics which always marks the period immediately following the close of a parliamentary session is responsible for a variety of silly paragraphs which, while they may lack the element of originality, serve to fill space and arouse a passing interest of a mild kind. Foremost among these are the guesses as to when a general election is to be expected, and as there is nothing definite to base calculations upon, the conclusions arrived at necessarily vary. Certain Opposition papers at first announced, with a great show of confidence, that there was no question an election would be "sprung upon the country" this fall, but as the weeks go by and the usual signs of battle fail to materialize, they are becoming much less confident and are now busy explaining why the Government is not carrying out plans which as a matter of fact were never in contemplation. Our anxious friends may possess their souls in patience. The general election will come in good time, and when it does come, it will be all too soon for the peace of mind of those who have been so busy foretelling disaster to the Government.

OUR MAILS.

For a long time past the citizens of Richmond Hill have had much reason to complain of their mail service, but as it was thought from time to time that better arrangements would be made the inconvenience was patiently borne. The mails are closed in Toronto every afternoon at ten minutes past four o'clock, yet the mail matter is not assorted here until about a quarter past eight. Several months ago we were assured that after September 1 the Metropolitan would carry the mail bags, but now we learn there is a hitch somewhere. Something should certainly be done to ensure a better service than we have been getting.
